"It can not be too often emphasized that the property of this country belongs to the people of this country. The government can not touch a cent of it save for a public purpose. Government extravagance is not only contrary to the whole teaching of our Constitution, but violates the fundamental conceptions and the very genius of American institutions"
—PRESIDENT CALVIN COOLIDGE, addressing the ninth semi-annual meeting of the business organization of the Government. Washington, D. C., June 22, 1925.

No War Probably
Landon, Norris, Borah
Will War Ever End?
Would Not Treat Hitler

By Arthur Brisbane

Copyright, 1935, by King Features Syndicate, Inc. International copyright and all other rights reserved.

It looks like peace in Europe. England has heard from Laval that France has no notion whatever of getting into a war over Ethiopia. She may need her strength for Germany and is saving it.

England would not willingly have a war all to herself, or let anybody drop a war into her lap.

Haile Selassie probably will be told how much he may keep. Some good excuse will be invented. Mussolini will have what is called "peace with honor," which means some new piece of territory.

Haile Selassie, the intelligent Arabic ruler of savage African tribes, seems to have been let into the secret, and says pleasant things about Mussolini. "He did NOT use poison gas against us. He has NOT used dum-dum bullets," says the Ethiopian Emperor. He would hardly say that if he wanted his people to go on fighting.

Governor Landon, of Kansas, possessing support that may make him the Republican nominee for President, tells Merryle Stanley Rukeyser, of Universal Service, the way to escape depression is to cut down government cost through elimination of economic waste and raising the level of efficiency.

Governor Landon, wise person, does not suggest "mere cutting down," but rather "getting more out of the tax dollar by elimination of deadwood and waste."

Senator Norris, of Nebraska, intimates that he will not run for re-election, which is bad news. It is a good thing to have in the Senate a man who says what he thinks, bluntly and sincerely, even though he may be wrong occasionally. Age is no excuse. Let Senator Norris consider Gladstone, Von Moltke, Pope Leo, and Titian, still working when the plague killed him, at ninety.

Senator Borah tells a friend, "This country is largely Republican; Mr. Roosevelt could not have been elected without Republican votes. He cannot be re-elected without Republican votes."

If Republicans intend to DO something, they should ocnsider seriously the work of selecting a candidate, uniting on somebody that can get back the Republican votes and bring over some Democrats. Talking back and forth to each other like whippoorwills will not produce results. They must talk to the people and talk HARD.

Mr. Burton, of Cosmopolitan Magazine, asks various highbrows and brows of middling height, to answer: "Will world peace ever be possible?"

The answer is "yes," but paid spies may postpone the happy day.

Among other parasites the world now supports 100,000 spies, men and women. Forty thousand have been caught and convicted in Europe during the past fifteen years.

Russia is a successful spy hunter, having convicted on the average one every six hours, according to "Collier's."

If, in Russia, you are convicted of spying, no second conviction is ever necessary or possible.

These 100,000 spies, to earn their money, must keep international suspicion alive, and that helps to keep war alive.

Adolf Hitler has chronic trouble with his throat. "Small tumors that grow on the vocal chords, not malignant, now, come back after they have been removed." Professor Heinrich Neumann, famous Jewish throat specialist of Vienna, requested by the German Ambassador Von Papen to treat Chancellor Hitler, declines with regret. He felt "greatly honored" but feared that if his treatment proved unsuccessful that might be "construed as connected with the fact that he is a Jew."

Professor Neumann treated the Prince of Wales for throat trouble. No Jewish complication there.

The request for Professor Neumann's services reminds you of Europe's middle ages, when ordinary Christians were forbidden to let Jewish doctors treat them, while others high in power kept Jewish doctors in their own employ for their own safety. Maimonides was physician to the Caliph of Egypt, and kept that potentate in good health.

The stock exchange, much like a passenger on his first ocean crossing, well and happy one day, sick and miserable the next, had yesterday one of its happy days. Stocks went up; even the bankruptcy of the New Haven and Hartford Railroad, with which high finance has long played "battledore and shuttlecock," could not discourage optimists.

Shown as they awaited emergency operations in Newark (N. J.) city hospital are Arthur "Dutch Schultz" Flegenheimer, former beer baron, and his alleged henchman and bodyguard, Leo Frank. The latter, here smoking his last cigarette, died soon after the picture was taken. "Schultz" is reported to be "going fast." Both men were shot down in what police say was a gang-war machine-gunning. Of three other victims, one is dead, another dying.

GUNS KILL THREE

BLAST ROCKS BROAD ST. AREA

Scores of girl clerks, employed in insurance offices at 40 Broad street, were thrown into a near-panic today when a gasoline tank exploded in a storeroom of New England Marine Company and blew out two large plate glass windows.

Leslie Adams, 35, mechanic, was cleaning the tank when a loose wire fro ma battery thought to be dead caused a spark and ignited the fumes.

He was burned slightly on the face.

Windows of the storeroom on the first floor of the building were blown out in Central street.

Fortunately no pedestrians were passing the building at the time.

GUSTINS GIVEN 2½ YEARS EACH

Maximum sentences of 2½ years each in the House of Correction were imposed today in Superior Court on Stephen J. Wallace and Francis P. Sullivan, following guilty verdicts on a charge of conspiracy to kill Patrolman Daniel J. McDonald.

The cases of Thomas P. Dineen and Anthony J. Dembrowski, also convicted by the jury in sealed verdicts, were placed on file by Judge Harold P. Williams.

With nearly half a hundred arrests on his record in 20 years—the charges ranging from murder to expectorating on the sidewalk—Wallace's sentence today was the first he has ever received, with one exception.

In 1926 he was sentenced to one month for reckless driving. In all his other cases he had been released by police, the charges dropped, he had been acquitted in court or the charges nol prossed in the district attorney's office.

Immediately after the verdict was returned, District Attorney William J. Foley said:

"The case was tried from every

NEW ITALIAN PEACE PLAN REPORTED

War Today

Mussolini's peace terms submitted to Britain, Reuters reports. League's earlier proposal accepted as basis of negotiations. Baldwin confers with King George.

Great battle reported raging in Southern Ethiopia. Native forces numbering 200,000 are opposed by 140,000 Italians.

By International News Service

London, Oct. 24—Premier Pierre Laval today communicated to Sir George Clerk, the British ambassador, a plan offered by Premier Benito Mussolini for settlement of the Italo-Ethiopian war, Reuter's News Agency reports.

Reuter's also reported that French and British officials denied the report.

Il Duce, Reuters said, was understood to have proposed first, a system of concessions such as are employed in certain regions of China, and, second, that Italy's armed forces in Ethiopia be limited to a certain number, which would comprise a "police force."

In return for this, Italy demands

Schueler Case Goes to Jury

Bridgeport, Conn., Oct. 24—The case of Mrs. Mildred A. M. Schueler, accused of kicking her eight-year-old stepdaughter, Marilyn, to death, was placed in the hands of a jury this afternoon.

The jurors retired with the words of State's Attorney Comley ringing in their ears:

"You cannot acquit this woman of the murder of Marilyn Schueler. If you turn her free, you will place the life of the other stepchild, Marjory, at the mercy of her fiendishness."

Some Queries Answered by W. R. Hearst

The following statement was given to the Associated Press and the United Press by Mr. Hearst in reply to questions regarding his announced intention to spend less time in California on account of the new income tax levy.

I DO not see anything particularly startling in my statement that taxation compels me to spend less time in California and more in New York.

New York is my legal and voting residence, and has been for over 30 years.

I simply cannot afford to be a resident of California as well as a resident of New York, nor can anybody else.

The California law would make me a resident if I spent over six months in California.

Then I would have to pay a 15 per cent income tax in California, in addition to the lesser income tax in New York, and the extremely heavy federal taxes.

I do not quite see how I can afford the luxury of all this taxation.

NO, the cattle ranch at San Simeon will certainly not be closed.

The cows are a little more fortunate than we humans are in this respect. They can continue to enjoy the glorious climate of California without being subjected to quite confiscatory taxation, although goodness knows they are taxed plenty at that.

OF course, the tax problem is not due entirely to California tax laws.

The impositions of the federal government are the more intolerable and unreasonable.

The states only get what is left, and there is not a great deal left.

BOY FLEES SOLITARY

In the chill autumn breezes and a very scanty suit of scanties nought else—Robert Clements, 10, fled from solitary confinement punishment duty in his home in Geneva avenue, Dorchester, today.

He jumped from the window of his room, where he was being kept because he was naughty, dashed down Geneva avenue like Clarence DeMar—and disappeared.

Robert's guardian, Mrs. Lillian Vivola, reported the incident to police who made an unsuccessful search of 25 cellars near Field's Corner, in the belief the lad might be hiding near a furnace.

MACHINE GUN 'MAD KILLER' IS SOUGHT

By International News Service

Newark, N. J., Oct. 24—"Find the woman in brown!"

That order flashed throughout the East today as police probed the possibility that Dutch Schultz was put on the spot in a manner similar to the fatal decoying of John Dillinger by the "woman in red."

Newark, N. J., Oct. 24—City hospital attaches said at 1.20 p. m. today hope was virtually abandoned that Arthur (Dutch Schultz) Flegenheimer would survive the gangland bullets which killed two of his aides and critically wounded a third.

By Associated Press

New York, Oct. 24—While Arthur (Dutch Schultz) Flegenheimer lay delirious and "very low" in a Newark hospital, victim of gunmen's fire that blotted out two of his henchmen, police spread a frenzied search today for a hoodlum they described as another Vincent Coll, a mad ruthless killer.

Police guards patrolled the hospital corridors to prevent any attempt of the former beer baron's enemies to "finish" him.

Both Schultz and his chauffeur, from abdominal wounds, were described in a hospital bulletin as "going very fast" shortly before noon.

The man hunted was Albert Stern, 21, alias Stein, also wanted for questioning about the hatchet killing yesterday of "Pretty Louie" Amberg, Brooklyn gangster, and the slaying of a Brooklyn policeman more than a year ago.

Stern's picture was identified by three witnesses as that of the man

340,000 MEN REPORTED AT GRIPS IN FIERCE BATTLE

MAJOR CLASH IN SOUTHERN ETHIOPIA

London, Oct. 24—A Reuter's dispatch reports a heavy battle under way on the southern front between the forces of Ras Desta Demtu, Selassie's son-in-law, and Italian troops.

Ras Desta's troops, 200,000 strong, had marched down the Webbe Shibeli valley to meet the 140,000 advancing Italians on the right wing of the river front.

Heavy rains throughout Ogaden Province, resulting in swamps being turned into lakes and dry land being turned into swamps, had delayed the Italian attack.

Addis Ababa Gets Word of Great Battle

By Associated Press

Addis Ababa, Oct. 24.—Reports of a great battle raging in the Webbe Shibeli river sector spread throughout Addis Ababa today.

They rose soon after news of a mountain concentration of Ethiopian troops, drawn up to resist the Italian invasion on the southern front.

Dedjazmatch Nasibu, governor of Harar Province and commander of Ethiopia's southern forces, reported from Diredawa that his warriors, although ridden with scurvy, were concentrating in the mountain ravines and passes, prepared to defy the troops of General Rudolfo Graziani.

Word raced through the bazaars that the Ethiopians and Italians already were fighting, but the capital awaited official confirmation.

While there was no news from the northern front to indicate that the forces of Ras Seyum and General Emilio de Bono had escaped their stalemate, military observers believe the Italians would make another thrust to the south next week.

Ethiopian Attacks Repulsed, Rome Hears

By International News Service

Rome, Oct. 24—Drawing up his scores of thousands of warriors in a wide line directly below the Italian front, doughty Ras Seyum has launched the Ethiopian counter-offensive with a series of darting raids and one unsuccessful major flanking operation, dispatches from the war zone revealed today.

Ras Seyum brought up troops in the mountains between the Ueri and Ghera rivers, threatening the western wing of the Italian army around Aduwa and Aksum, Il Tevere's Asmara correspondent said, but this movement failed and Ras Seyum's subordinate leaders were everywhere repulsed.

At several points in northern Tigre province, Il Tevere said, Seyum's troops have encountered Italian advance parties, but in each clash the Ethiopians were beaten back.

Throughout the crags and ravines of the Tembien sector, north of the Takkaze river, into which the Ueri and Ghera rivers flow, Ras Seyum has spotted his fighting men for lightning forays against the Italians.

(Exchange Telegraph's correspondent with the Italian army said 800 Ethiopians under Ras Seyum were repulsed after a sharp clash in which they tried to cut off the right wing of the Italian army west of Aksum. Casualties were not known.)

"Big Battle" Reports Denied by Haile's Aide

Copyright, 1935, by the Associated Press

Harar, Ethiopia, Oct. 24—Dedjazmatch Nasibu, after an extensive tour of the southern Ethiopian sector confronting Italian Somaliland, told the Associated Press today heavy rains still made large scale military operations there impossible.

"The rains will continue another fortnight, thus blocking Italian maneuvers which thus far have been confined to sporadic air raids and attacks on our frontier posts along the Webbe Shibeli river," the general asserted.

Dedjazmatch Nasibu, one of Emperor Haile Selassie's commanders in the south and governor of Harar province, the "garden of Ethiopia" and a major objective of Italy's southern armies, made his inspection tour through low-lying Ogaden province.

"Motor trucks and military observers we have dispatched to the front to collect news have been stuck in the mud for a whole week and have been forced to return to Jijiga," he said.

"All reports about big battles are pure fiction. So are stories alleging wide-spread use of gas by the Italians."

A smaller boy hungrily said:

"Gimme the core, will yah, Jimmie?"

To which Jimmie replied:

"Gwan, there ain't goin' to be no core."

When the federal government gets through there is not much core.

PERHAPS I am honored by special attention in the taxation program of the federal government on account of my political attitude; but I do not think so.

I believe the government should be given due credit for robbing everybody with the utmost impartiality.

Present day excise policies are not taxation merely. They are always extortion, and sometimes confiscation.

Moreover, the methods of the tax collector are largely those of the gangster and the gun-man.

You cannot argue with the tax collector any more than with any other racketeer.

The Treasury Department holds a gun to your head, and you either come across or get taken for a ride.

RECENTLY the Treasury Department asked the Warner Brothers and our Cosmopolitan Film Corporation to make a film showing what terrible things happen to folk who do not pay their taxes promptly.

We made a good gun-man picture and issued it under the title of "Special Agent."

The Treasury Department was highly pleased, but I am inclined to think we would have rendered a better service to the community if we had made a film showing what terrible things will happen to the people if they do not stop the government from robbing them to support a horde of worthless politicians.

THE house at San Simeon will be closed before the end of the year.

Of course I hope that it may be opened again some day, but I cannot tell when—if at all.

No one can tell how many more political parasites may have to be supported at the public expense, or what tricky cards the New Deal may be expected to extract from the bottom of a stacked deck.

Bret Harte's "Heathen Chinee" was not more skillful and resourceful in ingenious dealing than the New Dealers are, and the purpose and effect of his activities were entirely similar to theirs.

NO, I do not think taxation in England is at all comparable with taxation in the United States.

Taxation in England was very heavy after the war, but it is being continually reduced there, while here it is being constantly increased.

Moreover, in England you have the one set of taxes to pay, while here you have the federal taxes, and on top of them the state taxes, and Lord knows how many other layers of taxes, with new ones being added as fast as the irresponsible minds of the political plunderbund can invent them.

Then again, taxation questions in England are decided by taxation boards, which operate with consideration for the people's rights like courts of justice, and with an eye to determining what is the proper and reasonable amount for the taxpayer to pay under the law.

In our country, the process of extracting taxation from a cowed and bullied public is entirely different.

Here the citizen is put through a political wringer, with the intent of squeezing the last dollar out of him for politicians to squander.

It is a sort of sheep shearing process, and when the victim is shorn to the hide, he is thrown incontinently back into the naked and shivering flock to raise more wool for next year's shearing.

OUR American politicians are always a little bit ahead of any other politicians in the world, especially in the gentle art of fooling the public,—if not all the time, at least most of the time.

And our good people continually maintain their uninterrupted record of falling hard for the soft voice and genial smile of the political confidence man.

The public plays against the shell game of the politicians all the time,—and always loses.

Consulate 'Allies' Desert Radicals

Deserted by their "emergency peace conference" allies, members of the Communist party today said they would take independent action in the matter of picketing the Italian Consulate here.

The radical organization forces "seized" the peace meeting on Tuesday and jammed through a resolution to take action against the consulate.

Then the American League Against War and Fascism, sponsors of the meeting, disclaimed any part in the amendment.

ITALY'S PEACE PLAN GIVEN TO BRITAIN

disarmament of that part of Ethiopia where Emperor Haile Selassie is soverign, meaning he will be allowed a regular army but that all Ethiopians not in that army be forbidden to have arms, Reuters said.

LEAGUE ROLE RESPECTED

Reuters said it understood Italy was prepared to respect the League's role, and that it was taking the report of the League's committee of five as a basis upon which negotiations could be conducted.

The feature of the League proposal, which Italy once rejected, that an international board of foreign advisors be organized to improve the economic life of Ethiopia, i. e., to build roads, erect new lines of communication, etc., and to reorganize the country's police facilities.

Italy specifically was to be given no special privileges, although the implication was that her economic prerogatives would be recognized, and that she would have strong influence on the board of foreign advisors.

It was stated Italy envisaged an Ethiopian regime different from those outlined under mandates in the League covenant. These plans would run into difficulties in connection with Articles XXII and XXIII of the covenant regarding nation members of the League.

In view of this, it is said, Italy has proposed the system of concessions.

Britain now hopes that peace may be restored in Africa without resorting to application of the League's economic penalties against Italy.

BALDWIN SEES KING

Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin, it was learned, expressed this hope today to King George in an interview at Buckingham Palace in which the entire international crisis was discussed.

Baldwin's hope that economic sanctions may not be necessary brought into new light the plea of Foreign Minister Sir Samuel Hoare before Parliament Tuesday that a peace be effected at the "11th hour" before sanctions are applied. The League's economic sanctions are now scheduled to go into effect October 31.

The committee of five was organized as soon as the League met to discuss the African crisis.

Britain, France Unlikely To Accept Italy's Peace

(Copyright, 1935 by Associated Press)

Paris, Oct. 24—Negotiations between Rome, Paris and London for settlement of the Italo-Ethiopian war and the European crisis arising from it came to a head today, with Premier Mussolini pressing for an answer to his peace conditions.

Il Duce, after his conciliatory gesture to Great Britain to withdraw a division of troops from Libya, asked the central negotiator, Premier Laval, whether France would be willing to accept Italy's proposition for East African peace.

Circles close to Laval expressed belief openly there was little chance that Great Britain—or even France—would accept Il Duce's proposal.

Germany Now An Armed Camp Britain Told

By Associated Press

London, Oct. 24 — Winston Churchill, former chancellor of the exchequer, told the House of Commons today that "The whole of Germany is an armed camp."

He said £800,000,000—$4,000,000,000—is "being spent in the course of the present year direct and indirect military preparations by Germany."

"The industries of Germany are mobilized for war to an extent ours were not mobilized even a year after the Great War was begun," Churchill warned, resuming the third day of the debate on international affairs.

"Germany's whole population is being trained from childhood up for war. A mighty army is coming into being. Many submarines are already exercising in the Baltic. Big guns, machines, tanks and poison gas are fast multiplying."

Floyd Gibbons Writes:

Italian Advance Expected by Monday

International News Service Staff Correspondent
(Copyright, 1935, by International News Service)

Asmara, Eritrea, Oct. 24—"Mussolini and forward!" This was the cry of the entire Italian army on the northern front today, the hearts of all beating as one in a spirit of patriotic co-operation in whatever task Il Duce orders.

FLOYD GIBBONS

When the word to march on again is given down the line, every last man—and I know because I've talked to representatives of every rank from top to bottom — will throw himself into the operation with thorough loyalty.

Many believe this word will be given to celebrate the 13th anniversary of Premier Mussolini's Fascist march on Rome. This anniversary is Monday. The word may come at almost any time so that by Monday the action will be fully under way, with Fascist legions again marching and singing toward their objective.

Guns will be ready to talk if necessary on this march, but they will not be used unless it is necessary. The most modern ermy equipment in the world will go with the Fascist soldiers, a grim reminder that Italy will not be stopped.

Every marching soldier will feel he cannot be stopped. This Italian army is marvelous for the spirit that animates it. I have never seen anything like it in my life. The organization is unbeatable for its completeness, even to its last details.

I have talked with all the army, from General Emilio De Bono, commanding it, down to the last trooper, who is a 1"-year-old boy machine-gunner, a native of a suburb of Naples, who will yield to no one, for his resistance and his enthusiasm.

They are all animated with one aspiration within their hearts. It is sumed up in the three words quoted above:

"Mussolini and forward!"

Place in Sun

They will go on—probably next toward Makale, important point on a main highway from Eritrea to Addis Ababa—and they will take every step for Il Duce .

The soldiers don't care a bit about what's being said abroad in England and the United States about the acts of Italy in Africa.

They notice their actions are approved in their homeland and, moreover, that they have blessed not only Italy, but Ethiopia itself, because—remember this well—the enterprise up to now does not have the characteristics of war, but of redemption; they are bringing a higher scale of living among a population which up to now has lived in a state of barbarism and primitive slavery.

The Italian farmer of today has put on a military uniform and often stops to observe the land. He takes the soil into hish ands in order to see and feel its fertility, and he immediately thinks of what he could arrange for his family—always composed of eight or ten children—because today he is fighting with the certitude that tomorrow he will have a place in the sun.

It makes no difference that colonization will be an enterprise of many years; it is possible enterprise that is enough. Tenacity conquers time.

The Italians don't even exclude the Abyssians from this work, for already they think of attaching them to themselves as collaborators, one of the first signs one can observe that the Italian is not mistaken in his choice of methods.

The Italians have a need and a hunger for the earth, in a few years they will transform this earth, which is most fertile, just as our pioneers did in Indiana, Illinois, and Ohio.

I cannot understand why Englishmen and Americans blame the Italians for doing what they themselves have done at other times with results perhaps inferior in some places.

These soldiers are going through some real experiences in getting to their goal. We are living really in semi-stratosphere air which is so rare $ even put three sweaters on from force of habit. It is so dry and evaporation is so extremely fast that if you stop after having perspired while walking you are instantly caught with a sense of cold. This is caused by the too rapid evaporation of your sweat.

Eggs Real Problem

Asmara is one of the highest cities in the world. It is situated 7700 feet above sea level, something like a mile and a half.

I won't tell you of the difficulty of cooking an egg within the famous five minutes. It's enough to tell you that thousands of soldiers have tried the most ingenious means in order to achieve it, because in this country there is no lack of either eggs or chickens.

Such climatic conditions are no barrier to the Italian, however. For him it is simply "Mussolini and forward!"

The Japanese consular police charge the sailor, whose name was not disclosed, pulled the flag down at a Japanese shrine and trampled on it.

Authorities requested the apology from the captain of the war vessel to which the seaman is attached.

NOTIZIE DELLA GUERRA IN ITALIANO

By FORMER LIEUTENANT GIOVANNI NANIA

This is an Italian translation of the Italian-Ethiopian war news which appears elsewhere in this paper today.

SUL FRONTE SETTENTRIONALE

Un dispaccio della Reuter proveniente da Addis Abeba, informa che sarebbe imminente sul fronte settentrionale uno scontro tra le forze di Ras Desta Demtu, genero di Haile' Selassie', e le truppe italiane al comando del generale Rodolfo Graziani.

Le truppe di Ras Desta, colonne di oltre 200.000 mila uomini, vengono rapportate in marcia lungo il fiume Webbe Shibeli per incontrare i 140.000 italiani che formano l'ala destra del fronte lungo la vallata.

La pioggia continua su tutta la provincia di Ogaden, trasformando le paludi in immensi laghi e facendo ritardare l'avanzata e l'attacco italiano.

Dedjazmatch Nasibu, governatore della provincia di Harrar e comandante delle forze abissine operanti sul fronte settentrionale, ha comunicato da Diredaua che malgrado i suoi guerrieri siano in maggioranza affetti dallo scorbutico, sono stati concentrati lungo i burroni ed i passi delle montagne, preparati alla resistenza contro le truppe fasciste del generale Rodolfo Graziani.

Voci giunte alla capitale abissina secondo le quali la battaglia sia stata gia' ingaggiata e continua su tutto il settore, non sono state ancora confermate.

ATTACCHI ABISSINI RESPINTI

Rapporti dal fronte orientale, indicano che le colonne italiane operanti nella regione di Aussa, vicino la Somalia Francese, seguitano ad avanzare vittoriosamente, pronte a tagliare la ferrovia che congiunge Addis Abeba a Gibuti appena ne avranno l'ordine dalle competenti autorita' militari.

La linea—dicono tali rapporti—non sara' interrotta fino a quando il Ministro Italiano Conte Vinci-Gigliucci ed il Console italiano a Magalo, non avranno lasciato Addis Abeba.

Un telegramma da Londra informa che 800 uomini della fanteria etiopica, assistiti dal fuoco di sei mitragliatrici, hanno tentato di tagliare l'ala destra delle truppe italiane ad ovest di Aksum, ma sono stati prontamente respinti dai nuclei di vedetta.

Si vuole che Ras Seyum, comandante in capo dell'armata etiopica del nord, abbia guidato personalmente l'assalto e che piu' tardi, incalzato dalle forze italiane, sia stato obbligato a ritirare i suoi uomini nella vallata del fiume Gerah e preparare cola' un contrattacco.

Il corrispondente del Tevere ad Asmara, informa il suo giornale che le truppe di Seyum hanno incontrato, in diversi tentativi, gli avamposti italiani ma sono state tutte le volte respinte indietro e sbandate.

La concentrazione delle forze abissine sul fronte settentrionale—sempre secondo il dispaccio da Asmara—sembra sia completa, e tutto fa prevedere l'imminenza di uno scontro in tale settore. Si e' informati nello stesso tempo, che le truppe italiane del Tigre', la cui linea di fronte si estende da Aksum ad Adigrat attraverso Adua con avamposti di mitraglieri fino a Dabat, sono pronte per entrare in azione e procedere alla conquista di Macalle'.

IN ATTESA DELLA TREGUA

Due unita' della marina da guerra francese hanno lasciato stamane le loro basi "a scopo di manovra." Il Ministro della Marina Francese, ha annunziato che l'incrociatore Emile Bertin, sventolante la bandiera del Vice-Ammiraglio Darlan, l'incrociatore Duguay-Trouin, cinque cacciatorpediniere e 13 sottomarini hanno lasciato i porti mentre gl'incrociatori Foch, Dupleix e Tourville con sette sottomarini, i quali hanno preso il largo ieri partendo da Tolone, si trovano "in qualche posto nel Mediterraneo.

Si sconoscono i motivi precisi di un tale movimento. E' accertato pero' che il Primo Ministro Francese, Pierre Laval, avrebbe dichiarato a membri della Camera dei Deputati che hanno voluto conoscere in quale misura la Francia si sia impegnata con la Gran Bretagna, che fino a tanto egli sara' Primo Ministro, la Francia non applichera' sanzioni militari di sorta.

Monkey Business

By Associated Press

Entiscio, Ethiopia. Oct. 23 (Wednesday) — Delayed in transmission — Monkey business is delaying work on telephone lines being strung by Italian soldiers into occupied territory in Ethiopia.

In one instance a pitched battle occurred between the signal corps Fascists and a gang of monkeys. Scores of the soldiers suffered bumps on the head.

When the simians appeared the soldiers greeted them with stones. That was a tactical error. The monkeys got the idea and threw the stones back.

The soldiers report that detachments of enemy monkeys are engaged in sabotage. The animals climb the poles and try to detach the wires after they are strung.

DEATH Instead of DIVORCE

YOUNG WIFE KILLS SELF

Northampton, Oct. 24—Two hours before she was to appear in probate court here today to defend herself against a divorce action brought by her husband, Mrs. Ruth McLaughlin Monnatt of South Hadley Falls, put a tragic period to her problem by committing suicide in the kitchen of her home.

The mother of two small children and of an unborn infant whose life, Medical Examiner Kenneth L. Noonan sought vainly to save by an emergency operation, Mrs. Monnatt fired one bullet from a .32 calibre revolver.

Her husband, Raymond, who had charged her with cruel and abusive treatment, had just left the house and heard the report of the revolver as he was about to enter his car for the drive to Northampton.

Rushing back to the house he found both rear and front doors locked. He succeeded in crashing through the latter entry a few moments later.

Monnatt, though seeking to divorce his wife and not speaking to her since filing the bill, had continued to live in their home pending settlement of the case, neighbors said.

Medical Examiner pronounced the young mother dead upon examination and was urged by the frantic father to trp and save the expected infant by means of a Caesarian operation. The posthumous delivery proved unsuccessful, however.

At 10 o'clock when the case of Monnatt vs. Monnatt was called in probate court here, news of the tragedy ending the case became known.

'John Will Return,' Elaine Says

"ARIEL'S" DREAM WILL COME TRUE WHEN HER "CALIBAN" COMES BACK

By ANN MARSTERS

"I think every girl has a dream man—and John Barrymore is mine. He always has been and he always shall be."

Elaine Barrie speaking, from her hotel room in Boston. Still dreaming about Barrymore, there is yet room in her heart to dream of taking Boston by storm when she opens at the Copley Theater within two weeks in "Katy Did. So Waat?"

But her dark eyes are shadowed by thoughts of her unresponsive darling. He left her. She doesn't know where he is. She hasn't heard from him for more than three weeks. So what?

"He'll come back," she said. "I think, if it doesn't sound too conceited, that I'm his idea of a dream come true, too."

Young and Vivid

That wouldn't be surprising, for Elaine Barrie is young and vivid and intelligent. And it's quite understandable that the 20-year-old Elaine should have dreamed of the great lover with the perfect profile long before she ever met him.

"I shouldn't wonder," she said, "if John didn't have a place in many a girl's dream.

"I think the type of dream man has changed in the past few years. The modern girl has discovered that boys of her own age are inclined to be terribly selfish and inconsiderate and light-headed. They seldom take anything seriously—not even marriage. And when she marries a boy of her own age, it's pretty much of a gamble.

"So she dreams instead of a man older than herself—a charming, considerate, unselfish person who can protect her and take care of her. She knows that marriage with this type of man has a fine chance of being a success. And, oh how much more he can adore her than can a man of her own age—and how she loves to be adored.

"I feel sorry for every girl who doesn't know what it's like to have a man like John Barrymore in love with her.

"John is more than twice my age, but we have never mentioned that difference to each other and I seldom even think of it.

"For his sake, I wish that we could have met a few years sooner—and that I could have been the same age that I am now. I think he would be happier if the gulf of years between us were a little smaller, but it doesn't matter the least bit to me.

"With all his poise and experience he is really such a baby—and I love him for that. I'm a million years older than John in so many ways."

Then she revealed herself as not being quite so grown-up—in one way at least. She displayed the pressed, brownish gardenias that were fresh on the night he proposed to her.

"Of course," she went on, "I rely on John's superior judgment in some things, but I think he's over-confident about my stage ability right now. I've had so little experience and I don't want to plunge in over my head.

"John was very anxious to do 'Hamlet' in New York, and he wanted me to play with him as Ophelia. He insisted that I could do it, but I was terrified at the mere idea.

"I told him he was biased by his personal feeling for me, and then he got very angry and said he would never let that interfere with his professional judgment.

"But someday I'll play Ophelia with John—and play it well. I want to be a success on the stage. I want it more than anything else—next to John.

"My love for the theater is so tied-up with my love for John that I can't separate them. I wouldn't want to give either of them up. And I'm never going to."

4 Indicted in ERA U. S. Jury Probe

Two ERA administrators, one a school principal, the other a town tax collector, were indicted by the federal grand jury today on charges of making false payrolls.

Two contractors engaged on PWA jobs were indicted on charges of allowing employes to work more than eight hours.

Robert A. Burnham, of Becket, is the school official named. He is alleged to have used ERA workers to do the Burnham family chores and act as his chauffeur.

Walter Knowles, tax collector of Shirley, is accused of using ERA men to move the family furniture and also work on the property of a woman friend of the family.

The contractors indicted are Patsy and Ralph Tremaglio, brothers, of Waterbury, Conn., engaged on a postoffice project in Holyoke.

SAUGUS MOTHER PLANS CLASS

Parents of seven Saugus children barred from classes because they refused to salute the flag conferred today on plans to continue the education of their offspring.

Mrs. Phenetta Mitchell, former Maine teacher and mother of four of the barred pupils, sai dshe may start a class in her home.

Another plan under consideration is to have the Saugus seven join the tutoring class in the Lynn home of Carleton B. Nichols, Jr., suspended from school in that city for the same reason.

Sent Home

One of the Saugus children, Barbara Henderson, 9, appeared in class this morning, but was sent home with the official exclusion notice adopted by the school committee last night.

Notices were mailed to parents of the other children, Fred Gott, Jr., 12, and his sister, Shirley, 10; Constance Mitchell, 11, and her brothers, Costa, Jr., 12, Philemon and Philip, 9, twins.

Saugus parents plan no court action until after tomorrow's scheduled Supreme Court hearing on the Nichols case. Lynn officials have been notified to appear.

The Saugus children, like the Nichols boy, are members of the religious order Jehovah's Witnesses.

This order, according to complaints telephoned police by several Lynn residents, is selling a booklet exploiting the Nichols case and referring to his disbarment as "Pashbyism."

William F. Pashby is principal of the school from which Nichols was barred. Police began an investigation.

Kindly Act Pays, Woman Gets $1000

A promise made ten years ago to Mrs. Frances Hayes Gravlin, of 61 Winter street, Saugus, by a stranger she befriended, meant a thousand dollars for her today.

Mrs. Gravlin today received notification from New York that under the terms of the will of Jesse Gans, the man she aided, 10 per cent of his estate, estimated at $10,000, had been left to her.

The promise was made, Mrs. Gravlin explained, when she saved the man from death after he had fallen in the path of a truck at Winter and Summer streets a decade ago.

After the man had been revived, he told her he would some day show his appreciation for what she had done, the woman said.

"Restore Payrolls," Says McCormick

Chicago, Oct. 24—The Republican Party's big problem, says Col. Robert R. McCormick, publisher of the Chicago Tribune, is "to get the people out of the breadline and back on the payroll."

He expressed this belief last night when he told the Young Republicans that a "militant party" would champion any proposals in the interest of the public welfare.

FOUR GUSTINS GUILTY, GIVEN 2½ YEARS

angle since the assault of the officer.

"A courageous jury has done its duty."

Dineen is already serving a sentence of nine to ten years in State prison for assault with intent to kill McDonald, and Dembrowski is serving eight to nine years on the same charge. They were convicted in March, 1933.

They were convicted in March, 1933.

With today's sentencing, practically the last of the old Gustin gang of South Boston went behind bars.

Fines of $1000 each against the four men were asked also by Assistant District Attorney William J. Sullivan.

As the judge imposed sentence, Wallace's wife, a young and pretty blonde, sat behind his cage and dabbed at her eyes with a tiny handkerchief.

Two younger brothers of Wallace were also in court when sentence was passed. Wallace has been in jail 11 months, awaiting trial, but nothing was said in court as to whether he would be given credit for this time.

FREED TWO YEARS AGO

Nearly two years ago, on December 21, 1933, Wallace and Sullivan were acquitted of a charge of murderous assault on McDonald by a jury whose names were later stricken from the venire list at request of Judge Daoul H. Beaudreau, the presiding justice.

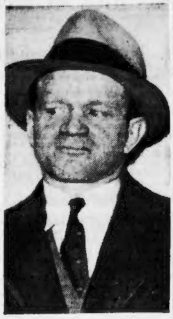
In March of that year, Dineen and Demobrowski had been found guilty of the same charge and had been given their state prison sentences.

After his acquittal, Wallace immediately left the courthouse, but Sullivan, two hours later, was arrested in the corridor on an indictment warrant containing the charge for which he was jailed today.

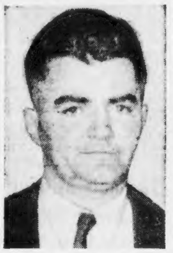
Search for Wallace, wanted on the same charge, was begun but for 10 months he eluded the searchers.

Then he surrendered to Captain Stephen J. Flaherty, head of the detective bureau, and Inspector William J. Crowley, after telephoning police headquarters and stating he would be waiting on a specified street corner in South Boston.

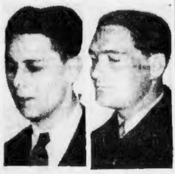
GUILTY ON CHARGES OF GANGLAND CONSPIRACY



STEPHEN J. WALLACE



THOMAS P. DINEEN



Anthony Dembrowski Francis Sullivan

Convicted and given maximum jail sentences today on charges of conspiracy to kill Police Officer Daniel J. MacDonald were Stephen J. Wallace, alias Steve Gustin, former South Boston gang leader, and his alleged henchman, Francis P. Sullivan. Also convicted were Thomas P. Dineen and Anthony M. Dembrowski, both now serving state prison sentences for committing the actual assault, which left MacDonald an invalid.

MACHINE GUNS BARK IN NEW GANG WAR

who wounded a Schultz lieutenant in a brightly-lighted Broadway barber shop last night shortly after the notorious ex-beer runner himself, his chauffeur and two bodyguards were shot in Newark, N. J.

Two of the bodyguards, one of whom had dashed outside to return the gunmen's fire, died today.

Police were told to "shoot to kill," if they encountered Stern, apparently one of a group of trigger men designated to wipe out the Schultz gang.

7TH UNDERWORLD SLAYING

Amberg's death, they reported, is the seventh recent underworld slaying of which he is accused.

Federal officials expressed interest in an adding machine slip with a long row of figures, left on a tavern table by Schultz and his companions.

The figures totaled $827,253.54, giving rise to speculation over whether they represented the 35-year-old Schultz's income. He is under indictment on income tax charges.

Deputy Chief Inspector Francis J. Kear also ordered a city-wide search for Charles (Lucky Charlie) Luciano, chain cabaret owner, whom he alleged was the "most powerful gangster in Manhattan."

He said he wanted to determine whether Luciano's associates might have decided to wipe out the Schultz gang in one sensational coup and seize control of every racket in the city.

UNDER $50,000 BAIL

Schultz, free under $50,000 bail on a charge of income tax evasion, was shot down with his chauffeur and two bodyguards in a hail of machine gun bullets in a Newark chop house.

Two assailants—one described by witnesses as a "big guy"—escaped in a black sedan.

Otto Berman, 46, one of the bodyguards, died of his wounds shortly after 3 a. m.

Schultz was in a critical condition with three bullet wounds, as was Bernard Rosenkrantz, 36, the chauffeur. Leo Frank of Newark, who first said he was a bystander, died three and a half hours after Berman. He had been wounded while shooting it out with the invader.

While police sirens blared in search of the assassins, another Schultz aide, Martin Krompier, was shot as he left the barber shop at Broadway and 47th street, in the heart of Manhattan's night life district.

Police found a .38 calibre revolver on the stairway of an adjacent subway entrance.

Women screamed as the shots were fired. Persons on the sidewalk scattered. Many ducked into the subway, where the assailant is thought to have escaped.

Surgeons in a Newark hospital, meanwhile, were treating Schultz, who for a time was unconscious.

"He's looking better," said Dr. Earl Snavely after wounds in the beer baron's abdomen and lungs were probed. "We could not find any perforations of his intestines or liver."

Schultz, who had been fighting removal to New York on the income tax charge, was sitting in the tavern with his three companions when the two assailants threw open the door and blazed away with machine guns.

20 SHOTS FIRED

The gunmen fired at least 20 shots, witnesses said, and then fled through a rear door. The few patrons ran for cover.

Officers were summoned by a telephone call to police headquarters.

"Send me an ambulance," said a voice. "I'm dying."

Police found Frank lying on the sidewalk outside the cafe. Deputy Chief John Haller expressed the belief he had followed the gunmen in an effort to cut off their escape, only to be shot down by others in the attacking squad.

Schultz was sitting inside, holding his right side.

"You're Schultz," said one officer. "Are you shot?"

"Yes, and it's damn painful," Schultz replied.

Deputy Chief Haller said Schultz later told him:

"You're killing me, you're killing me. I've told you the truth."

Haller said he did not understand the meaning of the sentences.

SCHULTZ'S OWN STORY

Tells How He Was Shot Down

(Copyright, 1935, by Boston Evening American)

The Boston Evening American publishes exclusively today Arthur "Dutch Schultz" Flegenheimer's own story of his shooting.

Flegenheimer gasped out his story to a Boston Evening American representative from a cot at Newark City Hospital while he waited for doctors to attend him.

His story was punctuated with his personal pleas to two girl nurses:

"Save me. Please save me. Oh, where is the doctor? I'm dying. It hurts awful."

Here is his story.

"I had been in the restaurant only a little while. I had walked from the Robert Treat Hotel with my three bodyguards directly to the restaurant.

"On the way everything looked all right. We didn't see anybody we would take notice of.

"We were all seated at the booth. Berman and I were facing the door.

"I had forgotten something in my top coat and went to the coat room to get it, telling the others I would be right back.

"I got to the coat room all right and I was just turning around to walk back when I saw a man come through the front door. I don't know who he was. I never saw him before.

"I didn't pay much attention to him until he suddendy raised some kind of a gun and pointed it at me and let it go.

"There was a loud noise. Then I felt a stinging sensation in my side and I felt myself going down."

"As I dropped I heard more shots. I felt sure that he hda given it to my friends, my bodyguards.

"I got back on my feet and I saw one of the fellows running out. He was holding on to his side too, but he didn't seem to be hurt much.

"The longer I waited the more my wound seemed to hurt me. I could feel the blood through my coat. I thought I was going to die.

"Who shot you, Dutch?" asked the reporter.

Schultz had no answer for that question. He drew his hand over his mouth and said nothing about identification.

Sure He'll Die

By International News Service

Newark, N. J., Oct. 24—Dutch Schultz believes he is going to die.

From the fever-swollen lips of the delirious racket chieftain today came these words:

"This is the end of the journey—end of the journey—end of the journey . . .

"It's death for me—death for me—death . . . "

ELDER CLOUTIER REFUTES GIRL

By Associated Press

Alfred, Me., Oct. 24—Defense efforts were begun today to save Alexander Cloutier, 25-year-old Biddeford sawmill worker on trial for the murder of Florence Grenier, 17, from life imprisonment

John Cloutier, Alexander's father, was the first witness in Supreme Court today.

He contradicted testimony of Miss Jeannette Bill, a neighbor, who identified a blood-stained pillow found under the Grenier girl's head as one she had "often" seen in the Clouthier home.

Simon Spill, Clouthier's counsel, said that during police questioning instead of saying, "I'll die rather than talk," the defendant had said, "I'll die before I'll admit what I didn't do."

Lord Morris Dies

London, Oct. 24 (AP)—Lord Morris, 77, former Prime Minister of Newfoundland, died today after a long illness

Edward Patrick Morris, whose barony was created in 1918, was born in St. John's, Newfoundland, May 8, 1858.

5 ELUDE CHASE IN BROOKLINE

Through Brookline woods, five escaped inmates of the Shirley School for Boys were hunted by police today following a wild chase of a stolen car through Brookline streets.

Although police, after searching for several hours, were convinced that the fugitives had made a successful getaway and perhaps were far distant they continued to comb the thickets on the chance that the quintet had decided to remain in hiding until nightfall.

The five youths escaped the school early today, broke into a garage at South Lancaster and appropriated a car owned by Miss Maud Anderson.

Driving to Longwood avenue, Brookline, they attracted the attention of Sergeant Thaddeus O'Hearn, who chased them in a cruiser car until they abandoned the machine and fled into woods at Lapham and Common roads.

'OFFICE WIVES' PASSE

Modern Girl Wiser, Says Expert

By Associated Press

New York, Oct. 24—The "boss" as a matrimonial possibility was debunked today to an audience of business women.

"As a marital 'catch,' the boss has been vastly over-rated," said Mrs. Elizabeth MacGibbon, adviser on office etiquette.

"He usually isn't a catch—he is often bald."

She also said that "office wives"—the boss' secretary, soulmate and nurse—are on the wane. "The modern girl has too much sense to be one."

In a list of dos and don'ts for office conduct, Mrs. MacGibbon warned against male chin-chuckers and back slappers.

"Simply ignore them," she advises. "If the man at the next desk gets sentimental, laugh him off and go on working. Don't take him seriously."

Asked what men resent most in girl employes, she replied:

"Office 'scenes'; tears and tantrums.

"And they hate dressing room primping."

A clean neck, said Mrs. MacGibbon, is often more important than a college education.

"Every week I hear of girls who lose jobs because of dirty necks."

She ruled out perfume for office wear.

"You don't go to business to be alluring," she said.

As for chivalry from male coworkers:

"You needn't expect it—you won't get it."

Honeymoon Slaps Win Her a Divorce

After a year of turbulent married life, Mrs. Grace E. Murphy, night club dancer, is Miss Grace Riley again today.

She was granted a divorce from Harold Murphy, of Cambridge, in Middlesex Probate Court, by Judge Joseph W. Monahan. She also got the right to resume her maiden name.

The dancer testified that two weeks after her marriage her husband slapped her face and dragged her upstairs because she did not move fast enough to please him.

FILM MANSIONS IN FIRE PATH

Los Angeles, Oct. 24—A million-dollar brush fire, fanned by a treacherous wind, threatened today to sweep across Malibu Beach, exclusive filmdom colony.

"It looks like we are gone," said Arch Jones of the company which controls the fashionable resort, as the wind shifted the flames and drove them steadily toward the colony.

Fire forces were mobilized along the coast highway dividing the southern tip of the beach from the rugged Malibu Hills country.

Three lines of hose were laid across the highway to the colony and the creek reservoir was running full. A four inch main was ready to provide full pressure.

Located in the section are homes of John Boles, Jack Warner, Edmund Lowe, Louise Fazenda, Bryan Foy and Charlotte Henry.

Other film celebrities with homes there are Constance Bennett, Joan Bennett and her husband, Gene Markey; Harry Beaumont, the director, and Herbert Brennon, director, now in England; Harry Rapp, Norman Foster and his bride, Sally Blane.

RUNAWAY HORSE CRASHES INTO STORE

While noonday crowds in the market section scattered, a runaway horse tried for a sprint record on Washington street

The driver, Peter Naurube of Chester avenue, Chelsea, leaped to safety.

But the owners of a clothing store at 157 Washington street, couldn't move the building in time. The steed plunged into their plate glass window

Pleads Guilty to Theft

Robert Bruce Latham, 38, today pleaded guilty to larceny by check and was held in $1500 for the grand jury by Judge Philip Kiley in Lynn court.

BABY BORN AS MOTHER FALLS INTO WELL

By International News Service

Sanford, N. C., Oct. 24 — Well, well, Mr. Ripley.

Mrs. Alton Jordan fainted as she drew a bucket of water from a well, and fell down the shaft.

Jordan, summoned from the fields by the frantic cries of his children, rushed to the rescue and hauled his wife to the surface. In her arms Mrs. Jordan cuddled a new-born babe.

JEWISH DRIVE FUND BOOSTED TO $338,548

The competitive spirit of the three armies of the Associated Jewish Charities has been emphasized by the installation of a special campaign thermometer showing the daily progress of each army.

Today's grand total showed a figure of $338.548, with a $15,648 gain over yesterday's total.

The noon-day meeting was presided over by Samuel Markell, colonel of the Green Army. Benny Rubin was the guest star.

Tomorrow will be Blue Army day, with Colonel Charles S. Cohen presiding.

The meeting will be entertained by Guy Robertson, star of "The Great Waltz."

PRIZES AWARDED

Today's prizes for those bringing in the most pledges were awarded to Michael Tackeff, Joseph Levin, A. A. Ginzberg and I. H. Muchnich.

The first team to go "over the top" was announced by Gabriel M. Stern, chairman of team organization, as being the haberdashers team headed by Joseph H. Rosenberg., The team has already raised its quota of $1750 and is working on an additional $1000 quota.

Charles S. Cohen, "Blue Army" Colonel, has reached 42 per cent of his quota, while Samuel L. Ginsberg reported 46 per cent of the "Brown Army" total has already been reached.

AHEAD FOR YEAR

Edward Ansin, captain of the Theaters Team, reported that his team has already exceeded last year's total of $9310. James A. Lippman, commander of the Shoe and Leather Division, said his team has reached $47,738, or $4500 more than last year's total.

Starring today's workers luncheon will be Benny Rubin and his Gang. Rubin is opening a week's engagement at the RKO Keith-Boston theater today.

Contributions announced by Sidney Rabinovitz, general chairman of the campaign include:

$1000—Anonymous; Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Rosenthal; Mr. and Mrs. George Wyner.

CAMBRIDGE TAX DRIVE LAUDED

Albert N. Murray, president of Murray Printing company, Cambridge, today told the annual meeting of Associated Industries of Massachusetts how lower taxes could be procured.

Addressing many of the state's leading industriaists at Copley-Plaza, Murray described a lower tax campaign in Cambridge.

By means of questionnaires sent to candidates for office and publication of answers in weekly bulletins, the Cambridge Industrial Association strongly influenced the primary vote, he said.

Each of the 120 candidates who answered the questionnaire, he said, was listed in a Voters' Guide, giving his qualifications or lack of them, as indicated by his answers.

The results were the nomination of many of those candidates given favorable mention in the guide by the Industrial Association, and severe setbacks for two candidates who had openly opposed the campaign.

The Cambridge taxpayers are working toward a reduction of the tax rate there from $41 to $35, he said.

LET KIDNEYS FLUSH OUT 3 LBS. A DAY

Clean Out 15 Miles of Kidney Tubes

Nature put over 15 miles of tiny tubes and filters in your kidneys to strain the waste matter out of the blood. Kidneys should pass 3 pints a day and so get rid of more than 3 pounds of waste matter.

When the passing of water is scanty, with smarting and burning, the 15 miles of kidney tubes may need flushing out. This danger signal may be the beginning of nagging backache, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes and dizziness.

If kidneys don't empty 3 pints a day and so get rid of more than 3 pounds of waste matter, your body may take up some of these poisons causing serious trouble. Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, which have been used successfully by millions of people for over 40 years. They give happy relief and help the kidneys to flush out 3 pounds a day. Insist on Doan's Pills.

JOCKEY'S PLIGHT AMAZES GIRL FRIEND IN R. I.

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 24—Indictments charging Jockey Willie (Smoky) Saunders with being an accessory to murder and Walter Schaeffer, race track exercise boy, with the murder of Mrs. Evelyn Sliwinski were voted by the grand jury here today.

(Copyright, 1935, Boston Evening American)

Providence, Oct. 24—Jockey Willie "Smokey" Saunders is a "swell fellow" in the opinion of two girls who attended parties with him.

Neither of the girls can understand how or why he is mixed up with the brutal murder of Mrs. Evelyn Sliwinski, 25, of Louisville, Ky.

When interviewed today at their homes in this city and Pawtucket, the girls, both beautiful and charming, expressed their horror at the charge brought against the champion rider.

Nothing but praise for Saunders came from their lips, as the girls talked of their friendship with the jockey who rode Omaha to victory in the Kentucky Derby and Preakness this year.

LIVES IN PAWTUCKET

Miss Ruth Ann O'Flynn is 22, a brunette with blue eyes. She lives in Pawtucket.

Ruth was dumbfounded when she was told that Saunders was held on a murder charge.

"I met Smokey last summer at Narragansett Park," she said. "I saw him in the padock many times, and waived to him when he rode his horse out to the track.

"I say I met him at the track—but that is not quite true. I was not introduced to him until we attended a party one night during the opening meeting at Narragansett.

"This murder charge against him—I can't understand it. There must be some mistake. Smokey was one of the nicest men I ever knew. He would never do anything like that."

Miss Gladys Mae Doyle of Providence was another friend of Saunders.

JUST WOULDN'T

Gladys is auburn haired, brown eyed, rather tall and tremendously attractive.

"This news is most distressing," said Miss Doyle. "I think Smokey is a grand fellow.

"I can't conceive of his doing anything like that. He just wouldn't.

"He often took me out in the evening to parties where other jockeys and the girl friends were in attendance.

"He was always polite—a perfect gentleman."

Stable Boy Tells Story of "Death Night"

By International News Service

Baltimore, Oct. 24—Seated on an iron cot in a detention cell here today, Walter Schaeffer, exercise boy for the Headley Stables, denied that he killed Mrs. Evelyn Sliwinski on a lonely road outside Louisville, Ky., Sunday morning.

Schaeffer, however, signified his willingness to waive extradition and go back to Louisville to face a murder charge. He said:

"Smokey and I, between 9 and 9:30 Saturday night, met and we went to a night club," the exercise boy declared. "We wanted to dance and I asked one of the waitresses to send us over a couple of girls.

"One girl came over. We had a drink or two and she left, but came right back with another girl. The other girl (police say it was Mrs. Sliwinski) started ordering straight whiskey and drinking it right straight down.

"We had a couple of more drinks and then left and went to another night club. After awhile we went to a third. Then a fourth and finally wound up in a fifth. At 2:30 Sunday morning the girl (Mrs. Sliwinski) showed signs of being sick—she was getting very drunk . . . We were all feeling pretty good, but I was the least intoxicated.

"We decided to go for a drive and Saunders got in the back seat with Mrs. Sliwinski and Agatha Mackinson and I in front. We left Louisville and were about a mile and a half away when Mrs. Sliwinski got very noisy, shouting at automobiles that passed by. I told her to shut up, but she kept right on hollering. Then Saunders said keep her quiet.

"She started an argument with the other girl, and it broke out into a battle, with hair-pulling and all. The girl on the seat with me said, 'Throw her out.'

"She battled again and her girl friend repeated: 'Throw her out.'

"She got sick and I stopped the car and Mrs. Sliwinski got out. We left her on the road and drove off about one and a half miles away. Then we decided to come back and pick her up. It was very foggy and approaching her I could see her stretched out in the road."

SWERVED OFF ROAD

Schaeffer said he swerved the car, ran off the road and avoided hitting her. He said he noticed a green car making a turn in the road just ahead and with the girl still in the road he became too frightened to stop and drove back to Louisville where he took the Mackinson girl and Saunders home, and then drove home in Smokey's car.

He made his way to Lexington, Ky., the next day, he said, and then came to Baltimore in a horse van.

He told police he did not see Saunders when the latter was in Baltimore and played hide-and-seek with the police who sought to pick him up for the Louisville authorities.

Found Willie "Swell Fellow"

(Picture from International News Photograph Service)

Charges against Jockey Willie "Smoky" Saunders in connection with a woman's death in Louisville, Ky., come as a "terrible surprise" to Ruth Ann O'Flynn of Pawtucket, a former friend of the accused rider. She always found Willie a "swell fellow," she says.

Townsend Pension Plan In National Convention

By Associated Press

Chicago, Oct. 24—Dr. Francis E. Townsend's plan of giving all the aged $200 a month pension was celebrated today with a national four-day convention.

It is the first national meeting called by the tall, mild physician, whose aides claim he has acquired 27,000,000 followers since he began preaching his idea two years ago to California neighbors.

Townsend badges, with the legend, "Work for Youth—Security for the Aged," and Townsend banners identified the delegates. One banner read:

"The three emancipators — Washington, Lincoln and Townsend."

Many delegates are white haired, beyond the age at which, under the doctor's plan, they would quit work and begin living on the $200 a month pension.

"I think I've earned it," said the eldest of them, J. C. Manning, 90, who had traveled by auto from West Los Angeles.

"But that isn't the idea, son. This plan would stop all these suicides, and the worry that's behind them. Roosevelt will come around to this, you wait and see."

The convention will hear two addresses by Dr. Townsend. His followers will be urged to demand their congressmen endorse the plan, and to back any candidates, Republican or Democrat, who will.

"Enact the Townsend plan this Congress, or elect Townsend men for the next," said one slogan.

SANITY PROBE IN LURE CASE

Pleading not guilty to charges of attacking two little Cambridge girls with criminal intent, Thomas A. Reid, 54, Somerville auto salesman, was committed to Boston Psychopathic Hospital for observation today.

He was arraigned in East Cambrige District Court before Judge Robert Walcott. Named in the complaints against him were Dolores Neal, 4, and Shirley Ackerly, 5, of Brooks street, two of three children he is alleged to have lured into his car Tuesday.

The case was continued until November 4 to await the hospital report. Police said that while Reid was in the prisoner's dock he was identified by a 15-year-old Whitman girl as a motorist who made advances toward her in Whitman last month.

Man-Hunt in R. I. For Girl Attacker

Providence, Oct. 24—The entire detective bureau was turned loose today in a search for a 28-year-old man who attacked an 11-year-old girl here last night.

The man got rid of two small boy companions of the girl by having them "run a race around the block for hot dogs." Then he took the girl to the shores of a pond within the city limits.

'I'M WILLING TO MAKE SENATE RACE'—CURLEY

San Francisco, Oct. 24—Whether Governor James M. Curley runs for re-election or for the United States Senate depends only upon the best interests of the Democratic party in Massachusetts, he said here today.

His decision, he said, will be made following a conference with party leaders immediately upon his return to Boston.

"If party solidarity and best interest demand that I run for the senate, I shall do so," he said.

"Or if it is for the best interest of the party for me to seek re-election as governor, I shall take that course."

In Governor Curley's opinion:

"There is not the slightest doubt as to the re-elecion of President Roosevelt."

HARMONY WITH WALSH

Intimation drawn by some from the governor's statement regarding his intentions is that he is at present more interested in Beacon Hill than in Washington.

"We are working in harmony," he said, when queried about his relationship with Senator David I. Walsh.

"Without significance," he commented upon the recent Essex district election of William H. McSweeney to the Massachusetts senate, a result that has been hailed by Bay State Republicans.

"That is a rock-ribbed Republican district and it always has been," he said. "It was a local contest."

Arriving from Honolulu aboard the Dollar liner President Coolidge with his daughter Mary and his son-in-law, Edward C. Donnelly, Governor Curley was greeted by two Massachusetts National Guard airplanes which flew over the ship.

The Governor's daughter underwent an appendix operation in Shanghai, China, during her round-the-world honeymoon cruise. Governor Curley went to Hawaii to meet his daughter and her husband.

Governor Curley, his daughter and son-in-law, and Dr. Martin J. English, family physician, who accompanied the governor on his trip, will spend the next few days visiting Los Angeles, Hollywood and San Diego, where they will inspect the fair.

3 Firemen Hurt In Truck Upset

Cranston, R. I., Oct. 24—Pinned between a pole and an overturned fire truck, Earl Hazard, 18, of Old Phenix avenue, received injuries today from which he may die.

Two other members of the Pocasset Volunteer Fire Department, Walter Connell, 21, of Phenix avenue, the driver, and Frank Overmeyer, 21, of Elmhurst avenue, were cut and bruised.

Hazard suffered internal injuries and had an arm crushed. The fire truck skidded on leaves.

Roxbury Man Held in Bag Theft

Joseph Adkins, 28, of Harold street, Roxbury, was held in $12,000 for the grand jury today when arraigned in Dorchester court, charged with robbery and larceny from the person.

He is alleged to have held Miss Emma Shirley, a manicurist, of 797 Morton street, Mattapan, early last Tuesday and to have robbed her of her handbag.

NEW 'SPREE' ALIBI

Glands Cause 'Kick,' Says Doctor

By Associated Press

Chicago, Oct. 24—The man who staggers home and tells his wife he "didn't touch a drop" had an alibi today—the "kick" of a human gland.

An intoxicated "spree" is possible from overstimulation of glands, Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of Journal of American Medical Association, warned.

"Unusual manifestations that may result from continued use of endocrine gland extracts are comparable in their psychologic content with instances of overmastery by narcotic drugs and alcohol," Dr. Fishbein said.

Referring to British studies of such glandular "binges," the physician explained the reaction of thyroid gland extract, used by corpulent people who wish to reduce, was "to speed up metabolism and it is easily understandable that there should be an increased feeling of well-being."

The "kick" is also felt in misuse of adrenal extracts, which affect the circulatory and muscular system, Dr. Fishbein added.

He pointed out "the duty of medical men prescribing glandular extracts is to exercise proper supervision and control of their use by patients."

Curley Waits Party Word On Candidacy

By BERNARD J. DOHERTY

Governor Curley's decision to be guided by the best interests of his party in his final choice of candidacy for office in 1936 was hailed with satisfaction today by the Democratic rank and file of the state.

While Republicans are flying at each other's throats in factional stampede for head places on the G. O. P. ticket, Democratic chieftains view with complacency the prospects for complete harmony within their own party for the coming election.

It is significant, they point out, that State Treasurer Charles F. Hurley, one of the strongest Democratic vote getters, prevented by the constitution from serving again as treasurer—three terms of two years—is in entire agreement with the Governor's position.

The state treasurer will wait and be guided by the ultimate decision of Governor Curley and the party advisors.

If it should develop that the Governor can help best by running for re-election, Hurley will run for senator. And if the Governor should decide on the senatorship, then Hurley will be a candidate for Governor.

If Governor Curley runs for renomination, it is believed Lieutenant-Governor Joseph L. Hurley will again be his running mate.

Ruth Nichols Better

Hopes Dashed

Jobs to Require 'Dole Diploma'

ONLY THOSE ON RELIEF 5 MONTHS AGO GET WORK

(This is the seventeenth in a series on the Federal relief breakdown in Massachusetts.)

By JOHN H. NOONAN and ALAN C. FRAZER

(Copyright, 1935, by the Boston Evening American)

This is a story about a Federal relief rule that requires a "dole diploma" and why the rule should be changed.

Many needy persons have pridefully kept off the public welfare lists.

They have lived with the expectation that federal relief jobs would be available under the five-billion-dollar fund.

Same have had jobs in private industry, for short or long periods, and subsisted on their earnings in between.

They, too, had hopes in the WPA.

Now they all find that the Washington bureaucrats have a rule whereby those on the municipal welfare lists five months ago get first chance at WPA jobs, after all the ERA workers are provided for.

They are informed that, in order to beome eligible for relief jobs themselves, they must go on the welfare lists and get a dole status."

Scant Hope

This entitles them to what the bureaucrats call a "600 card," and what the needy call a "dole diploma."

Even then they have scant chance of getting WPA jobs, no matter haw many dependents they may have.

They are at the end of the eligible list. According to State Administrator Arthur G. Rotch, there is really little hope of reaching them.

Administrator Rotch said there is only one exception to the rule. If a WPA job, calling for certain skill, exhausts all the qualified ERA workers and the needy from the old welfare lists, the specially qualified among the newer needy have their chance.

But no exception can be made simply because a man or woman is specially qualified on the basis of NEED.

The man with six children, who went on public welfare this month or last, or in June, July or August, comes after the single man who was on the dole list last May.

Change Essential

Administrator Rotch told the Boston Evening American that he favors changing this rule, but as it was promulgated at Washington, he must obey it.

Here is a chance for senators and congressmen to exert pressure at Washington to bring about a change.

The way to change the rule is to permit all needy persons with dependents to be listed as eligible for WPA jobs in accordance with their qualifications and their need.

The thing to do is to give them a "600 card" without making it a dole diploma and a certificate of little hope.

We find that some of the needy are still living in false hope.

Applying at the district WPA offices, they were sent to the nearest branch of the Massachusetts Re-employment Bureau.

There they were told that their applications would be filed. If they begged for more assurance, they were told they would be called if wanted.

Only those who persisted found out about the "600 card" on their first visit. Others found out about it later. But some have yet to learn that they must go on the dole and "get a status"—a status entitling them to but a flickering hope.

(More federal relief disclosures in tomorrow's Boston Evening American.)

Washington, Oct. 24—President Roosevelt was elected on a platform of economy.

Next July the public debt will reach the record all-time total of 31,000 millions of dollars.

The interest on this total will be 745 millions of dollars a year.

The Treasury expects to collect in income taxes next year 1434 millions of dollars.

Fifty cents of every dollar of income taxes will go to pay interest on the public debt.

War Ace Pilot Dies

Vienna, Oct. 24 (AP)—Captain Rudolf Stanger, the ace Austrian World War pilot, died of pneumonia today.

During the World War his greatest feat was preventing the fall of the fortress of Przemysl by landing within the wall of the fort, bearing new defense plans for the besieged forces.

WALTHAM MAN IN CANADA POST

Clarence D. Howe, former engineering instructor at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, who left Waltham 15 years ago and became a naturalized Canadian, was appointed today to the cabinet of Prime Minister King.

Howe was sworn in at Ottawa as minister of railways, canals and marine.

He is son-in-law of Joseph R. Worcester, head of J. R. Worcester & Co., consulting engineers, Milk street, who lives at 102 Greenwood lane, Waltham.

Howe left here to become professor of civil engineering in Dalhousie University, Halifax, N. S., and later was chief engineer of the Canadian board of grain commissioners.

His sister, Mrs. Havland Bettinger, lives in Waltham. His father the late William C. Howe, was a Waltham school committee member.

CCC Heads Open 2-Day Session

A two-day conference to discuss supervision of 30,000 New England youths and veterans in 150 forest camps in six states, opened today at First Corps Area headquarters, at Army Base. Major-General Fox Conner presided.

Attending were the six commanding officers of the Civilian Conservation Corps in New England, their executive officers and educational aids, as well as state and national officials.

Dr. David K. Niles outlined current economic problems. Vocation guidance was the subject of Dr. Fred Smith of Harvard School of Education.

SABATH ORDERS FENSGATE FACTS GIVEN TO FORD

Chairman Adolph J. Sabath of the Congressional Committee today directed special counsel for the committee to turn over to U. S. Attorney Francis J. W. Ford all evidence gathered in the Hotel Fensgate reorganization and trusteeship.

The action followed the resumed testimony of Alexander Whiteside, sole trustee for the Fensgate.

Recalled as the second witness of the session today, Mr. Whiteside underwent a sharp series of questions.

Chiefly they concerned his connection with the Commonwealth Bonding Company of New York headed by C. J. Kuney.

The latter, it developed from Whiteside's testimony, acted as self-appointed bondholders' protective committee agent and handled all accounts of the Hotel Fensgate.

TWO SETS OF ACCOUNTS

Two sets of accounts were kept by Kuney and receipts of the hotel under trusteeship were sent to New York each month. On this point Whiteside said:

"Whatever money was taken out of the hotel went to New York to the Commonwealth Bonding Corporation. If there was any larceny it was committed in New York. I didn't suspect anything about Mr. Kuney until he had been here some time and I hold no brief for the Commonwealth Company."

Congressman Martin J. Kennedy interposed a query:

"He was one of your clients, wasn't he, Mr. Whiteside?"

"That was back in 1931," Whiteside replied. "If there was any money taken out it wasn't a great amount. The hotel had been operating at a loss and there were unpaid bills amounting to $7500.

"They (referring to Kuney and the Commonwealth Corporation) must have taken the money that should have been used to pay these bills to New York. It was just a little thing."

This drew from Representative Kennedy the comment:

"Not much to you, Mr. Whiteside, probably, but it was big enough for the bondholders you were there to protect."

"Well, yes," Whiteside conceded, "the principle of the thing was just the same."

Chairman Sabath then inquired:

"Didn't you hear Mr. Samuel White, the manager of the hotel, testify here that the hotel in 1931 paid $2840; that for six months after that it averaged $1500 per month profit?"

"I' msurprised at that," was the witness' answer.

Chairman Sabath then turned over to Whiteside a letter describing the operations of the Commonwealth Bonding Corporation and Kuney.

He asked the witness to decide whether a 12-year-old hotel, admittedly occupying one of the choicest locations in Boston, should have been sold for $176,000 under the trusteeship. Original cost of building and land was given as $910,000 as of 1923, the sale price yielding 10 cents on the dollar to bondholders.

Sabath requested Whiteside to consider whether he would join in recommending a federal grand jury investigation. He added:

AMAZED BY WHITESIDE

"Mr. Whiteside, if you were a young attorney I could understand this much easier — but you are an outstanding member of the bar, you have a splendid reputation. For you to permit a man of Kuney's known reputation to impose on you and do the things you have testified he has done—amazes me."

"Until the spring of 1934 I had no cause to suspect him," the witness protested. "I never had anything against him."

This drew from Murray Garsson, chief investigator, the observation:

"In New York Kuney had five or six attorneys. None of them lasted more than a few months. But Mr. Whiteside stayed right along. There is only one conclusion to draw—and that is, larceny has been committed, and the facts should be turned over to the district attorney at once."

Thereupon Chairman Sabath turned to Special Counsel Borre and instructed him to turn over to the U. S. attorney's office at once "for whatever action he sees fit to take" the entire Fensgate record of testimony and evidential data accumulted by the committee investigators.

"If there is no indictment sought here in Boston — there will be in New York city," he added significantly.

Under earlier questioning by Special Counsel Peter C. Borre, Attorney Barton Corneau of Boston said he had refused to permit investigators for the Sabath committee to examine books of the S. W. Straus Company.

Attorney Corneau interrupted to disclaim any desire to delay or hamper the Straus & Co. phase of the inquiry. The upshot of the exchange was that he agreed to produce the records desired at once.

At the outset of today's hearing, it was indicated an exhaustive probe of the alleged monopoly of receiverships and reorganizations may be made.

Loves Music—So Studies It

(Picture from International News Photograph Service)

EDITH HILLMAN, PEABODY PIANO STUDENT

"Nothing Wrong With American Music," She Says

(This article is the second in a series of interviews with college students, in which they express their opinions on careers and the future.)

There's always "music in the air" at the Boston University College of Music.

And if you should hear a faintly familiar classical number lilting down the college corridors, more likely than not, it will be Liszt's "Second Hungarian Rhapsody."

This is why.

Edith Hillman of Peabody, junior co-ed, likes to play the piano. And she can usually be found playing during her free periods.

Edith's favorite tune is the "Second Hungarian Rhapsody." So putting two and two together, you can see why the Liszt strains are peculiar to the B. U. college.

The reporter was trying to find out what was wrong with American music, why does anyone study music, how is career to be reconciled with marriage, and other such questions.

Miss Hillman, who is fairly representative of the average music student, was ready with an answer for each question.

Says Edith:

"There's nothing wrong with American music. The trouble is that Americans just don't appreciate American music, and are usually gullible for foreign compositions.

"I'm studying music because I love it, because it is a natural desire on my part, because it is an enjoyment.

'My ambition is to reach the point where I can offer concert music. But there is no reason why such a career should interfere with marriage.

"Popular music has its place in American life and should be tolerated. It is the dance music of this age."

And the prime requisite of the great music master?

"There can be but one answer to that," Edith exclaimed. 'A love of music that injects the personality, the individual feeling into it."

COFFEE EXPERT GIVES VIEWS

One of the executives in charge of A. & P. coffee roasting and blending points out that, as the world's largest importers of coffee, experience has shown that no one blend suits the majority of people.

For that reason, his organization puts out three blends, one that is mild and mellow, comprised of selected Brazilian coffees, a balanced blend that is rich and full bodied and somewhat stronger, and a blend that has full aroma and strength with a winy flavor.

One of the factors that makes A. & P. coffees preferred is their freshness. Almost as soon as the coffee leaves the roaster ovens, it is packed in pound bags and delivered to the various stores where it is ground to order, according to the method to be used in making. This coffeee expert recommends that only a week's supply be purchased at one time, for as soon as the bean is ground, the essential oils begin to evaporate.

Another essential in making good coffee is to have whatever type of container it is prepared in, absolutely immaculate. Coffee should never be reheated.

MISS FERGUSON SOLVES COOKING PROBLEMS FOR WOMEN

American School Pots Sizzle

By PEGGY DOYLE

"How to make meringue that looks like those eye-taking ads in the magazines?"

"Why don't my broiled steaks look and taste like those at my husband's favorite restaurant?"

"Is there some trick about keeping custard on top of and not under the pie crust?"

"What is a good reducing diet?"

Ask her, ask her—she knows ALL the answers. Who? Why, Edna M. Ferguson, smiling miracle-woman of the pots and pans, who is directing the Boston Evening American-Boston Sunday Advertiser Cooking School at Hotel Bradford this week.

Another record crowd of more than 3000 women thronged the ballroom of the Bradford at yesterday's second day session of the cooking school, which opened with Top-Flight Homemaker Ferguson answering the countless questions concerning the home and cooking asked by the first day's "pupils."

Meringue that looks like a picture, appetizingly tinted, is made, Miss Ferguson told her avidly interested audience, by adding one teaspoon of cold water to each egg-white and beating the mixture until it comes to a peak. Then add ¼ teaspoon of baking powder, ⅛ teaspoon of salt and three level tablespoons of sugar. Bake 15 minutes in a 300 degree Fahrenheit oven.

PAN-BROILED STEAKS

Next, Miss Ferguson took up the question of pan-broiling chops or steaks.

"Pan-broiling," says Miss Ferguson, "is practically the same as broiling. The frying-pan must be dry and very hot. When it is sizzling hot, put the chops in and count ten before turning. When the chops are gray on each side, they are seared sufficiently so that the juices are sealed in. Chops require about seven minutes to pan-broil."

The secret of keeping custard on TOP and not UNDER the pie crust, Miss Ferguson explained, is to press down the pie crust on to the tin before putting in the filling so that all air is expelled.

Practicing what she preached the American-Advertiser's visiting lecturer, who has achieved national fame in her field, thereupon ran up a pie—a carrot-pie of all things—that would melt in your mouth.

With the ease of a Houdini, she sifted together 2 cups of flour, ½ teaspoon of salt, ½ teaspoon of baking powder, cut in 2-3 cup of shortening, added just a leetle water to hold the ingredients together, rolled her rolling-pin forward and outward a few times and—presto—the pie crust was made.

CARROT INSIDES

The carrot "insides" was a touch more involved. Her blondely attractive assistant, Miss Jean Lay, prepared the grated carrots and chopped apples, 1 cup of each, while Miss Ferguson sifted ½ teaspoon cinnamon, ¼ teaspoon cloves, ½ cup sugar and ½ teaspoon salt with ¼ cup flour. Two egg yolks were mixed with 1 cup milk and gradually added to the flour mixture.

The other ingredients were then stirred in, and also ½ cup of floured raisins. Bake in a single shell at 450 degrees Fahrenheit for 10 minutes, then at 325 degrees until done.

It looked good enough to take home when it was carefully lifted from the oven. How to award it to one woman without offending the thousands of others was the question. Miss Ferguson did it like a lady Solomon. She asked one of her aides to pick a number out of a box, and the lucky winner, smiling from here to here, tore up to the platform to collect the dessert for her last night's dinner.

Greatly amused that "I, of all people, should be asked for a reducing diet," Miss Ferguson, who is pleasingly plump, next proceeded to answer a diet question. She earnestly besought her listeners not to adopt any diet until they had first consulted a physician.

MOTHER OF 13

"We weren't all meant to look alike," she said. "We can't all be perfect 36's and, since variety is the spice of life, thank the good Lord that you're a happy and healthy 56."

Resuming her discussion of tasty, simple, nutritious meals at lea- cost for families, large and small, Miss Ferguson requested those women present having more than ten to arise. Several did. Then she asked for those with a dozen youngsters to arise. None did, but a modest, little woman, smiling timidly, stood up and, in a small but proud voice, admitted she was the mother of thirteen.

LUCKY WINNERS

She is Mrs. Bradford Morton, 40, of 5 Batchelder Terrace, Roxbury whose children range in age from 2 to 23. At the conclusion of the session, she was summoned to the platform and presented with the fragrant lemon-colored sweet peas and sweetheart rose corsage Miss Ferguson wore on her becoming white uniform.

At the conclusion of the demonstration 25 names were drawn from among the thousands of ticket holders and the bearers were awarded baskets of choice foods. This pleasant procedure will be followed daily throughout the school's sessions.

The drawing for major prizes brought an especial thrill because of the character o' the awards. The fortunate women, and their prizes were:

EASY ELECTRIC WASHER—From Edison Electric Illuminating Company and Easy Washer Company, C. C. Kennedy, 14 Dudley st., Cambridge.

COAT OF IMPORTED FUR—From Scott Furriers, Mrs. John Favor, 91 Franklin ave., Chelsea.

CHAPTER XXI

Terry raised his brows. His shoulder shrugged imperceptibly. "Why waste our time discussing someone who does not interest me?"

This was too much. "But he interests me! Don't be so egotistical."

"Sorry." Terry rose. His face was rather like a mask. "Shall we get along to the theater? We're late-ish."

Their seats were in the fifth row of the orchestra, in the center. They were just in time for the rise of the curtain.

The first act of "Mad Marriage" was intriguing. The spoiled daughter of very rich parents had eloped with a struggling artist. They were both in love. But it was obvious before the curtain fell that it would not pan out properly.

Smartly attired people poured up the aisles and out to the lobby for a smoke and chat at the end of the first act. Vernon felt proud of being seen with handsome Terry Shannon, though his remarks as to Prince Karinoff's motives still rankled.

Quite a number of people greeted Terry. They cast curious glances at Vernon.

She was glad when they were back in their seats, and she had him to herself again.

The second act of the play was thrilling. But the third disappointing. "Mad Marriage" finished with the bride forsaking her impecunious husband and going back to her own comfortable home.

"Let's go to the Desert Oasis. The music's lovely, but not too overpowering. We can talk there, and get a bite to eat," Terry said, as they went in search of the car after the fall of the curtain.

They rode in silence. Vernon's thoughts were on the play they had just witnessed. She would get Terry to discuss it during supper. She was dying to know his reaction to it.

* * *

The Desert Oasis was one of the loveliest, most romantic places Vernon had ever seen. The walls were realistically painted with great stretches of desert sand, and long caravans winding their way over them. On one side were the Pyramids and sphinx, with ruined temples on the other.

Real palms divided the little tables that were set close to the walls, giving a certain sense of privacy in a trick moonlight. On the upper canvas of the walls was painted a deep blue sky, pierced by innumerable stars that glowed realistically, lit from the back.

"Heavenly Dream"

There was the cool splash of fountains, and in order to reach their table Vernon and Terry had to traverse a little bridge over a blue lagoon. A palm with real cocoanuts tied to it drooped over them as they sat there, and in the air was the throbbing whine of desert music—the kind that comes from primitive wooden instruments and ghourds and drums.

"I feel as if I were a million miles from New York tonight!" exclaimed Vernon.

A waiter dressed as an Arab, in a flowing white gown and turban, approached them and Terry gave the order.

"Lobster and champagne. I'm taking a chance on your not having a nightmare!" Terry's eyes twinkled at her.

Vernon breathed: "This is a heavenly dream. Look—at that wall—the tent pitched in the desert for the night—"

"Romantic child! You see glamour in everything, don't you?" But Terry looked pleased at her enjoyment.

The champagne and the music and the surroundings loosened their tongues.

"See that tent over there," said Vernon again. "Pretend it isn't painted on the wall, but real! How wonderful to sleep, to dream in it!"

Terry said hoarsely, caught by her mood: "Mayn't I come, too? Would you leave me all by myself out on the sands of the desert?"

She blushed and laughed. "Would you behave?"

He caught her hand. "With that music in the air—those stars—and you! It would be difficult, Vernon."

Her heart thrilled. She dared to murmur, half below her breath: "What a wonderful place—for a honeymoon!"

He held her hand through a long and throbbing silence. Vernon thought: "He loves me. He feels as I do. Now—he'll speak."

The queer Arab music rose and fell. There was longing in it, and heartbreak.

In Perfect Rhythm

"Could you be happy, Vernon," said the voice beside her, low and vibrant, "could you be really happy, roughing it in the wilds—with someone you loved—leaving all this life behind you?"

"Yes," she breathed softly, so low he barely caught it, "provided I loved him."

She hoped he would say to that: "Do you love me?" At this moment she wanted more than anything in the world to hear it.

But suddenly the lights flared up, and a sun shone in the trick sky on the walls, and the whining, fascinating music of the desert was replaced by the latest thing in jazz.

Couples popped out from behind the sheltering palms. Terry asked Vernon if she would care to dance.

In his arms she was athrill again. He danced easily, effortlessly. They moved in perfect rhythm.

She told him so. So attuned were they, she felt, that Terry—this wonderful Terry—must know every thought in her mind, as she knew his! Every inch of her slim, beautiful body felt vibrant and alive. That was the effect he had upon her. She told herself that it would always be like this.

It was queer that Terry's mood seemed to have changed when they returned to their table. She thought "Have I given myself away? Been too 'easy' with him a second time?"

She steered the conversation to tonight's play: "Mad Marriage." "The third act was awfully disappointing, don't you think?"

"It was psychologically correct." He lit a cigarette for her, puffed at his own and watched the smoke circle. "There aren't many girls with money who would give up all their comforts and settle down happily with a poor man," he added reflectively.

With flushed cheeks Vernon leaned forward "That's cynical of you. What does money matter when two people are head over heels in love?"

"Head-over-heels suggests a dizziness that a woman, when she sets her two feet solidly on the ground, recovers from quickly."

"Not if her head is in the stars! Not if she loves truly."

"But to thinking people, love can be controlled. If one feels oneself getting to the danger point, there are a number of safe courses to pursue."

"I thought you were Sir Galahad—now you talk like Socrates or some stuffy old philosopher." Vernon laughed shrilly.

He smiled at her. There was something whimsical in his smile. "Why not liken me to that other ancient Greek philosopher—the one who tried to extract the maximum of sweetness from each flying minute?"

"Minutes like this? You enjoy them for the time being, and then wisely forget all about them, like a canny bachelor. Is that it?"

It was spoken like a challenge. What would Terry say in answer to it?

It's a Blue Autumn

BLUE TONES to be seen this winter range from a new light blue called "Arctic" to a midnight hue next door to black.

There is a spruce blue which is really a blue-gray-green, and which is taking the town by storm. You'll see it in the new fuzzy woolens and tweeds.

There is the renaissance blue, which has the vibrant quality of the paintings of the old Italian masters.

And there are the softer, grayed blues, which combine perfectly with the other best-bets of the color season—wine, oxblood, rust and ginger.

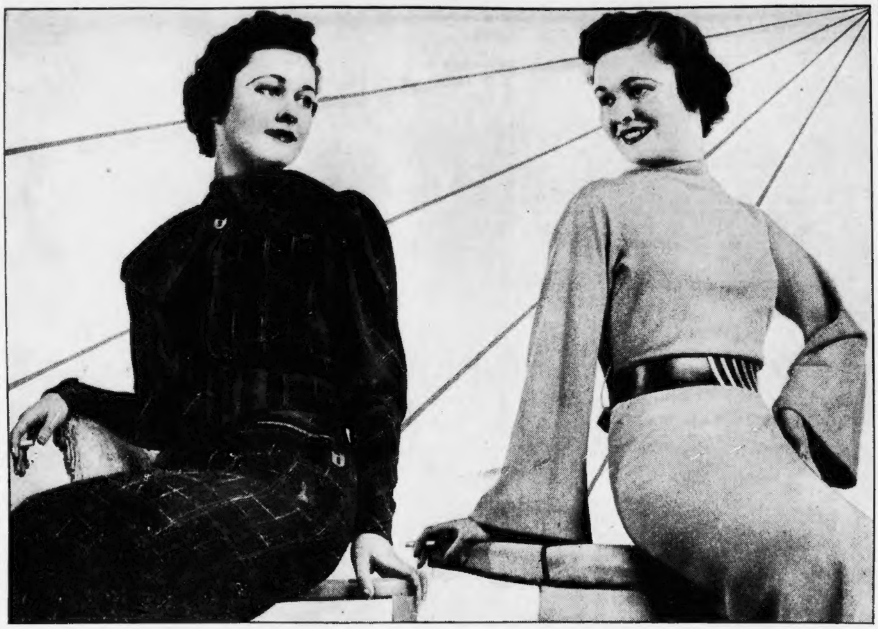
Sports Frocks Adopt Novel Touches



By ANNICE BRINK

TINY GREEN LOCKS run a green composition zipper along the pocket and down the bodice front of a sports frock of green light wool with a "flecked" plaid pattern (left). The tie may be worn ascot, or spread apart to show the top lock, as in the photograph. Note the gathered sleeve-tops. Football weather tweed and fur coats need just such cheery companions. Miss Barbara Field of Chestnut Hill models both budget wool frocks for us.

PERHAPS YOU'VE never dreamed that wool could give a sleek effect—but it does in this pale grey sports frock of wool mixed with rabbit's hair. The sleeves and neckline are dramatic, and by their very simplicity they emphasize the back interest—for there are concentrated red buttons and the buckle of the red and silver kid belt. To be had in other yummy, pale shades that are so effective with dark furs. For shopping information, phone Annice Brink, Fashion Editor, LIBerty 4000, or write her.

Leavening Aids Baking Action

The success of baking, as every housewife knows, depends on getting the proper leavening action. Food chemists and cooking authorities are generally agreed that ideal results in baking cakes, biscuits and other hot breads are obtained when two-thirds of the leavening strength is released in the mixing of the dough and one-third in the oven.

To guard against failures and to insure leavening in the ideal proportions of two-thirds in the dough or batter—one-third in the oven, no less than 52 separate laboratory tests are made in the manufacture of Rumford all-phosphate Baking Powder.

Dextrose Adds To Candy Value

Especial care should be used in the selection of candy for children, not only from the standpoint of purity, but to make sure that the sweet flavor is obtained from the proper type of sugar.

Viva, a new candy bar, a product of Edgar P. Lewis & Sons, Inc., Malden, meeets these requirements by having Dextrose, nature's own sugar, as an ingredient.

Children Like Vanilla

When children become finicky about drinking the necessary amount of milk, a drop of vanilla in a glassful will usually result in a demand for a second helping. For this purpose, and for flavoring in cooking, Burnett's Vanilla has long been the preference of skilled cooks.

MARSHMALLOW FLUFF WHIPPED CREAM

1 jar heavy cream

1-3 large can Durkee-Mower Marshmallow Fluff

Beat the cream slightly and then beat in the Durkeen-Mower Marshmallow Fluff until you have a smooth even blend. Pile this lightly between the layers and on the top of the cake.

New England Products

Preferred in Boston

The average Bostonian, not familiar with the agricultural statistics of New England States, hardly realizes the diversity and quality of foodstuffs available almost next door, as it were.

But experts, who buy for First National Stores, are fully acquainted with these resources, and whenever possible make their purchases in New England.

In addition to the local farms, which supply many of the stores in various communities, huge shipments of products come to the First National warehouse in Somerville, from the famed potato fields of Maine, the fruit orchids of New Hampshire, the maple groves of Vermont, the truck farms of Massachusetts and from various New England poultry farms.

It is obvious that this policy is a valuable aid to agricultural interests in these states and a contribution to general prosperity. This policy is due to the fact that the organization was established in New England and confines its activities to this section.

Cranberries HAVE GREAT VALUE as Food

A well-known food authority points out that although cranberries have been in use since colonial days, many do not realize fully the food value they possess.

Cranberries are inexpensive and delicious, they stimulate the appetite and aid digestion.

Rich acid, sugar, lime, iron and vitamines are contained in these little red berries.

New Englanders are fortunate in having supplies so close at hand, tremendous quantities of the succulent fruit being prepared in sauces, jellies and cocktails by Cranberry Canners, Inc., producers of Ocean Spray products.

CRANBERRY MUFFINS

2 cups flour
4 teaspoonfuls baking powder
½ teaspoonful shortening
Salt, one egg
½ can cranberry sauce

Cut sauce into cubes the size of dice; bake in gem pan in a quick oven.

Meat Sauce Made From Left-Overs

Here is an economical meat sauce for spaghetti, made from leftover cold roast—so delicious it will make you famous!

MEAT SAUCE

Melt in a large, dep frying pan four tablespoons drippings with 2 tablespoons Gulden's Prepared Mustard. Add 1 onion, finely cut and 1½ cups left-over cold roast, finely cut 1½ cups left-over cold roast, finely ground. Brown slowly stirirng ocasionally (to be sure the fine, subtle blend). Then add small can of Tomato Paste with sufficient water to make 3 cups liquid in all. Stir in ½ cup celery (leaves cut fine and ½ cup of any left-over vegetables you may have on hand (peas, green beans, etc.), though this may be omitted. Simmer slowly until all ingredients are coked into a well blended sauce of unforgetable flavor!

Flowers Bring Charm to Home

Girls have often been compared to flowers, but, looking at a vase of roses, Henry Penn can compare the flowers to different types of girls. In one single bowl there are several types—the shy, the retiring, the alert, the feminine, etc.

The idea that flowers need be expensive is all wrong. One or two roses in a vase or floating in a low bowl on the table make an exquisite centerpiece.

Mayonnaise

Yolks of 2 eggs
1 cup olive oil
3 tablespoons vinegar (or lemon juice)
½ teaspoon Rumford Baking Powder
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon mustard
¼ teaspoon sugar
A dash of cayenne

Mix sugar and seasonings. Add egg yolks and beat. Add the olive oil drop by drop beating continually. Add the lemon juice (or vinegar) and baking powder.

ADVICE on LOVE and MARRIAGE by BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A Strange Domestic Situation

Dear Miss Fairfax:

For nearly a year I've been going with girl, and we are engaged to be married in the near future.

Her parents heard of our engagement, and prevented us from seeing each other, but we have been meeting on the sly.

We're planning to go ahead with our marriage, in spite of parental objection.

Her father has made the amazing statement that he has nothing against me, but because of his daughter's behavior at home he will not give his consent to our marriage. She is a little under legal age.

Do you think it is right to try and break up a couple as devotedly in love as we are?

ANXIOUS YOUNG MAN

It is impossible to give you any satisfactory advice unless you tell me more about the parents' objections to their daughter's marriage. It is their duty to be absolutely frank with you about this, and I hope you will not marry this young lady secretly without knowing the parents' reason for their refusal.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

We've had lunch in the same place for ever so long, and feel that we know each other pretty well. Now I know he is going to invite me out, and I'd like to go, but am dubious. Would I be taking an awful risk if I just went to the movies with him? Or is a chance acquaintance too uncertain to trust?

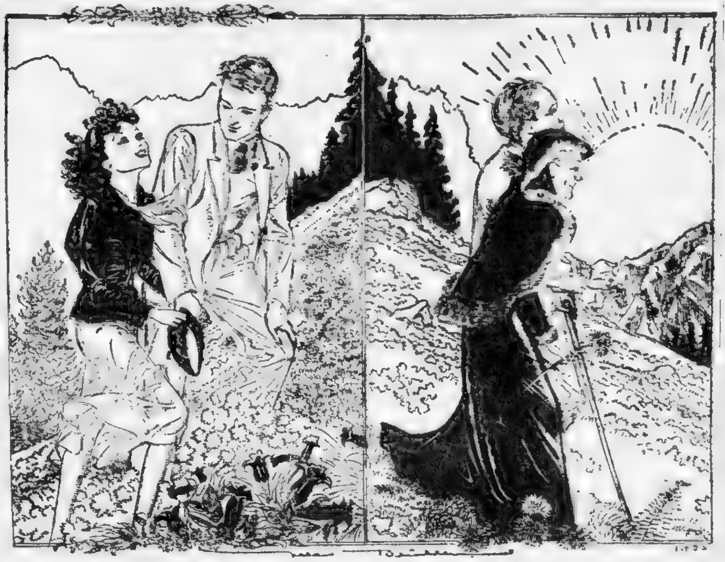
FLOSSIE

As you've been having lunch in the same place for ever so long, it seems harmless enough to accept an invitation to the movies. But don't you know anybody who is acquainted with this young man, and who can give you a line about him?

Until you know a little more about him, better not go out on long motor rides or accept invitations that are risky.

'Go On With the Story From Here'

By Nell Brinkley



Now we bid good by to "Bob" and "Babs": and you do NOT go on with the story from here. Not that Bob and Babs have stopped going on, or that anything has happened to them, any more than it is the end of things for thousands of Bobs and Babses, when they grow old! Many people are their happiest when the children have grown, and there is time to think and talk and read with one another.

Babs remembers the sweet old verse that "Robbie" Burns wrote and is glad that her life has gone in ever smooth, happy lines that lead to a really happy old age—with the one with whom she [illegible] her love-story.

Frost-Bite and Chilblains Are in Offing

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

WHEN THE weather begins to get cold my mail is filled with inquiries about frost-bite and chilblains.

Often the writers of such letters confuse frost-bite and chilblains. As a matter of fact, these two conditions are quite different.

It is true the condition known as chilblains is caused by exposure to cold, but to have it, it is not necessary to be exposed to severe and freezing weather, as is the case with frost-bite. The former is in reality a disturbance of the nerves and small blood vessels of the affected part. As a rule the symptoms do not appear until a day or two after exposure to the cold.

Some persons are extremely susceptible to chilblains. The ailment is especially common among children. In adults it rarely occurs after middle age. So if you suffer from chilblains you may at least comfort yourself with the thought you are still young!

The victim complains of pain and shows discoloration of the heel, foot or leg. There is likely to be marked swelling of the involved part. Sometimes the pain is so severe as to require an opiate.

Frost-bite is quite a different condition. It occurs as a result of undue exposure to freezing weather. Mild frost-bite causes the skin to become a bright red and perhaps to blister. In a more severe case, the skin becomes pale, stiff and even brittle.

Frost-bite of feet, fingers, nose or other portions of the body is a common accident of winter. In most cases it is due to carelessness of the cold and failure to guard against it. Exposure to extreme cold is serious and often has produced [illegible]. Of course, [illegible] we [illegible] probably [illegible].

The victim of frost-bite becomes numb in his [illegible]. In a severe case he may be unable to move or walk. A drowsiness soon overtakes him and unless rescued he falls unconscious. Then, of course, he is in danger of general freezing.

Never apply heat in a case of frost-bite. The frost-bitten parts should be gently rubbed. Apply cold compresses to the skin if the materials are available. It is a splendid plan if there is snow, gently to massage the skin with it.

Sudden change from cold outdoors to warm quarters is dangerous for the frost-bitten person. There should be a gradual adjustment of temperature. After this, stimulants and other internal medications must be considered. A soothing ointment may be applied to the inflamed skin.

In treating chilblains every effort must be made to stimulate and improve the circulation. Painting the skin with a mixture of tannic acid and camphor is beneficial.

Curls Are In, Ears Are Out

THE PET coiffure of the season, especially for gay young things, is a short bob parted demurely in the middle, the hair smooth over the crown of the head and curled up in alluring ringlets all the way around.

You may have a curl on your forehead, or even a bang, to show off the new halo hats to their best advantage.

And for evening you may twine silver, gold and platinum corkscrew curls in your tresses.

Your ears may show, too. In fact, they should.

And in back, instead of the biscuit roll of the last few seasons, you will have a smooth, natural hairline.

The halo braid may be used for evening, along with the other devices for elaborate formal hairdress, to keep up with the elegance of the mode.

But the wise ones have found that the simple youthful style of short haircut adapts itself best to the eccentricities of the mode, looking young and casual in the daytime, and providing a working background for the flowers, fruits and foliage you will wear in your hair after dark.

CHAPTER 480

THE OLD, sonorous words "My heart leaped within me" were the only words which could express my relief and my gratitude when Dicky added his plainly sincere support to the assurance which Lillian was giving to Hugh that he was utterly mistaken in his self-incriminations because of his belief that Lee Chow had instigated the attack upon Dicky.

My gratitude was Dicky's for his prompt and gracious assurance to Hugh.

But my relief was [illegible] I could think of many [illegible] things than Dicky's [illegible] if this fantastic [illegible] of Hugh's for an imaginary wrong done us had [illegible] so thoroughly exploded by Lillian's common sense.

But Hugh was not yet done with us. He put up his hand and clasped Dicky's.

"Tell -- your -- wife -- to come here," he said.

Finally, as if he were saying the most commonplace thing in the world, Dicky looked over [illegible].

"Come over here, Madge, please," he said. "Hugh wants you."

With my throat suddenly dry I crossed to his side. Hugh looked up.

"Will you [illegible] take my hand?" he said.

A BIZARRE SITUATION

If I could have turned and dashed out of the room, I would have done so. Anything more unlike the poised, repressed Hugh Grantland than this fantastic bit of sentiment pathos his ordinary [illegible] would have dubbed [illegible] could not be imagined. He either must have been in imminent danger of death or else the powerful stimulants which Dr. Braithwaite had given him must have temporarily affected his mind.

I did not dare look at Dicky, but I waited for his answer before speaking or giving my hand to Hugh.

My husband was promptness itself, however. With one hand already clasped in Hugh's he turned and caught mine.

"Come closer," he said in low tones, and then he brought my hand down to rest with his upon Hugh's.

"I want you both to know," Hugh said at last, speaking with great effort, "that I am going out of your life, never to trouble you again."

"No, Hugh! No!"

The words escaped me without my meaning to utter them. I felt Dicky's hand stiffen ever so [illegible]ably, and then relax, but Hugh's was quite [illegible] stupid.

Lillian's voice, sane and breezy, saved the moment for us all.

"Hugh doesn't mean that he's going out of the world under his own power," she went on half teasingly, half anxiously. "I don't [illegible]

[illegible]

BACK TO CHINA

"Oh," I [illegible] "Please forgive my clumsiness. I wouldn't hurt you for [illegible]."

"It is I who should [illegible] sound [illegible] better."

Taking [illegible] for [illegible] Dicky said with an odd [illegible] I must [illegible] not keep you talking and wear you out. Can't you tell us whatever is on your mind another time?"

Extra Fat Is Melted Away

By ARLINE GOULD

IS FAT A serious consideration in your life these days?

If it is, and you would like to eliminate some extra pounds — or quite possibly, redistribute your weight—there's a Boston salon where all this is possible.

Not only does fat come off, but your circulation is set frisking, muscles are brought under control, posture is corrected—in short you are made into an irresistible creature, young again in spirit and body.

Abundant health and freedom from fatigue are [illegible] these days as satisfy [illegible] slimness. Those extra pounds which you have been [illegible] are as much a menace to [illegible] disposition as they are to [illegible] figure.

By means of a new wax reducing bath, a shadow graph [illegible] and set of ingenious exercises, wayward curves and bulges [illegible] miraculously transformed [illegible] smart and flattering lines.

If you want to get rid of the extra fat [illegible] your hips and th[illegible] accumulated "fatty [illegible]" back has taken on [illegible] hump, they can be [illegible] into lovely proportions.

For the woman whose problem is a too-heavy bust, the wax bath will do wonders. But although this bath is [illegible] treatment, it is really far more than that.

It is so relaxing and cleansing that it seems to reach down to the very roots of your nerves [illegible] tone. You are [illegible] ring.

If your system is charged with acid, and you feel the little aches and pains that come from accumulated [illegible] then you are [illegible] treatment to flush out [illegible] and give your whole body new tone.

We are very fussy ABOUT MEAT

WE have quite a reputation down in the meat-raising country—a reputation for being the fussiest meat buyers in the country. We are not content with simply going through the usual meat inspection or government inspection—we must know how the raisers feed their steers, how they ship them, how the beef is dressed and cut—and, if it all is not done exactly according to our high standards, it is not accepted.

It costs money to be fussy, but we buy meat for several million families and we can't afford to make a single compromise with quality.

Anita Lane Weds Chief Usher At Her Presentation Party

By BETTY ALDEN

THERE'S AN OLD LEGEND that Dan Cupid has gotten in some of his best work as the maid of honor and the best man gaze across the aisle at each other during a wedding ceremony, and thereby starts another romance . . .

But nothing has been said about a deb falling in love with the head usher at her coming out party and even though Anita Lane has been a bridesmaid on several occasions, she is just the sort of unconventional deb who would establish a precedent of her own . . . Although very attractive and popular she wasn't just a social butterfly and, soon after her coming out party two years ago this November, we began to see Anita working behind the hat counter at a Tremont street shop, or crooning a plaintive melody before a throng of dancers at a charity ball or scurrying around seeking publicity for one or another of several worthy benefits . . .

MRS. HAUTHAWAY MABBETT

Always in the background has been her shadow, that head usher, Hauthaway Mabbett, who wooed her for two years until he finally won her heart and hand on Tuesday . . . They were married at noon in her mother's drawing room in the presence of their immediate families and a few friends . . .

Anita was given in marriage by her uncle, E. Gordon Lane, and her sister, Barbara Lane, was her maid of honor . . . She wore a travelling suit of black velvet trimmed with mink, a silver lame blouse and a small black hat . . .

The bride's mother, Mrs. Arthur Binney Lane, wore a galyak cape over her black wool gown and Mrs. George MacKay the bridegroom's mother, was gowned in black velvet with brocaded silver tunic and black hat . . .

George H. MacKay, Jr., of Brookline was best man and Rev. Frank O. Holmes of the First Unitarian Church in Jamaica Plain performed the ceremony . . .

After a wedding breakfast Mr. Mabbett and his bride left by motor for an extended trip to Florida, Cuba and South America . . .

Tea to Open Portrait Display

THE PRIVATE VIEW and tea at the Vose galleries next Monday afternoon at three o'clock will attract a very fashable crowd of art lovers, since the portraits beginning their three weeks exhibit at the Vose are the works of Catherine Richardson, granddaughter of Henry H. Richardson, designer of Trinity Church in Copley Square, and daughter of Philip Richardson . . .

Several of her subjects are noted Bostonians, including Mrs. George R. Fearing, 3d, J. Austin Amory, Mrs. Donald Starr, Mrs. Lawrence Coolidge and Randolph Morgan . . .

Mrs. Starr will be one of the pourers, as will Miss Jeanne Richardson, sister of the painter; Miss Margery Richardson, her cousin; and Mrs. Constantine Hutchins, Mrs. Henry de Ford, Mrs. Henry G. Nickerson, Mrs. William G. Nickerson and Mrs. Robert Hillyer . . .

Patronesses for this greatly anticipated exhibition are Mrs. M. Graeme Haughton, Miss Alison Haughton, Mrs. Henry F. Hunnewell, Mrs. Daniel Fiske Jones, Mrs. Guy Lowell, Mrs. William J. Nickerson, Mrs. Philip Saltonstall, Mrs. Quincy Adams Shaw, Mrs. Ward Thoron, Mrs. Samuel D. Warren, Mrs. Edward Brandegee, Mrs. Gorham Brooks, Mrs. Stephen Van R. Crosby, Mrs. John Wells Farley and Mrs. Louis Frothingham . . .

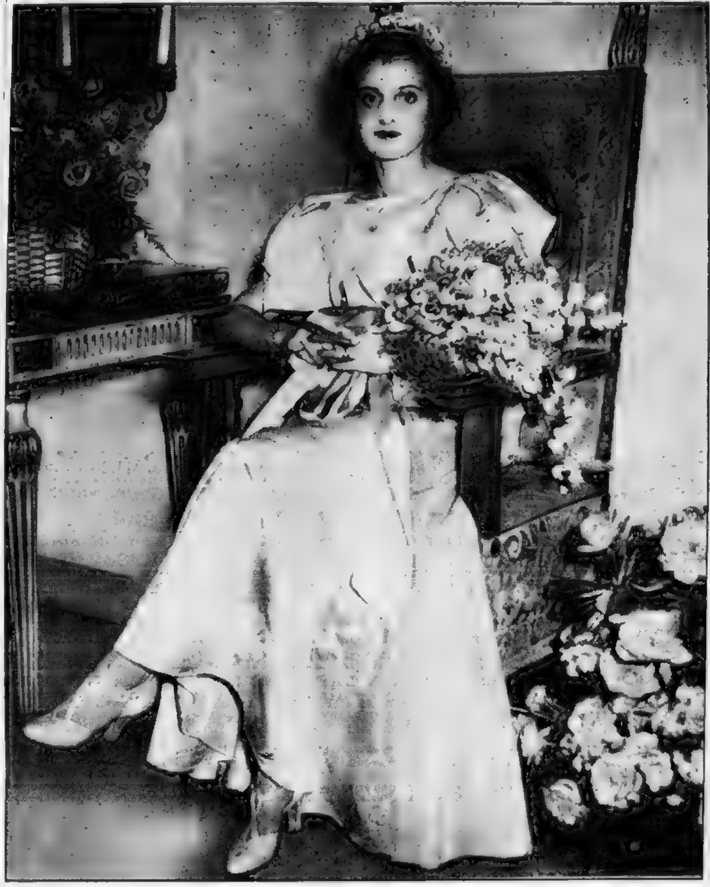
The Sam Batchelders have been rejoicing in the unseasonable weather on the North Shore which gives them a chance to prolong the golf and riding season, and they even gave an al fresco luncheon Sunday for their North Shore neighbors and sweet music supplied with each course by the boys in the Salem Cadet Band . . .

VIRGINIA PHELAN MAKES DEBUT AT NORTH SHORE TEA DANCE



(P[illegible] f[illegible]m Inter[illegible]al News Ph[illegible]graph Service)

VIRGINIA PHELAN, daughter of Mrs. James J. Phelan of Brookline and Manchester-by-the-Sea, and the late Mr. Phelan, a prominent Boston banker, as she made her formal debut yesterday afternoon at a tea dance at Ledgewood, the Phelans estate on the North Shore. Miss Phelan wore a renaissance gold moire frock with a plain bodice, full skirt, ankle length in front and swinging into a short circular train in back. Many of the season's debs attended.

SIR PETER NORTON-GRIFFITHS and his bride, the former Kathryn Schrafft of Newton, who who were married a week ago, spent a few days at the Ambassador Hotel in New York before leaving by airplane for Mexico, where they will continue their honeymoon trip. Later they will return to make their home in New York.

Debuts on November Calendar

THE first weeks in November are practically solid with debutante dates.

From the first when Miss Anne L. Clarke daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. Haven Clarke of Gloucester street, makes her official bow to society, until the ninth almost every day will mark the presentation of not one but several debs

On Saturday, November 2, Mr and Mrs. George Lincoln Dow of Cambridge are giving a tea dance at the Cambridge Boat Club for their daughter Dorothy. Some of the most attractive of Boston's crop of debs and several from out of town will act as pourers at this party, Miss Martha Snow who will make her debut in Providence just before Christmas, Miss Jean Pratt of Rochester, N. Y., and Miss Constance Huntington of Hartford, Conn. will assist at the tea tables. Miss Pratt and Miss Snow will be house guests at the Dow home on Brattle street.

Other pourers will be Miss Mark Byron, Miss Olivia Stone, Miss Peggy Macumber, Miss Dorothy MacAusland, Miss Lewis Watson, Miss Phyllis Motley, Miss Frances Lowell, Miss Nancy Ames, Miss Elizabeth Titcomb, Miss Elizabeth Marion, Miss Nancy Wellington, Miss Peggy Wright, Miss Jane Holcombe and Miss Janet Eustis.

Miss Cherry Shaw, a New York debutante, will be the house guest of Miss Joan Sagendorph later in November. Miss Sagendorph will share honors at a dance at The Country Club with Miss Edith Lewis and Miss Margaret Torbert.

Mrs. Bradley Hostess at Welham

A capacity audience of friends and members of the Birth Control League of Massachusetts, crowded the spacious drawing room at Welham, Mrs Gardner Bradley's home in Wellesley, yesterday afternoon to witness a series of dramatic sketches illustrating the work of the League.

The scenes were entitled "A Day in the League Office" and showed various types of women who come to tell their pitiful stories to the secretary of the league who referred them to physicians.

The parts of the patients were played by Mrs. Donald Watson of Milton; Mrs. Jesse Doyle of Weston; Mrs. Mortimer A. Seabury, Miss Eleanor Colburn, and Mrs. Beverly V. Hopper all of Boston.

Miss Caroline L. Carter appeared as herself at the office and Mrs. Mary M. White, secretary of the Mother's Health Office, also appeared as herself

Mrs. Leslie D. Hawkridge, president of the League, spoke of the significance and value of the work, and Mrs. Richard L. Bowditch made an appeal for membership.

Among those in the audience were Mrs F. Murray Forbes and Mrs. F. Murray Forbes, Jr., Mrs. Richard Olney, Jr., of Wellesley, Mrs. James A. Hutchinson of West Newton, Mrs. Thomas D. Cabot of Weston, Mrs. Kennard Woodworth of Charles River, Mrs. Walter Manning of Dover, Mrs. H. Richardson Lane, Mrs. Edith M. "Prisoner of The OGPU"

By GEORGE KITCHEN

CHAPTER 32

"In the name of the commander of the camps, I order you to go to the office at once. Another word and I'll arrest you."

In exasperation the doctor pulled off his smock and quickly walked toward his office. Several guards lifted the dead body. The last column of prisoners left the yard. The women scattered to their various jobs.

"Let us go in and sign the report," Zakhariantz said to me.

We went into the office. The doctor sat at the window, leaning against a desk. His face had a petrified expression and he was gazing into space, not noticing anybody.

"If you please, doctor," said Zakhariantz, pulling out a sheet of paper and starting to read it.

The drunken orgy of the night before had left its mark. His voice was hoarse, his eyes dull and his skin flabby: they all testified to the amount of alcohol consumed.

The report described the excellent fulfillment of the plan by the Pitsky base, the satisfactory condition of the prisoners, gave reasons for the temporary increase of illness, reported a normal percentage of mortality, praised the condition of the horses, and gave credit for all this excellent record to the commander of the base, Aaronovich, and to his faithful assistant Sergeyev, commander of the armed guards.

"Sign this, doctor," said Zakhariantz.

"No, I shall not sign this report," calmly replied the doctor. "I shall write myself to the head of the sanitation department of the camp administration, and describe the deplorable condition of the prisoners at the base.

"I am entrusted with an inspection of the base and of the outposts, and I shall finish my job. Good-bye."

Officer Defied

Not waiting for any reply the doctor went out of the office. Zakhariantz looked after him and frowned, then shrugged his shoulders, smiled and, mumbling something to himself, turned to me.

"You will sign here," he said.

I refused. "No, I would not sign the report," I said. I did not examine the sick, I did not take part in the investigation of the fulfillment of the plan, all of this is outside of my jurisdiction, therefore I could not sign the report.

I had no right to do it. I have made a report on the condition of accounts, here it is, and here is the copy of it. It can be attached to the general report.

My refusal was unexpected. Not one of the members of our commission wished to sign the report. It was an unpleasant situation, to say the least.

"Look here," said Zakhariantz pointedly. "I advise you to sign the report. You were present last night when I talked with the doctor. Well then, please note that all I said then also refers to you. You may sign with reservations, but sign you must."

I repeated my refusals.

"Very well, then. We shall leave here in 15 minutes. Please get ready," said Zakhariantz sourly.

In half an hour our horse was ready for us. Aaronovich saw us off to the sleigh and was telling Zakhariantz a funny story and slapping him on the back. They both laughed and looked at each other with cordial understanding. They had already become bosom friends. Sergeyev saluted us, the sentry covered up our feet, and we started off.

Two hours passed in silence, interrupted only by our driver's outcries and yapping, and now and then by the clang of horseshoes.

Try to Finish

I could not understand the purpose of our investigation. If it was intended to obtain the signatures of two prisoners to a mock report, they had made a bad choice. It was easy to find any number of accommodating prisoners without leaving the Transfer Station.

The administration was well informed through the report of Dr Movsh of the actual state of affairs at the Pitsky base. So what was the need of an "investigation?" I pondered on this problem without finding an answer.

At that time I did not know that Dr. Movsh's report had never reached the administration and that the commission was appointer in compliance with a demand from Moscow where a few finicky Communists had shown an undue interest in conditions prevailing at the penal camps of the OGPU.

"You sentenced to four years, are you not? suddenly inquired Zakhariantz. I confirmed this.

"There, you see how imprudent you are. You are barely throuh with half your term and already you do not hesitate to make enemies. Your affair with Ulanovsky, for instance, what good did it do you?

"You should make every effort to finish your term as soon as possible, even to have it shortened, and get back home. Instead of throwing monkey wrenches into our machinery, you ought to cultivate friendship with us chekists.

"Otherwise you will gain nothing except a longer term. Take the doctor, for example. After today's incident we shall surely send him somewhere to the farthest corners of the North, to Ukhta, or still farther, and let him play cricket there with the polar bears.

"But why should you do such a thing? Why play with fire? Why don't you wish to sign the report?"

I understood what he was driving at. He continued after a short pause.

"Isn't it immaterial to you how many people fold up as long as you remain well yourself? There is no room for sentimentality here. This is no democracy. It is the OGPU penal camp.

"If you do not sit on others, you will be sat on and crushed, and will fold up like a worm. Does it pay? Consider it a bit; is it better to work in the EKO office or in the forest?

"And you are exposing yourself to the risk of being transferred to the Pitsky base or to another camp fully as vile as that. Will you never understand that we are not to be trifled with?

"Use your brains a little before it is too late. You seem to have a good head on your shoulders; it was surely not put there merely to wear a hat."

After this long oration, he pulled out a bottle of diluted alcohol from his brief-case, took a gulp and followed it up with a handful of snow.

"Here, take it," he said, passing the bottle. "Have a drink with me."

"With pleasure," I said, surreptitiously rinsing the throat of the bottle with alcohol and taking a couple of swallows. The solution was very strong and burned the palate.

"Don't be backward, we'll get some more of it," said Zakhariantz, happy to have found a boon companion.

He was content, the ice was broken and opened the way to closer relationship.

"It is too bad that you did not have supper with us last night," he said. "This Aaronovich is a capital fellow and his Lizzie is a ducky.

"Jealousy is a silly bourgeois fad. We Communists have no such prejudices. Take Aaronovich, for instance. He shared with me what he had like a good comrade.

"One of your kind would have made a terrible row about a woman. And what is there to a woman? Is she worth fighting about?

8897 IN STATE OWN STOCK IN NEW HAVEN

Massachusetts investors are large owners of the common and preferred stocks of the half billion dollar New Haven railroad which seeks to reorganize under the federal bankruptcy laws, according to figures available in the financial district today.

A total of 424,636 shares of common stock are held by 6,060 individuals and corporations, while preferred stockholders in the Bay State number 2,837 and own 111,452 shares.

At today's quotations the holdings of the common stock in Massachusetts, representing 27 per cent of the total issued by the road, had a value of $1,114,669 and the preferred stock holdings representing nearly 23 per cent of the total outstanding were worth $640,749.

BANKS AMONG OWNERS

The report of the Massachusetts bank commissioner for the year ended Oct. 31, 1934, showed that 193 savings banks of the state held bonds in the New Haven system having a par value of $29,500,000.

These bank holdings include substantial amounts of the bonds of subsidiary or leased lines which will not be materially affected by a capital readjustment, in the opinion of financial observers.

Among the largest holders of New Haven common stock as of Dec. 31, 1934, were:

Pensylvania Railroad	319,923
Pennroad Corporation	148,800
Charles Pratt & Co.	15,600
Kidder Peabody	10,993
Evans Stillman & Co.	4,700
Godfrey L. Cabot	10,000
Sigler & Co.	6,200
Hornblower & Weeks	9,180

STAND PROVES SURPRISE

Failure of the Pennsylvania Railroad to intervene in the New Haven financial crisis, despite its important holdings, came as somewhat as a surprise.

The Pennsylvania now occupies the unenviable position of having an interest in more bankrupt roads than any other carrier.

In addition to the New Haven, in which its stock interest is about 17½ per cent, Pennsylvania has the Seaboard and Wabash on its hands.

That the management of the New Haven hopes to avoid a drastic reorganization was seen in reports that the full six months allowed for filing of a new capital setup under the bankruptcy law would be taken.

Los Angeles, Oct. 24—Over at Radio studios young Mark Sandrich is one of their most respected directors. With "Gay Divorcee" and "Top Hat" to his credit, that's easily understood. Yesterday, when Mark saw a test of a strikingly beautiful blonde, he wanted to know all about her.

"She's Harriet Hilliard," he was told, "brought here for a part in 'Two O'Clock Courage.'"

"That's what you think," he reported. She's Harriet Hilliard all right, but she is the girl who is going to have the role Irene Dunne won't be able to play in 'Follow the Fleet.'"

Harriet Hilliard

As usual Mark was right. Harriet, who had to rush off to Hollywood after her marriage to Ozzie Nelson, won't play the comparatively unimportant role in "Two O'Clock Courage" but will have the romantic lead opposite Randolph Scott in the new Astaire-Rogers musical.

They weren't fooling over at MGM when they spoke of making Philo Vance a great lover. The best evidence of their sincerity is the selection of Brian Aherne to play the S. S. Van Dine detective who already has been portrayed by William Powell, Paul Lukas and Warren William.

Brian, as the foppish [illegible] smoking crime kibitzer, will do something none of the others have done as Philo: fall in love. Of course I don't know whether he gets the girl yet. You'll have to wait for "The Garden Murder Case" which Bertram Milhauser is adapting and Edwin Marin will direct.

The temptation to pat myself on the back is strong, but in [illegible] I must admit that the fans had no one else are responsible for the selection of Arthur Treacher for "Jeeves." The day after I suggested him for the P. G. Wodehouse character Darryl Zanuck was swamped with letters and wires from movie goers who evidently had the same thought.

So the tall Briton who was brought to America originally by the Shuberts for "The Cat and the Fiddle" will be starred in the screen. The first, "Thank You, Jeeves!" and Sol Wurtzel will produce.

[illegible] in Hollywood. There appears little chance of a wedding for Jean Harlow and William Powell, whose romance has settled into a steady friendship. From their close friends I hear Jean is unwilling to risk matrimony again and prefers the goodfellowship of friends without the hectic hysteria of romance. Bill Powell hasn't been seen with anyone else but Jean, who has made a few appearances in night spots in the company of her "riff raff" director, J. Walter Ruben.

Snapshots of Hollywood

The entire colony turning out in tribute to the grandest of grand people SOPHIE TUCKER, FANNY BRICE, IRVING BERLIN and ANN PENNINGTON glowing with joy over the triumph of their pal, IRVING THALBERG and NORMA SHEARER complimenting SOPHIE; MARGARET SULLAVAN and WILLIE WYLER giving the Rhumba a quick try; MERLE OBERON renting the MERIAN COOPER beach house for the winter; CONSTANCE BENNETT entertaining tomorrow night in honor of her house guests, GLORIA VANDERBILT and LADY THELMA FURNESS. That's all today. See you tomorrow!

NEWMAN CLUB

Host at Dance

Boston University's Newman Club, Catholic group, will hold an informal dance tomorrow evening at the Hotel Brunswick. The committee in charge of the affair includes Chester Carli of Boston, Peggy Cunniff of Brookline, Thomas Gurney of Brookline and Paul Flynn of Brockton.

Concert in Jordan Hall Sunday

The first concert of the season by the Peoples Symphony Orchestra, with Fabian Sevitzky conducting, will be presented Sunday afternoon at Jordan Hall.

One of the features of the opening program will be the performance for the first time in Boston of the Winter Garden Suite by Lieberson, noted Chicago composer.

Another attraction for music lovers on the program will be the appearance of Miss Frances Nash as pianist, playing Chopin's Concerto in E minor. Miss Nash has just returned from a concert tour of the principal cities of Europe. She scored a triumph with the Berlin Philharmonic in her performance of this Concerto.

The program will open with Bach's Brandenburg Concerto No. 3 in G minor, while Beethoven's Eroica Symphony occupies the latter half of the program.

* * *

Lotte Lehmann, one of the most famous of Wagnerian singers in recent years at the Metropolitan Opera, will be the soloist tomorrow at the third concert of the season of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Mme Lehmann will sing songs from Wagner and Strauss.

The orchestral portion of the program, with Dr. Koussevitzky conducting, will include Beethoven's Seventh Symphony and Scriabin's "Poem of Ecstasy."

* * *

Lawrence Tibbett, who will sing at Symphony Hall on Sunday afternoon, November 3, will welcome suggestions from Boston concert patrons as to his program.

Mr Tibbett strongly favors an all English program. He will be glad, however, to receive recommendations at Symphony Hall in advance as to the wishes of his friends.

* * *

Roland Hayes will give a recital in Symphony Hall on November 10.

* * *

The opening concert of the Monday night series of Symphony concerts will be held on October 28 at Symphony Hall. Dr. Koussevitzky will present Beethoven's Third Symphony, Paul Dukas' dance poem, "La Peri," and the Strauss Tone Poem, "Till Eulenspiegel's Merry Pranks."

HOLLAND

RUNYON'S New Musical Will Open Here

By GEORGE HOLLAND

New York, Oct. 24—Damon Runyon's new musical comedy, "Saratoga Chips," is headed for Boston but there are so many ifs and whens punctuating the show's present status that your correspondent cannot share the optimism of the producers that "Saratoga Chips" will open late in November.

George Holland

In the first place, Curtis and Hoagland, the producers, are due for a disappointment in their expectation that Ethel Merman will be available only in event that Vinton Freedley decides not to produce the new Cole Porter-Howard Lindsay musical show this season. Ethel is contracted for that one. The songbird is busy and unhappy in Hollywood.

She would rush back to New York immediately if it were possible, but there are four weeks of work still ahead of her in the Eddie Cantor picture, "Shoot the Chutes."

* * *

Vinton Freedley hopes to open his successor to "Anything Goes" at the Colonial Theater Christmas night. Howard Lindsay struck upon a title, "Wait For Baby!" which is in favor at the moment. Cole Porter has finished two tunes—both hits—, it is claimed—and he is now in Bermuda finishing the score. The libretto has been completed by Mr. Lindsay and his collaborator, Russell Crouse.

But the matter of actors is the hurdle. "Wait for Baby!" (Until another title comes along) was designed for Eddie Cantor. Mr. Cantor will be engaged in Hollywood longer than Miss Merman, for there will be two weeks of re-takes, it is anticipated. So Jack Haley of Boston may play the Cantor role. And Willie Howard has been given a proposition to be co-starred. I am told that he has accepted.

* * *

I am told also that Mr. Howard has agreed to play the leading comic role in "Saratoga Chips." Both assurances came from the producing offices of the respective shows.

* * *

A patrol of the Long Lane last night satisfied this observer that there are exactly and only four sell-outs in the town. "The Taming of the Shrew" is one, and the other three are the musical shows that played Boston prior to Broadway, "At Home Abroad," "Jubilee" and "Porgy and Bess."

Gayety's Bill

The bill at the Gayety features Jack Fauer, who presents some of the recent winners in the Major Bowes and Fred Allen radio auditions in person.

Crawford Film on 2 Bills

"I Live My Life," latest starring picture for the glamorous Joan Crawford, now Mrs. Franchot Tone, opens tomorrow at Loew's State and Orpheum.

Brian Aherne has the leading role with Miss Crawford in her latest picture, which is based on a short magazine story called "Claustrophobia," by A. Carter Goodloe.

The star is once more a spoiled Park avenue debutante, who falls in love with a serious-minded archaeologist.

The excellent supporting cast includes Frank Morgan, Aline MacMahon, Fred Keating, and those amusing screen butlers, Eric Blore and Arthur Treacher.

The same program at the Loew theaters also offers "Pursuit," a comedy romance, starring Chester Morris and Sally Eilers. Other participants are C. Henry Gordon, Dorothy Peterson and Minor Watson.

* * *

Guy Lombardo and his Royal Canadians head the stage show opening at the Metropolitan tomorrow, while the screen attraction is "The Last Outpost," dramatic story of the Orient, with Cary Grant, Claude Rains and Gertrude Michael heading the cast.

The sun-baked deserts of Africa provide the background for the film romance, which is billed as a sequel to the thrilling "Lives of a Bengal Lancer."

Kathleen Burke, Colin Tapely, and Margaret Swope are in the supporting cast

The Lombardos, with their "sweetest music this side of heaven," head a brilliant company of radio and musical comedy favorites on the stage.

Featured stars are the famous Ritz Brothers, collegiate comedy stars of screen and stage; Mario and Florio, society's dancing favorites; and the Elida Ballet in a colorful and sparkling revue.

Fabien Sevitzky and the Grand Orchestra will present another in the series of musical impressions.

The entire seating capacity of the Majestic for the opening night of Max Reinhardt's production of Shakespeare's "A Midsummer Night's Dream" on November 8, has been sold out for the benefit of the Boston Esplanade Concert Fund.

Four Kings

The Four Lombardos, Victor, Lebert, Carmen and Guy, bring the Royal Canadians to the stage of the Metropolitan tomorrow.

All Lost and Found ads are broadcast daily at 10:55 A. M., from Station WCOP at the Copley Plaza, at no additional cost to advertiser.

Superb Is Fine Arts Feature

By HARRIS MORGAN

If all films possessed the integrity, the fineness of concept with which "Maria Chapdelaine," this week's film at the Fine Arts Theater, has been put together, reviewing would be child's play.

It would be then only a matter of marshalling one's very best superlatives, putting them in the typographical crucible, and pouring them generously over the heads of all who had a hand in giving this absorbing, gripping film fare to the public.

The new film has been adapted from the novel of the same name by Louis Hemon. A magnificent novel to start with, this corner is not at all sure that the film hasn't surpassed even it.

Maria, the flaxen haired girl of Canada's hinterland, with her three suitors: the weak-mouthed city boy, the muscular kindly dolt who lives in the adjoining house, and the adventurous Francois Paradis who is stricken down by the storm even as he fights his way to her, has been given a matchless interpretation by Mlle. Madeleine Renaud.

Not an alluring woman, not even a pretty one, Mlle. Renaud has mysterious radiance, that curious quality of feyness, which, in this opinion, makes her stand head and frail shoulders above more decorative contemporaries. She is, if you will excuse the inelegance of enthusiasm, immense.

All we can say for the rest of the cast is that it is quite perfect, every member without exception.

If there is a more absorbing sequence in pictures than the Christmas night when Maria lies praying for the return of Francois; her mother, sleepless for the desire of the beauty of mass in the church at snow-bound Pirabonka; the clod in the next house, pouring out his longing for Maria to the Virgin; the city boy in Quebec, bored with his night club; and Francois' fighting through the storm, stalked by snow-slimed wolves—if there is anything more telling than this, we will eat our critical hat.

Not a voice is raised in this film, nary an emotional storm; yet it sinks its teeth into you. It must be seen.

Plays

The Children's Theater of New York, under the sponsorship of the Boston University Women's Council, opens a series of six plays at Jordan Hall on Saturday morning November 2.

Clare Tree Major is founder and director of the Children's Theater a group of adult, professional players whose aim is to provide a real theater for young people.

U. S. 'RAW DEAL' DOOMED, GAY TELLS C. OF C.

A program of economic planning such as the Roosevelt "Raw Deal" might provide for Denmark, or other small compact countries is doomed to failure from the beginning in the UnUited States, Charles R. Gay, president of the New York Stock Exchange, today told members of the Boston Chamber of Commerce.

"Our American economic system needs, more than anything else, a long rest from interference," he said. "Recovery and prosperity are on the way, but they can be retarded if experiments and interference and regimentation hamstring them at every step."

"There has never been a mind capable of planning an economic system like ours.

"Any program that undertakes artificially to control prices, wages, production, markets, savings, investment and interest in this nation of 130,000,000 people is doomed to failure from the beginning.

"Within very narrow limits, a small degree of economic planning may be feasible in a small and compact nation like Denmark.

"Back at the beginning of our own country what looked like a magnificent economic policy in land ownership ended in the dismal depression of 1837.

"What looked like a temporary change in financial policy in 1862 ended in a furious flood of paper money inflation.

"So in our time a processing tax, however fine its intentions, may kill a textile industry. A debasement or adulteration of the currency—however well intended—may result in the destruction of the savings of a nation.

"A securities act, if not intelligently administered, may so frighten investment that it retards recovery. A program of recovery by statute, however noble its aims, may so restrict production and so discourage enterprise that recovery is halted.

MALDEN HEALTH ABATEMENTS START ROW

Charging that the Malden Board of Health had issued abatements amounting to thousands of dollars annually, Councilman Leonard S. Canty of Malden today sought an investigation by the City Council.

Only two city departments, Canty declared, made abatements, the assessors and the Board of Health. The assessors have specific forms on which applications for abatements are filled out; the Board of Health keeps no such records or makes any investigation, he said.

Canty charges that city records showed abatements over a period of years as follows: 1931, $9896; 1932, $4737; 1933, $2662; 1934, $6898 and the first four months of 1935, $4040.

When such abatements are made, Canty declared, the taxpayers have to foot the bills. The abatements were made for cases handled at the Malden Contagious Hospital.

Canty's charges came up when an investigating committee of the City Council reported a clean bill of health for the Health department.

Canty charged the report submitted by the investigating committee had been written and typed in the Board of Health office.

Duke of Roxburghe Weds Lady Mary

By Associated Press

London, Oct. 24—The ninth Duke of Roxburghe, one of the richest young men in England, and Lady Mary Crewe Milnes were married today in Westminster Abbey. The ceremony was regarded the most picturesque and elaborate society wedding of the year.

The Duke and Lady Mary are godchildren of the King and Queen and the King granted special permission for the ceremony [illegible] Abbey.

American guests included Mrs Cornelius Vanderbilt and Mr and Mrs Robert Goelet of New York. The bridegroom's mother received a large fortune from her parents Mr and Mrs. Ogden Goelet of Newport R I.

The Duke of Roxburghe owns approximately [illegible] acres of land which includes the ancestral home, Floors Castle at Kelso.

CONANT IGNORES TEACHERS' UNION

THIS IS LIFE

By Robert E. Rogers

George W. Coleman, the well-beloved creator of the Forum movement in America, has been kind enough to send me a copy of his new volume of essays, "This Business of Living," published by the Ford Hall Forum, Inc., of Boston. The little book is made up of some 34 brief editorials or sermonettes, some of which were originally published in the Babson Institute Bulletin and the Weber College Alumnae Bulletin.

ROBERT E. ROGERS

As a preface Thomas Dreier writes a few paragraphs about George Coleman as we all know him. He speaks of him first as a great catalystic agent, any substance which will serve to unite chemicals which otherwise would remain apart.

"He thinks nothing of causing the lamb and the lion to lie down together. It was that power which enabled him to establish and conduct open forums and to establish an international reputation as unifying influence.

"His intense desire to find out what people are thinking, even those who hold ideas wholly antagonistic to those he himself holds sacred, his fairness in argument, his open-mindedness, his sense of humor, his infectious laugh, his simple naturalness, and his ability to make others follow his lead, not only willingly but eagerly, have made him one of New England's foremost citizens for nearly half a century.

"When he enters a room there is more warmth in that place. He likes people and they give him their liking in return. He has ever been a friend to the friendless and a fighter against economic and political injustice, without losing the respect of those who are entirely satisfied with the established order."

Looks Like Roger Babson
Though Less Aggressive

This gives you the personality of the man just as the frontispiece gives you the physical picture of the compact, round-faced gentleman with the little moustache and goatee (looking extraordinarily like his friend Roger Babson, though his profile is less aggressive). The portrait, though, does leave out those extraordinary miniature, half-portion nose glasses he wears, or hangs nonchalantly on one ear when he does not need them.

The titles of the little essays tell you in advance what he is thinking about: "Full Steam Ahead, A Challenge to Youth, What Do You Want? What is Your Goal? Grace and Grit, Live Numerously, Don't Be One-sided, Neglected Values, New Leaders Needed; Steady, Everybody, Steady! and Truth and Justice. These are only a few of them but they do give somehow the measure of the man.

They are not so much religious as ethical, although Coleman has always been a faithful Baptist engaged (for the Baptists' own good) in prying their hard shell off and making them conscious that there are more things than adult baptism if they wish to be saved.

He founded the Ford Hall Forum with Baptist money and probably directed its efforts more to enlightening those of his own denomination than the public at large. The Baptists went back on him, but the congregation he built up over many years stuck faithfully by him and today is probably more highly organized than ever before.

Red Point of View
Favored by Forum

I think myself that he rather failed with his Ford Hall audience. He has been so successful in getting them to listen to the unorthodox, the minority, and the unpopular points of view that now they will listen to nothing else. The programs from year to year make it plain that Ford Hall audiences insist upon hearing again and again a certain selected list of liberals and radicals, and that they won't have much truck with conservatives.

As a matter of fact the Ford Hall audience is probably as bigoted (in a nice way) as any collection of people in greater Boston. Like Henry Ford, (Who did not give his name to the hall) who liked his cars painted any color so long as it was black, these good people who make up Ford Hall Folks are rather inclined to like any speaker so long as he is red—or at least up in that end of the spectrum.

You wouldn't guess it, however, from Coleman's own book. He is that rare bird, a man who is both a Christian and a liberal, who inherits the point of view of enlightened puritanism, who believes that Christian ethics and business ethics are entirely compatible, and that there is a value in honest individualism which no new-fangled beliefs in collectivism can ever replace. His ideas and his psychology are particularly useful in these controversial days.

LODGE Raps Harvard SLUR

Textbook Use Under Fire

By ALAN C. FRAZER

Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., graduate of Harvard and at the age of 33, one of the political leaders of this state, today added his voice to those raised against the Harvard textbook which assails the Constitution and then men who made it.

Lodge is a grandson of the late Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, who led the fight in the Senate against the United States joining the League of Nations when the issue was first presented by President Wilson.

Lodge was grauated from Harvard with the class of 1924, lives in Beverly, and is at present a member of the Massachusetts House of Representatives and candidate for the Republican nomination for senator.

He defends the Constitution and the founders of our government against the attacks contained in the book, "Government of the People," by D. W. Brogan, an English professor, which is read in the course, Government I, at Harvard.

Lodge Talks

Brogan's statements and others in the same volume by Professor Harold J. Laski, defender of radicals, were exposed in the Boston Evening American.

Lodge's statement follows:

"The right of every American to suggest and promote changes in the Constitution is something which no one questions.

"It is the Constitution itself which guarantees free speech—which means the right to criticize. And the Constitution provides methods for being changed—which is a guarantee that it need never fall behind the times.

"But—and this is a big 'but'—it is a very different thing to seek to undermine the Constitution in furtive and subtle ways.

"That is one of my objections to a passage in a book by a certain D. W. Brogan which has just been called to my attention by the Boston Evening American.

"This book describes the Constitution as a 'Frankenstein monster,' and says that the sponsors of the Constitution framed it for personal gains.

Backs Constitution

"I cannot see how a system of government under which a nation has grown to the present size of the United States can be called 'monstrous.'

"I do not see anything 'monstrous' in the fact that the Constitution protects every citizen against unreasonable searches and seizures, against cruel and unusual punishments, and against conviction and imprisonment except after jury trial.

"Yet all these blessings—and many more which we all take for granted—are in the Constitution.

"And I resent the statement that the men who framed the Constitution were doing so for selfish reasons.

"I believe that when these able men set out to 'establish justice . . . promote the general welfare, and secure the blessings of liberty' that they were sincere about it.

"The idea that the regarded the Constitution as a tricky device to preserve their own property falls to the ground when you stop to think that it is the Constitution which gives Congress the right to tax—and this right means that Congress could destroy all property by taxation if it wanted to.

"All in all, the passages from this book which I have read are very repugnant to me and will, I hope, be speedily rejected by the good American common sense of those who read them."

Lodge was an honor student at Harvard, receiving his degree 'cum laude' after completing the course in three years instead of the customary four.

BORNBLIND AND DEAF

The veil of darkness which has enveloped little Patricia Homans for her entire life is slowly being lifted.

Problems, more complex than those presented in the training of Helen Keller, at last are giving way before a new miracle of science.

Patricia is learning to talk.

Patricia was born deaf, dumb and blind six years ago in Louisville, Kentucky. Healthy and perfectly formed, doctors believed she could not talk because she never heard sounds and therefore could not imitate them.

Miss Keller Aids

Her case attracted the attention of Miss Keller, who arranged to have her placed in the Perkins Institute for the Blind at Watertown, where Miss Keller was trained to overcome the same handicaps.

After being cared for in the Boston Nursery for Blind Babies for two years, Patricia entered the Perkins school this fall.

There doctors found she presented more difficult problems than did Miss Keller. After weeks of study they believe the problems have been solved.

Where Helen Keller learned to talk by letters spelled into her hand Patricia is being taught to speak through the bones.

Sounds in Throat

Her hands placed against the throat of her teacher, Miss Inis B. Hall, her constant companion. In this way she is learning to "hear" the sound of vibrations as they come through the throat.

Progress is being made through constant repetition and the child is developing sufficient sensory perception so that she can approximate to a degree the results which normal children achieve through speech and hearing.

The child was born of a 16-year-old mother and a 17-year-old father. A divorce soon after her birth forced the baby into an institution.

PATRICIA HOMANS INIS B. HALL

Unable to talk because she never heard sounds, six-year-odl Patricia Homans of Louisville, Ken., is taught by Miss Inis B. Hall to form words which she "hears" as vibrations in her teacher's throat. Patricia, born blind and deaf, is a pupil at the Perkins Institute [illegible] Blind at Watertown.

Suicide Note By River Hoax

A suicide note found on Memorial drive, Cambridge, was branded a hoax today by Metropolitan police, although they continued to drag the river.

The note, in a girl's handwriting, reads:

"Good-by, cruel world. You can have the last crack at me now. You will find my body opposite where you find this note. "Helen."

Another Barn Set Afire in Hingham

Hingham's second incendiary fire in two days today destroyed a barn owned by Benjamin Thompson, situated on North street. The loss was about $600.

A set fire in a vacant barn on the Tripp estate in Main street yesterday caused $1000 loss. Several recent brush fires have been deliberately set. State fire officials are working with town authorities in the search for a pyromaniac.

The Nursery is located at 25 Dover street.

Board May Act On Nov. 4

STRIKE BAN IN PLEDGE

President James B. Conant of Harvard will ignore the teachers' union formed by 40 of his younger professors and instructors, it was authoritatively learned today.

However, possible action on the formation of the new chapter of the American Federation of Teachers may be taken at the November 4 meeting of the Harvard Corporation.

The new group organized at the Harvard Faculty Club, will be known as the Cambridge Union of University Teachers.

The Harvard Corporation, it was said, has no "official knowledge" of the formation of the new labor union.

A communication from the group is expected to be forward the corporation by the time of its meeting.

Pledged against striking, the union favors a platform of good will as a method of attaining their objectives, members pointed out. The objectives are embodied in a desire for the betterment of the teaching profession as a whole they said.

Liberals Join

Although in no way considered radical, the organization has in its membership figures prominently identified in the public eye as liberal leaders.

Kirtley F. Mather, a member of the union's executive board, was a staunch opponent to the teachers' oath bill. As a teaching member of Harvard's staff he refused to take the oath in the beginning. His agreement to take it came only when it was pointed out to him as mandatory.

Albert Sprague Coolidge, instructor in chemistry, former head tutor of Eliot House and one-time candidate on the Socialist ticket for Secretary of State in Massachusetts, is another member.

Professor Max Lerner, instructor in government, is another nationally known liberal to join the group.

President of the union, the first such organization ever formed in the history of Harvard, is Dr. J. Raymond Walsh, of the economics department. Professor Francis O. Matthiessen, of the history and literature department, was named vice-president.

Fairley on Board

The only non-Harvard member of the executive board is Lincoln Fairley, economics instructor at Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Harvard members include David W. Prall, associate professor in philosophy; Alan R. Sweezy, economics instructor, and Robert K. Lamb.

Speaking for the union, members said:

"In affiliating with the organized labor movement, we express our desire to contribute to and receive support from this powerful progressive force.

"Where issues arise which are clearly those of academic freedom or discrimination against individuals on grounds of race or of social, religious, economic or political opinions or activities, the teachers' union will be prepared to have a full investigation made and appropriate proposals brought forward."

NEW EDITORS Rule Advocate

The void in the editorial ranks of the Harvard Advocate caused by the resignation of five student editors following publication of "indecent" material in the September issue had been filled today.

Julian S. Bach, a junior, was chosen president to succeed John J. Slocum, retired head of the publication. Other officers elected were Whitney G. Case, Henry V. Poor, John L. Ange, and Gordon F. Robertson.

Nichols Gains

Former Mayor Malcolm E. Nichols has progressed favorably from a recent operation at City Hospital that he will be able to leave there in a week or ten days hospital officials announced today.

GIRL ABOUT TOWN

By Ann Marsters

This morning the place of honor goes to Booth Tarkington—for besides being a very great writer, Mr. Tarkington is also a very dear person.

ANN MARSTERS

From Kennebunkport he sends me a note which he wrote especially for this column. It's about youth—and here it is:

"Always it seems characteristic of the 'snappier young' that they enjoy shocking old people sometimes and haven't the slightest idea that most of the old people they think they shock were once the snappier young themselves, and, in their previous turn, liked to shock the old.

"The impulse to shock springs from one of the most ancient urges; it's one of the old, old mechanisms of progress, the yearning to feel superior to one's superiors. Age after age, the shocker is deluded into thinking himself most original when he's most unconsciously and helplessly being worked into an antique pattern by the eternal machinery that operates him."

Dog Gains for Himself
Place in Lowell House

One of the brightest of Harvard sophomores is a blind young man named John Gordon. He lives in Lowell House with his Belgian shepherd dog, Ortie. Ortie leads his master to all his classes, to his particular seat in the dining hall, and every fair afternoon to the Weld boathouse from which John rows a double skull. Ortie has established a precedent at Harvard. He is the first dog ever to gain permission to live in Lowell House.

AREN'T WE ALL

I'll struggle and work and gain.
Some day I am going to fight and strive
And try to develop my brain.

Some day I'll amount to something great,
Determined, strong and fine.
Some day I am going to fight and strive—
Oh well, there's plenty of time.

This comes from Frank Foy, dapper, booming voiced director of the National Emergency Council in Boston. He was at an official conference of some sort where someone was orating on the wonder of the Dionne quintuplets—what a splendid thing it was for Canada and what a shame it was that they hadn't been born in America.

At that, a government official jumped to his feet and said, "If the quins had been born in America, the AAA would have plowed three of them under."

New York Suffers Rush
Of Amateurs to Head

Our alert radio editor, N. F. T., tells me that New York is suffering from an influx of ambitious amateurs eager to get a break on the Major Bowes, Fred Allen, Ray Perkins and a score of other radio hours designed to give beginners a whirl. So much so that the Travelers' Aid Society has had an increase in operating expenses bordering on 60 per cent. Maybe the broadcasting sponsors will be sought out for contributions, for after all, the enthusiastic young ones must somehow get back to Montana, Vermont, Texas, Tennessee—or where not.

PELLEY ON RAILS

Outlook ENCOURAGES Experts

By Hugh E. Bradshaw

It was an ironic turn of the wheel of newsdom that brought word of John J. Pelley's optimism on the rail outloook as the road he formerly headed tumbled into bankruptcy.

The one-time president of the New Haven said he regarded improved carloadings, more aggressive tactics on the part of management to reduce expenses and increased efficiency and the new plan for car rentals as distinctly encouraging. This view is supported by another railroad expert, Joseph B Eastman, who went from Boston to the I. C. C. and then became federal co-ordinator of railroads.

• • •

That these competent judges of rail affairs are not disbursing spurious cheer is substantiated by the reports of carriers for September. The first seven to submit operating statements for the month show an average income gain of 40 per cent. Accomplished on an increase of only 10.2 per cent in gross. And we will hazard a guess that returns will be even better for the balance of the year. For 1935 maintenance programs are said to be completed and traffic promises to hold up. Investors and traders simply face one problem regarding rails and that is not hard to answer. It is to keep well away from potential bankrupts.

• • •

• • •

In general the market is behaving well enough but industrial shares are close to levels justifying a reaction of fair proportions. We noted the 141-145 area on the Dow-Jones index as the one likely to halt the upswing. This idea still prevails. And the average is not far from the lower edge. A congestion area is apparently forming indicating the beginning of distribution. A fillip by backward groups would facilitate completion of selling and pave the way for a corrective move.

STOCKS Irregular AT CLOSE

METALS COME TO FORE

New York, Oct. 24 — The stock market remained quiet and irregular during late trading today.

At the beginning of the final hour the list showed little change from forenoon positions with the exception of mining shares, which came to life after the noon hour under leadership of U. S. Smelting, which gained 3 points and Cerro de Pasco up 1. Owens-Illinois retained its gain of 5 points

Other shares keeping in the advancing column included Standard Oil of Indiana, Phillips Petroleum Continental Oil, General Motors, Studebaker, American Telephone and United Gas Improvement Losers included Western Union U. S. Steel, National Distillers, Du Pont, American Can, J. I. Case and Chrysler

Rail prices were somewhat above the previous close. The New Haven issues steadied after yesterday's crash on the reorganization petition.

In the steel shares gains were unimportant and the upturn failed to carry through.

Rail Situation

The railways were the principal topic of discusion in the boardrooms prior to the start of trading and guesses were numerous as to whether other roads might follow in the footsteps of the New Haven and petition for reorganization under the national bankruptcy laws.

There were a number of encouraging factors for the carriers. Railroad Co-ordinator Eastman and President Pelley of the Association of American Railroads seemed heartened by the outlook, pointing to better carloadings, increased efficiency and moves toward reduction of operating expenses. But the fact that the transportation systems will have increased burdens under the social security and rail pension acts was not overlooked

Among other items pleasing to market optimists were:

Indications that Phillips Petroleum for the year may earn $3 a share, which would be the best since 1929; Armstrong Cork advanced the wages of hourly workers 5 per cent and will pay salaried employes a bonus of 5 per cent for the year.

American Power & Light restored dividend payments on its preferred issues after omitting them last June; directors of Colgate-Palmolive Peet declared an extra of 25 cents a share—the same as on Dec. 1, 1934—and the regular quarterly of 12½ cents; the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co. reported nine months' profits of $103,787 compared with a loss of $1,668,63 in the same perior last year.

Sterling opened at $4.92¼, up ⅛ of a cent, and the French franc was .00¼ of a cent higher at 6.59⅛ cents. The lira was unchanged at 8.13 cents.

CIGAR SALES Up Sharply

Consumption of all important tobacco products in September showed a marked upsurge, with cigarettes, cigars, manufactured tobacco and snuff all showing increases over the corresponding month a year ago, and all except snuff exceeding September, 1933.

Improvement in cigars was most notable for reversing a trend which has prevailed for many months. Other than 5-cent cigars showed a larger gain than the industry as a whole.

GOOD DEMAND For Chemicals

Important producers of heavy chemicals report October business to date very satisfactory through out New England, and considerably in advance of volume for the corresponding period in September. Good business is expected right up to the approach of inventory period at the end of the calendar year

The volume of business so far this year is said to show in the neighborhood of a 20 per cent increase over the same period in 1934

Coal Production

The National Coal Association estimates bituminous coal production for the week ended Oct. 19 at approximately 8,140,000 net tons, against 7,152,000 for the corresponding period last year. In the week ended Oct. 12, output was 8,234,000 tons, according to the Bureau of Mines

FORBES SAYS

PayrollTax CAUSE For Alarm

By B. C. Forbes

As the time draws near (January 1) for starting levying on employers a payroll tax to provide for so-called unemployment insurance, under the social security act, employers and other thoughtful citizens are becoming concerned over the feasibility of maintaining in liquid form the many billions of reserves which it is planned to accumulate.

Estimates of the grand total reserves aimed to be piled up under the recently-enacted social legislation run from $35,000,000,000 to $50,000,000,000.

This lesser figure exceeds the Federal government's total debt even after its alarmingly rapid expansion in recent years.

Is the nation faced with an entirely new method of absorbing government bonds? As the social security scheme gets into its full stride, will the reserves available for investment in government bonds prove more than sufficient to supply the government with all the money it needs? Will outstanding government bonds be reduced or even wholly paid off?

The nub of the whole looming problem is, how can any such colossal reserve as $35,000,000,000 or $50,000,000,000 be kept in liquid form, readily available for paying out whenever an unemployment crisis may arise?

Assuming that these social security reserve funds are invested in government bonds, how could they be turned into cash at a time of panic, when security markets invariably are gravely demoralized?

• • •

What has happened in the realm of government bonds during the latest depression?

The government has not been able to finance itself by sales of its obligations to the public. A constantly increasing volume has been placed in banks. Latterly, some 90 per cent of government offerings have gone, not to private invest but to financial institutions.

Although they deem it inadvisable to say so publicly, most heads of large banks are acutely uneasy over the percentage of their depositors' funds which are now tied up in government bonds, for which, as has been abundantly demonstrated, the public have no investment appetite.

The truth is that Congress rushed through this unprecedentedly momentous legislation without devoting to it and its ultimate ramifications anything like adequate study. This cardinal question of maintaining reserves in usable form, for example, was glossed over

States can enact laws for carrying the objective into effect. The federal law provides for crediting to employers up to 90 per cent of taxes paid into state unemployment funds, this last being designed as a whip to force all states into line

Harlow Feeds Harvard Kids Football In Balanced Rations

WHAT I LIKE ABOUT DICK Harlow's method at Harvard this fall is that he did not insert a nozzle in the mouths of his kid athletes and hose a lot of intricate knowledge down their throats in big, indigestible doses.

Austen Lake

He fed them a few plays and made sure the boys chewed them thoroughly before spooning up another snack.

The result is that Harvard used variations of two basic plays in its games against West Point and Holy Cross, an offense thinly smeared with mystery, but smoothly timed and flawless.

As a result, scouts from Dartmouth, Yale and Princeton who sat aloft and jotted down the team's offensive habits, have little more than grammar school formations to report—the shovel pass, a routine spinner, a reverse and not much else.

The secret of Harlow's success over his career is in conceding the limitations of the boy mind, giving his scholars no more than they can understand, and gradually adding new layers of polish until he has a machine which, within its physical limitation, is the best possible.

* * *

Why Masters Fail

TOO OFTEN COLLEGE COACHES have failed because they burden their kids with intricate learning, administered like a veterinary feeding a horse drench. Fifty plays with split-second timetables in which, if any of the eleven men stubs a toe, the synchronized duties of the team are wrecked.

Players have been so bewildered by the mass of detail that they never get more than a vague snapshot of their duties, which they slur in consequence.

Thus, many a football master, conversant with all the highest gridiron mathematics, has lost his job through failure to fit the tempo of his teaching to the understanding of his boys.

Harlow does not drown his offense in a maize of backfield sleight of hand, with the kids shuttling the ball back and forth like shell-game shyster trying to befuddle yokel gamblers.

His plays are built on the ancient geometric principle that a straight shot is the shortest distance across the line of scrimmage, and the sooner the better.

And, knowing that a strong back and a quick, muscular pair of legs can often transform a simple play into a miracle, just as a feeble chest and wobbly knees can ruin the best ground-gaining invention, Harlow has been spending much time in tightening the thews and sinews with grass wriggles and stomach tortions, something that most coaches discard after preliminary kindergarten work.

General Nuisance

AMERICAN SPORT IS experiencing ex-army general trouble. Being men accustomed by the military training to woof and snort commandments, the old officers always manage to insert "Hell and Maria" irritations whenever they talk or write.

Thus, Brigadier-General Charles H. Sherrill, as the returning Olympic investigator of Germany's anti-semitic attitude, blurts a characteristic thistle when he says:

"If we keep our team away from Germany, we run the risk of starting the greatest wave of anti-Jewish feeling in he history of this country."

General Hugh Johnson, ex-NRA administrator, has just spat a mouthful of tacks at West Point for "shoulder strap influence in its selection of football coaches," saying that Army, "with its handpick of the country's finest physical manhood, should never lose a game."

And General John J. Phelan, the New York boxing commissioner, is just one big nosegay of tonsil-rumbles, whose prouncíamentos on boxing are always food for sport page hysterics.

Incidentally, General Smedley Butler set off his verbal time-fuse at Providence last night.

* * *

Sox, Phonies, Braddock, Etc.

THE RED SOX MAY BUY up every infield and outfield star in the major leagues, and still fall short of their pennant dream.

Until the club refits its pitching staff with two or three men to help Lefty Grove and Wes Ferrell, there will be no World Series at Fenway. And pitchers, at least good pitchers, are one thing that rival teams will not sell.

* * *

All time low tide in counterfeiting occurred in Oklahoma City this week, when some miscreant flooded the National Professional Golf tournaments with admission phonies. Two out of every three tickets presented at the gate were fakes.

* * *

Jimmy Braddock's latest statement indicates that he can read mural handwriting.

"If Joe Louis is as good as they say he is," said candid James, "then I guess he will lick me. But at least I won't go in with the handicap of being afraid."

Football's two leading coaching families are the Waldorfs and the Staggs. Lynn Waldorf, son of a Methodist bishop, is coach at Northwestern. Brother John is an assistant at Missouri, and Brother Paul is coaching McKendree at Lebanon, Ill.

* * *

Alonzo Stagg, dean of all active coaches, is still coaching after 44 years, on the Pacific Coast. Saturday his youngest son, Paul, as coach of Moravian Seminary, is playing Susquehanna, coached by his older brother, Amos Alonzo, Jr.

* * *

Despite the fact that Discovery, the glory horse, is supposed to be fatigued from traveling all over the country in box cars, it won a 12-length victory in the Cincinnati Handicap, Tuesday.

Governor James Curley's son, Leo, as a Georgetown squad member, is slated for action against N. Y. U., Saturday.

JIMMY FOXX ON WAY

Cramer, Chapman, Manush Also Sought by Sox

By Bill Grimes

(Copyright, 1935 by Boston Evening American)

New Gloucester, Me., Oct. 24—Tom Yawkey revealed to me today he is prepared to spend $5,000,000 to give the Red Sox an American League pennant.

Yawkey has already invested some $4,000,000 in Boston baseball, and is now planning to pour $1,000,000 more into the Red Sox.

"I think Boston fans are entitled to an American League pennant," Yawkey told me as he prepared to go into the woods hunting with Eddie Collins, "and I want to give it to them.

"When I told Collins to buy the whole Athletic team, I meant it. I don't intend to stop until the Sox win the flag. Then I shall want a world championship.

"There are seven other American League clubs, and we are ready to talk business with any of them.

"We are not restricting our deals to the Athletics. We have considered deals at various times with the Yankees, Senators, Detroit and St. Louis."

Won't Talk

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 24—Connie Mack, veteran leader of the Athletics, would neither confirm nor deny the story which reached here that the A's and Boston were involved in a $250,000 player and cash deal.

Reached on the phone and asked whether Foxx, Higgins, Cramer and Marcum would be bartered to the Sox for Dahlgren, Roy Johnson and cash, Mack refused to say "yes" or "no."

"I expect to hear and read such stories every day this winter, and I am not going to deny or affirm them," declared Connie. "When anything breaks you will be notified of it."

The refusal of Mack to deny the rumored trade leads baseball wise men to believe that the story has a foundation of truth.

It is the custom in such swaps to deny any knowledge of them until the papers are signed on both sides.

UP SHE GOES!

Yawkey admitted rival club owners had boosted the price tags on players once he got interested in them. He knows he was obliged to pay tops for Lefty Grove, Wes Ferrell, Joe Cronin, Oscar Melillo and other players he acquired.

"It's like the stock market," said Yawkey good naturedly. "When you want something, they make you pay the limit."

To Yawkey, baseball is strictly and always a hobby, and, although he has almost four million dollars invested in the Red Sox, he still gets more relaxation out of the national pastime than any other sport.

Seldom if ever, has a sportsman of the Yawkey type been identified with professional sports. He'd rather win a double header in a crucial series before empty stands than to lose both games before a capacity house. That's a positive fact.

Prior to Yawkey's advent into baseball, I'd heard of magnates who had identified themselves with the game "solely for the sake of the sport." But I'd never seen one of them stand the acid test.

While making flowery orations on the uplifting of the game, they invariably had one eye glued on the box office.

And once the crowds started to fall off, they started [illegible] around for a[illegible] [illegible] and began to cut the [illegible] of the two [illegible] per day box office [illegible] [illegible] and usher

TRADE BUST

Tom Yawkey has stood the test. And what a test they [illegible] him! I question, if he [illegible] his Red Sox interest today [illegible] realize twenty five percent on his investment. And I am also [illegible] convinced that no one realizes this fact better than Mr. Thomas A. [illegible] Yawkey.

[illegible] Tom Yawkey [illegible] for the Red Sox.

At the end of [illegible] approximately $1,675,000.

[illegible]

[illegible] Wes Ferrell [illegible]

blown the entire $165,000 paid for the three "A's."

Then he startled the entire world of sport by handing Clark Griffith $2[illegible],000 and Lyn Lary, for whom he paid $[illegible],000, for Joe Cronin.

Next he dug down in his jeans and gave the St. Louis Browns a wad of money and Moose Solters for Oscar Melillo.

In the meantime, the Reading Club, a Red Sox farm, was going in the "red," as did the Charlotte Club of the Piedmont League this season.

Although there is no denying that the prices he has paid for ball players were most exorbitant, Tom Yawkey firmly believes these investments have built the foundation of a pennant winning club.

And now he tells Eddie Collins to buy the entire Athletics club if necessary.

GOING

Yawkey knows the strength and the weaknesses on his Red Sox club. He wants more outfield strength and that is why he is angling for Roger Cramer, Ben Chapman and Heinie Manush.

Jimmy Foxx would fit into the Red Sox picture nicely, but not at the price Connie Mack has fixed on him. Jimmy is about ready to start on the down grade.

Yawkey is building for the future, therefore Foxx at Yawkey's figures would be acceptable.

Eric McNair, a great ball player, is the boy the Red Sox want above all others.

Although the Red Sox refuse to discuss the subject, it's my opinion that they'd trade Bill Werber for Frank Higgins. There are three or four real prima donnas on the Red Sox roster, and the morale of the club will improve with the departure of a couple of them.

Roy Johnson and Carl Reynolds' numbers are up. Johnson is trading material, but I cannot figure how the Red Sox will dispose of Reynolds and his sinus.

While he is laying plans to plug up the infield and outfield weaknesses, Yawkey is going to strengthen his pitching corps, which he [illegible] realizes is the weakest department on the club.

SEA FOX IS WILSON'S POPEYE

PRANK Is Natick CHOICE

IN FIFTH AT 'GANSETT

By Dave Wilson

(Selections Made for Fast Track)

BEST BET—SEA FOX

Narragansett Park, Oct. 24—Prank, a highly-regarded youngster from the Brookmeade stable, shapes up as the probable winner of the six furlongs of the featured Natick Purse here today.

Sea Fox, a corking second to Guardian, stands head and shoulders over an indifferent lot of lowly platers in the one mile and 70 yards of the eighth race.

FIRST RACE

Cania, Irish Play, Smilin Ed

CANIA comes from Maryland with two corking Havre de Grace victories to recommend for top honors. The opposition is little more than she has already drubbed in the past. IRISH PLAY, runner-up to Be Just, was off poorly that day. She raced as if much the best. SMILIN ED was a beaten favorite last trip. He drops three pounds and merits better than a fighting chance.

SECOND RACE

Creme de Menthe, Onus, Secured

CREME DE MENTHE is clearly the speed of this party. The increased route should be right down her alley. ONUS has several good Agawam efforts to recommend for the place award. He figures to offer the sternest sort of contention. SECURED displayed fine speed in graduating from the ranks of the maidens.

THIRD RACE

Balmacan, Prosecutor, Stay

BALMACAN, third to Forewarned, needs only to duplicate that most recent performance in order to earn brackets. Any sort of a track suits. PROSECUTOR figures to offer the contention. This plater flashed high early foot in placing to Queen Helen. STAY is the wake up horse. The odds-board will tell the story.

FOURTH RACE

Gift of Roses, Judann, Arguefication

GIFT OF ROSES needs only intelligent handling in order to earn brackets. She would have won her most recent start but for being made too much use of during the early stages.

FIFTH RACE

Prank, Barnsley, Undulate

PRANK comes highly recommended by the Clocker. Was up against it with Tintagel and that sort last time out at Belmont Park, but he flashed fine speed in graduating from the maiden ranks in a previous endeavor. BARNSLEY'S last race was entirely too poor to be true. Previous Suffolk dope shows that he is capable of better things.

SIXTH RACE

Idle Along, Our Admiral, Top High

IDLE ALONG strikes me as the class in this $1600 top and $1500 bottom affair. This mare turned in a bang-up second to Tommy's Trade in a swiftly run $2000 top and bottom six-furlong dash last time out at Empire. The last and route will be right down her alley. OUR ADMIRAL won his last start at Suffolk Downs and is deserving consideration on the strength of that performance.

SEVENTH RACE

Anacreon, Mettle, Dojo

ANACREON has the speed to make every pole of the one mile and seventy yards journey a winning one. She finished third to Skipsea and Sound Money last trip. METTLE'S recent race goes for the boys on the end book.

EIGHTH RACE

Sea Fox, Golden Quest, Bickering

SEA FOX shapes up as the safest hazard of the day if not the meeting.

WHITEY RING DEAN SECOND 20,000 TIMES

By International News Service

New York, Oct. 24—Many a strange character is found on Broadway . . . where the gals are now wearing green eye-shadowing . . . and not the least strange of a strange lot is Whitey . . . Whitey's true moniker is Morris Bimstein . . . but he himself has almost forgotten that . . .

Every fighter, fight manager and fight promoter in the country knows Whitey . . . You yourself must have seen him sometime somewhere. He's the nation's leading seconder of fighters . . .

Once was a pretty fair bantam . . . Now he's fat, bald and Albino . . . been seconding fighters more than 25 years . . . has been the chief man in the corner in more than 20,000 fights . . .

Never takes a dime off beginners . . . but has made as high at $2000 for one fight off top-notchers . . . Paolino, the Basque, who fights J. Louis December 13, once paid him that sum to work in his corner . . . the Basque with the Gibraltar jaw is a wealthy man . . . fights for the fun of it . . .

BAER CHEAPEST

Whitey says Jim Braddock paid him $700 the night he won the title . . . says Max Baer was the cheapest guy he ever worked for . . . and the worst to handle . . . would pay no attention to anybody . . . Tunney, Leonard, Gibbons and others stars all paid him well and paid attention to what he told them . . .

What Whitey is to fighters Humming Bob Smith is to hosses . . . Bob promises to have Cavalcade fixed up and ready to go in the Santa Anita Handicap . . . Against Discovery, Omaha and other oat burners.

Lou Little may demote All Barabas, hero of the Rose Bowl . . . some say Al lost the old college try . . . But more likely his trick knee's bothering him . . .

Tuss McLaughry is going back to the triple-wing system. But his Brown Bucks will need more than what to hurdle that Syracuse line . . .

Did you know Colgate freshmen haven't lost a game in six years? . . . That Cornell has 30 frosh who outclass every man on the varsity? . . . And that Ohio State is 5 to 3 over Notre Dame out west, but only even money here . . . Where the Irish have more volunteer alumni than they ever had students . . .

Harness people are going to give the older horses more events next year . . . Greyhound (2.00); Lawrence Hanover (2.00¾) and Calumet Evelyn (2.00) will meet in a match race . . . Evelyn's one of those queer animals who can trot about as well as she paces . . . Once broke two minutes pacing and a few days later did the even two minutes trotting . . .

New York will see more international games than ever in '36 . . . Alabama-Manhattan, Army-Notre Dame, Columbia-Stanford, Colgate-Tulane and Fordham with Southern Methodist, St. Mary's, Pittsburgh, Purdue and Georgia . . . to mention only a few already set.

Hunk Anderson says Steve Sobol, his North Carolina State center's the best he ever saw . . . Can Hunk be forgetting he once played alongside Adam Walsh at Notre Dame on that Four Horsemen team? . . .

MICHIGAN Drills Kickers

Ann Arbor, Mich. (AP)—At least two sections of the famous Michigan "punt, pass and prayer" game seem to be ready for the Columbia contest. The final drill yesterday was devoted to kicking. Captain Bill Renner, star passer, is expected to furnish most of the Wolverines' scoring punch.

Red Raiders Off For Worcester

By Associated Press

Hamilton, N. Y., Oct. 24—Colgate's Red Raiders packed their bags to leave today for Worcester, Mass., where they will play Holy Cross, Saturday.

The Colgate team planned to stop for the night at Amherst, Mass., and hold a practice session tomorrow in the Amherst Field. Tomorrow night the team will be in Brookfield, Mass., and will go to Worcester, Saturday morning.

In the final drill before leaving Coach Andy Kerr made several shifts, using Ken Relyea at left tackle and Dave Lawson at left guard. Bill Davidson has recovered from an injury suffered in the Iowa game, but Kerr did not use him in scrimmage. He is likely to start Saturday, however.

Relyea or Bob Denike expected to play left tackle as Chesbro still is troubled by an ankle injury.

CADETS TO PLAY Tigers in 1938

West Point, N. Y., Oct. 24 (INS)—After a 30-year lapse in football relations with Princeton, Army's Cadets will play the Tigers in 1938, it was announced here today by athletic authorities. They may meet again in 1940 and 1942, with Yale facing Army in the odd-numbered years.

Dolphinium Best Looking Colt on Track

By Ed Cogswell

Narragansett Park Race Track, R. I., Oct. 24—It's the baby thoroughbreds which most interest owners and trainers and, incidentally, the regular racing patrons.

Beginning with the annual yearling sales at Saratoga, when the juveniles in many instances bring sensational prices at the auction block, and thence onward to initial races for two-year-olds over the Florida track, starting with three-furlong dashes, the eyes of all turf followers are on what the youngsters are doing in these speed tests.

It's from these very colts and fillies that will be found the future stars, the winners of the Kentucky Derby, the Preakness, when they will have arrived at the age of three years.

In preparation for the stellar events a series of rich handicaps and purse events for two-year-olds is offered standouts, being the Hopeful, the Futurity, etc.

To have secured a baby thoroughbred with the class to collect any or all of the races named, means pretty nearly getting the prized pot of gold.

34 ENTRIES

It is from the victors of the stake for juveniles in this year that come the favorites in the winter books for the Derby, etc., of 1936.

To assist in gaining a guide on the youngsters the heads of the Narragansett Park have offered a series of three races for two-year-olds to be decided during the present meeting.

The first of the all important handicaps is scheduled for next Saturday in the $5000 added Pawtucket at the distance of six furlongs.

This event secured 34 nominations. After careful study, Handicapper Ben Holmes gave his official opinion that Dolphinium, the property of the Brookmeade Stable is the best two-year-old in New England. For this reason, he accorded the Blut Larkspur colt the top weight of 126 pounds.

Coming next in Holmes' estimation of the racing value is Willis Sharpe Kilmer's Ne' Reigh with an allotment of 122 pounds. The Noddie colt has been making a name for himself this season at Saratoga and Belmont.

In at a pound less comes the well-known local performer, Maeriel, from the Maemere Farm, and the Calumet Farm's Cross Bow II. The Calumets have another string to their bow, too, in the race in Pharosey, which will have to carry 116 pounds along with Mrs. W. C. Goodloe's Whistling Boy.

TECH-HARVARD In Football Game

Tech sophomores and Harvard freshmen will hook up in a football duel today at the Harvard Field.

The Technology team is now practicing for the field day contest against the Tech frosh. Tony Chmielewski of Cambridge, former high school football star there, will be the field general for the Tech eleven.

DOUBLE-HEADER

Detroit (AP)—The Tiger Titans have found a precedent for their double-header with Villanova next week. They hope the results will be the same for the home state. In 1926 Michigan played Minnesota twice and won both games.

Georgia Miss was slow to be under way, moved up stoutly on the outside swinging from the backstretch, bore in slightly in the last furlong and outlasted Cania. The latter away fast, was taken in hand and reserved back of the pace, moved to the front in the stretch but was unable to stave off the winner. Be Just displayed good early speed but weaved in the last furlong. Irish Play was unable to reach the leaders. Masked Smile was unable to threaten. Smiling Ed faltered after racing a half-mile. Golden Duchess was far back throughout.

SECOND RACE—One mile, purse $1000, for two-year-olds, claiming. Start good from Bard gate, won driving; place same. Went 1.40, off 1.41½. Value to winner $750, $150, $70, $30. Time 0.23 4, 0.48 2, 1.13 3, 1.40 3.

AMERICA TO COMPETE IN 1936 OLYMPICS

Mr. Boston

Bowser Roots for Pojello

By JACK CONWAY

PAUL BOWSER would like to see Ed Don George pinned when he clashes with Carl Pojello, Lithuanian heavyweight, in a finish mat bout at the Garden tomorrow night.

This is not because Bowser bears any animosity toward George. As a matter of truth, Bowser is particularly fond of George who was his top box office attraction up to the time youthful Danno O'Mahoney came bobbing along.

Mr. Boston

It is rather as a result of Bowser's desire to obtain a new wrestling attraction.

O'Mahoney has already beaten George twice in Boston. A third bout here at this time would not prove anything. Pojello, on the other hand, would be a strong opponent for O'Mahoney if he were to knock off George.

Pojello is the only heavyweight George dodged while he was champion. Don stepped out of a Jack Curley show in New York rather than meet Pojello. The latter tried to get George suspended, but Gen. John Phelan rallied to the aid of the champion.

The general has always been one of Don's staunchest supporters, and he wouldn't permit Pojello or anybody else to worry his favorite.

* * *

DON VS. DANNO

YOUR UNCLE Jack Curley will spend a few uneasy moments while George is battling Pojello. He has Ed signed to meet O'Mahoney in a title bout in the New York Garden on Monday night.

Curley knows from past experiences that Boston matches are always likely to upset his New York program. Early in the summer Curley had Jim Londos signed to battle Chief Little Wolf at the Garden Bowl as a Milk Fund attraction. He had old Manhattan placarded with his attraction.

O'Mahoney then pinned Londos at Fenway Park and Curley had to throw away all his signs and substitute Danno against Chief Little Wolf.

If Pojello gets the duke over George, the latter won't agree to wrestle O'Mahoney in New York for Curley. Bowser has taken the precaution to sign Carl for a O'Mahoney tussle which, if it takes place, must be staged in Boston.

* * *

Michael Debros, latest Greek heavyweight threat, will also appear on the Garden card. He will have John Spellman as an opponent in a 30-minute bout.

* * *

YOU witnessed a fine exhibition of seconding boxers as Freddy Miller successfully defended his title as world featherweight champion against Vernon Cormier at the Garden.

Pete Reilly was Miller's chief second, while Al Lippe was the head medicine man in Cormier's.

* * *

ICE BAGS

REILLY kept two ice bags at Miller's head between rounds.

"I wanted to stop any possible swelling before it got started," Pete told me after the bout.

I asked Reilly what he carried in his medicine outfit.

"I have bandages, tape, medicine to stop bleeding and care for cuts and also various kinds of stimulants."

Back in the dressing room Reilly called my attention to the way Miller was removing the marks of the adhesive tape from his hands.

"I carry around a small can of gas, and it does the job better than anything else," said Reilly.

"I also bandage Miller's ankles. I do this before a bout. This eliminates the danger of Freddy spraining an ankle during a contest. Many boxers have got off balance, then have been hit and have lost a bout. I like to anticipate possible trouble and then guard against it.

"I use a great deal of bandage on the upper part of Miller's hands. You shouldn't hit with the upper part of your hands, and if you do there is the possibility of breaking a small bone. Tape and bandages can prevent such an injury.

"I don't use any bandages near Miller's knuckles. The knuckles don't require any protection. They possess strength and power.

"Miller has been able to box as often and as successfully as he has as a result of the care he has received in and out of the ring."

GENERAL Sherill So DECREES

HAD AUDIENCE WITH HITLER

By Walter Kiley

America will be represented in the 1936 Berlin Olympics.

This is the inference drawn from remarks made by Brig.-General Charles H. Sherrill, American member of the International Olympic committee, who is in Boston today.

Furthermore, Sherrill, just returned from a two months stay in Germany, which included a four day visit as house guest of Chancellor Adolph Hitler, insists the National A. A. U., which is agitating against American participation, is butting into business which is none of its concern.

"The International Committee doesn't concern itself with A. A. U. bodies. It deals only with the American Olympic committee, a body of 100 members headed by President Avery Brundage.

SPRINT CHAMP

"Judge Jeremiah Mahoney and his A. A. A. just don't count," Sherrill stated.

"The American Olympic committee has already taken a vote by mail on our participation. Secretary Fred Rubien has the results tabulated.

"While I am not at liberty to disclose the sentiments expressed in those votes, I can tell you that a big surprise is forthcoming to those who object to our sending teams across the waters and are sponsoring a boycott of the games."

Sherrill has spent much of the past decade on the continent.

He was seven-time intercollegiate champion in the 100, 220 and 440 yard sprints at Yale back in 1887 and 1888, when his ten seconds for the 100-yard dash was considered phenomenal.

He was American ambassador to Turkey in 1932 and 1933. Now at the age of 68 he is still hale and hearty and willing to wager he can still outfoot many younger men over the century.

His visit to Boston is entirely personal, having nothing to do with Olympic matters. He is here for a cotton convention but primarily to pay homage to his recently born grandchild, daughter of Gibbs Sherrill, Yale 31, who has spent many of his recent years across with his father.

UNTHINKABLE

He states that his visit with Hitler was most satisfactory and that it resulted in the chancellor requesting the German Olympic committee to invite two German women to compete on its team. This was done.

"The whole matter of Jewish participation is going too far" Sherrill insists.

"Of 73 British athletes competing in Los Angeles at the last games, only one was Jewish. Only five of 553 American athletes were Jewish, less than one per cent.

"The Germans have promised that Jews will not be excluded. They are complying with our Olympic rules. Therefore I refuse to join a boycott movement. It would be unthinkable."

Sherrill expresses surprise at the agitation stirred up against American participation and sounds a warning that a wave of anti-Semitism is bound to result.

"Just wait until some 500,000 American athletes realize fully that Jews are trying to keep them from going to Berlin and then watch the fireworks. They will be popping right merrily.

IN REBUTTAL

In reply to Sherrill's statement, the 'Committee on Fair Play in Sports,' which includes outstanding persons of all walks of life, including Rev. S. Parkes Cadman of the National Federation of Churches, and locally, Jack Ryder, track coach at Boston College, sent out a long day letter to members received today terming Sherrill's comments as 'deplorable.'

"This is no longer a Jewish question," the telegram stated. "It represents an American question, which must be faced squarely. There can be no fair play as long as Germany treats the Olympic question as it has up to now.

"America should withdraw."

Fuchs to Fill 2 New Posts

Two new posts on the state Unemployment Compensation Commission today awaited approval of the executive council before being filled by Judge Emil E. Fuchs, chairman.

Named as executive secretary of the commission by Fuchs was M. Joseph McCartin of Newton, now regional director of the federal labor service. For assistant secretary Fuchs named Edmund P. Cunningham of Quincy, former secretary of the Braves.

B. C. Boys From N. H.

When Boston College meets New Hampshire at Alumni Field Saturday, three of the Eagles in the starting lineup will be facing lads from their home state.

Earl "Pat" Avery, right half back, is a husky country boy from way up Plymouth, New Hampshire; Jim Kissel, center, hails from Nashua, and Andy Dominick, right tackle, is the pride of the home folks in Manchester.

The Wildcats from Durham have not accomplished very much this fall but are primed to cause the Eagles a lot of trouble.

Avery, Kissell and Dominick have all signified their intention to let go with all they have on Saturday to raise B. C.'s standing with the home folks, who will come down to see the game.

BRUINS Complete ITINERARY

St. John N. B., Oct 24—Final details of a seven game exhibition series between Les Canadiens of Montreal and the Boston Bruins were completed today by General Manager Art Ross of the Boston club.

The series will start next Monday night here in St. John and will wind up in Quebec November 10 on the eve of the opening of the National League season.

Ross announced the places and dates for the games as follows: Monday, October 28, St. John, N. B.; Wednesday, October 30, Moncton, N. B.; Friday, November 1 and Monday, November 4, Halifax, N. S.; Wednesday, November 6, Charlottetown, P. E. I.; Friday, November 10 and Sunday, November 12, Quebec. The two games in Halifax will be a total goal series for a cup donated by the mayor of Halifax.

The two clubs played a series last year that was bitterly fought for all its exhibition nature, Bruins dominating the play.

Fist fights and rough play marred the series and this year the teams will have a National Hockey League referee, probably Bill Stewart of Boston, in charge.

Loose refereeing was the cause of the trouble a year ago and neither management wants to risk players being injured in [illegible] ice battles.

After two sessions daily for the last three days the squad had a respite today with only a morning session scheduled. This is Canada's Thanksgiving Day and the players have been invited to a shooting range this afternoon.

The entire Boston party has been given a fine reception here by the St. John's city officials and Art Ross and Frank Patrick are most pleased with the decision to train in this city.

HARLOW Predicts One VICTORY

TROUBLE AHEAD FOR FORDHAM

By Associated Press

New York, Oct. 24—Best line of the week: Jimmy Doyle of Cleveland says Governor Davey probably would describe the Ohio State football team as the "Scarlet scourge" . . . Fordham's 1936 football card is filled with breathers—nit.

In six weeks the Rams must tackle Southern Methodist, St. Mary's, Pittsburgh, Purdue and Georgia . . . Leo Leavitt, Oakland promoter, has wired Max Baer an offer of $20,000 to fight Art Lasky.

Dick Harlow predicts his Harvard team will win one major game this year . . . If Lawson Little and friends are successful, the 1937 national amateur will be played at Pebble Beach, Cal.

DOLAN AND MILLER TO START FOR B. U.

HANLEY Shakes Up TEAM

VERMONT HERE SATURDAY

By Murray Kramer

There is no room for Prima Donnas on the Boston University football squad.

Because of this, the third radical shakeup in two weeks has taken place, and the Terrier team that takes the field against Vermont next Saturday will have two men in its lineup who have never played in a college football game before.

Charlie Dolan, the center, and Max Miller, the right guard, are the two privileged gentlemen who step into the front line of action this coming week-end without any previous servitude.

There is another individual who almost comes under this category. He is Lou Rudolph, who will call the signals. Mr. Rudolph's experience consists of one minute in the Tuft's game as an end.

Besides this trio, Bob Allen will start his f[illegible] game this year, having won the left tackle job, and Frank Hughes, veteran end, is again a member of proper standing, having recovered from his knee injury.

Pat Hanley feels he has a lot of potential material but he will not play any one of them until he shows enough in practice to warrant starting.

Last year the Terriers lacked reserves, and Pat had to nurse his few regulars along.

This year, the case is different. He has more men, and if those who are named as regulars one week let it go to their heads or start taking it easy, out they go.

Saturday's game will be the last at Nickerson Field this year. They have one more home game scheduled and that is against Rutgers. This tilt will take place at Fenway Park.

The University of Vermont did better against Dartmouth than the Moreymen did. If they do, there will be more changes in the B. U. lineup.

Brown Wins

Providenece, R. I., Oct. 24—The Brown Cub soccer team opened it's season with a 3 to 1 triumph over Worcester Academy.

DANNO'S VICTIMS BACK ON MAT TRAIL

(Picture from International News Photograph Service)

Ed Don George and Ed Strangler Lewis, foiled twice in an effort to win back their crown now held by Dan O'Mahoney, are still trying to figure a way to beat the Irishman. Between times they spend idle moments playing cards. George launches another comeback here tomorrow night when he meets Carl Pojello at the Garden.

GILL RETURNS TO FRIARS' SQUAD

TO PLAY AT SPRINGFIELD

Providence, R. I., Oct. 24—Big Ed Gill, regular Providence College end for the past two seasons, returned to the uniformed squad today for the first time this year.

Gill was injured during the summer and has refrained from playing football, but Coach Joe McGee plans to use him against the Springfield Indians when the teams meet Saturday at Springfield.

Providence will be at full strength for the Indians as the injured Bill Moge, the best punter on the team, has returned along with Ray Angelica, the sub fullback.

The Friars will travel to Springfield tomorrow morning and work out in Springfield in the afternoon.

A squad of 42 players will make the trip.

Providence has suffered but one defeat this season, that at the hands of Holy Cross.

Signs for 8 Games

Ossining, N. Y., Oct. 24 (INS)—Edwin C. (Alabama) Pitts, Sing Sing grid star, has signed for eight games with the New Rochelle Bulldogs, professional football team, Warden Lewis E. Lawes announced today.

TECH BANQUET Attended by 100

More than 100 varsity, junior varsity and freshman crew members attended the M. I. T. Boat Club banquet at the Walker Memorial, in Cambridge.

Rev. Walter Lumpkin of Trinity Church, new freshman crew coach at Technology, was the principal speaker. Others were Head Coach Bill Haines and 150 pound coach, George Owen.

Bob Thorson, of Medford, secretary of the club, announced the names of the new members recently elected, Richard Young of Fairhaven, William Burret of Minneapolis, James Warburton of Fall River and Harry K[illegible] of Mount Vernon. All are members of the varsity squad.

A. Dunning, former freshman coach, and his brother, Albert Dunning, who rowed with the undefeated team six years ago, were guest at the dinner.

POJELLO Arrives for BOUT

Carl Pojello, Lithuanian heavyweight wrestler, arrived here today ready for his finish mat bout, best two falls out of three, with Ed Don George which will be staged at the Garden tomorrow night.

Pojello is the only heavyweight George would not meet while champion. He once ran out of a New York bout with Pojello.

Now that he hasn't got any title worries, George is expected to cut loose and furnish a thrilling tussle against the Lithuanian star.

Don is in good condition, and is anxious to regain his lost title. He is booked to meet Danno O'Mahoney in the New York Garden next Monday night, and he will have this match cancelled on him if he is upset by Pojello.

RAZZLE DAZZLE Good for Tallies

Champaign, Ill. (AP)—Any opponent who can't solve the Illinois "razzle dazzle" attack this season seems to be in for a tough time. In drill yesterday Wib Henry tried 12 plays which wound up with forward passes after complicated backfield maneuvres, including lateral tosses. He completed eight of the 26.

Revolta Presents Wife Cup

By JOHNNY REVOLTA
NEW P. G. A. CHAMPION
(Copyright, 1935, by Universal Service)

Twin Hills Country Club, Oklahoma City, Oct. 24—Well I said early in the week that I would win the 17th P. G. A. title, just to add to my western open.

The main reason I was so sure of bringing back to Milwaukee the P. G. A. championship was that I told my wife before I left home that I would give her the cup as our anniversary present, and here it is.

The day that the P. G. A. was to finish was Tuesday, October 22, but, owing to the delayed start of the second day, I was forced to miss my anniversary by a day. The fact still remains I was confident of winning.

The course was greatly to my liking. The galleries were great to me and they inspired me all through my matches.

Lucky to Beat Hagen

In the Hagen match I was lucky to win, and had it not been for four chip shots from the trap that came up dead to the pin the old master would have had your John back in Milwaukee long before this.

The further I went in the tourney, the more confident I got, and I don't think anything could have stopped me after I got past the semi-finals.

I was really afraid of Al Zimmerman, the Portland, Ore., shot-maker who polished off the defending champion, Paul Runyan, with an approximated 67 for his last round, but I got the jump on him and played the card to the finish, winning by 4 and 2.

I had great luck and wonderful breaks against Armour yesterday and unfortunately laid him five dead stymies, of course not intentionally, but golf is a funny game and the ball must go some place.

Counts Win Nicely At Arena

Counts George Zarynoff and Casimer Polowski came through with neat victores in the features of Alex MacLean's wrestling show at the Boston Arena, which drew a crowd of 4000 fans.

Zarynoff made good his comeback bid by beating Charlie Strack and did it the hard way, winning the last two falls after Strack had won the opener in 35.05 with a lift and slam.

Zarynoff won the second in 9.23 with a flying tackle and the third in 8.17 with a clever body roll.

Polowski continued his unbeaten parade crushing Stan Sitkowski in 9.04 of the semifinal with a front neck lock.

Both special bouts, Billy Bartush vs Scotty McDougall and Dick Raines vs Boris Demetroff, went to 20-minute draws.

The Olsen brothers, Swedes from Minnesota, won their first Arena bouts, Heinie pinning Jim Wallis in 11.40 and Hermi whipping Farming Raymond in 9.08.

Max Goldberg conquered Jim Kendricks in a third prelim in ten minutes.

HUNTINGTON Plays Tomorrow

In an attempt to win their first game of the season, Huntington School's gridsters line up against Lawrence Academy tomorrow afternoon at Huntington field, Brookline.

Coach Tom Blake's proteges have tied Cushing and lost to New Hampton in their first two games.

Blake's best bets are Red Watson, Doug McNaught, Leon Rogers, Sam Miller, Babe Lavakras, Lurinsky, Thayer and Genge.

Chapman Back

Williamstown, Mass., Oct. 24—Bill Chapman, regular tackle on the Williams College football team, has returned to action for the first time since the game with Princeton.

Chapman was laid up with an injury against the Tigers but is expected to play against Tufts at Medford Saturday.

Back Ready

Notre Dame, Ind., Oct. 24 (INS)—Optimism bloomed on the Notre Dame campus today with the announcement the injured Mike Layden, star halfback, will be ready to play against navy at Baltimore Saturday, despite the pessimism of his big brother, Coach Elmer Layden.

Boxing Results

New Haven—Steve Carr, 167, Meriden, defeated Johnny Rossi, 165, Worcester, eight rounds. Werther Arcelli, Boston, outpointed Caspar LaRosa, 147, New York, eight rounds.

Montreal—Al McCoy, Boston, 174¾, knocked out Able Bain, 172½, Newark, two rounds.

Cincinnati—Art Sykes, Chicago, 183, scored four-round knockout over Nate Bartel, Cincinnati, 201.

New York—Charley Badami, 133¾, outpointed Tools Bashara, 138¼, Norfolk, Va. (8).

Oakland, Cal.—Abel Ferrera, 142, Crockett, Cal., outpointed Gaston Lecadre, 143, France (10).

Vancouver, B. C.—Gordon Wallace, 164¼, Vancouver, and Corferio Garcia, 160½, drew (10).

McCOY Unearths NEW FIND

Al McCoy, N. U. grid mentor, has found a new backfield sharpshooter.

The "find" is Oiva Hintsa, small and chunky star of the Maynard high team several years ago, and 1934 freshman ace at N. U.

The speedy Oiva was unable to come out for football until several days ago because of a job that interfered with practice hours.

In the few days that he has been quietly working out with the Huskies, Hintsa has shown remarkable ability, and will be given a backfield assignment for part of the clash with the Weavers next Saturday.

With Oiva on hand, McCoy is speculating on trying out a "pony" backfield, the first of its kind at Northeastern.

This pocket edition would consists of Jimmy Cahill of Newton, 142, at quarterback; Hintsa, 150, at fullback; Gordon Wright of Arlington, 150, and Tony Contardo, 155, at halfbacks.

All four men are sophomores, and while Contardo is a running back, the other three can pass and kick as well.

McCoy will experiment to see what their speed can accomplish against the Lowell Textile outfit for a part of the game.

STANFORD, Army to Play Lions

New York, Oct. 24 (INS)—The football teams of Stanford and Army have been added to Columbia's schedule for 1936, it was announced today. The cadets will be met in New York on October 10, and Stanford will journey cross-country to appear here November 28.

The complete schedule: Maine, October 3; Army, 10; V. M. I., 17; Michigan, 24 (at Ann Arbor); Cornell, 31; Dartmouth, November 7 (at Hanover); Syracuse, 14; Stanford, 28.

GEORGETOWN Squad Light

Washington, D. C. (AP)—There's no need to look for 200 pounders in the Georgetown lineup. The heaviest man on the squad is Mike Petroskey, a tackle, who weighs 198. They go down from him to 150-pound Don Gibeau. The squad averages 177.

DOWNES THROUGH AS EAGLES' SCOUT

DINNY GIVES HIM NEW JOB

By Walter Kiley

Scouting days are over for Harry Downes, Boston College line coach.

In future Eagle games Downes will be found draped over a press stand telephone, spotting weaknesses in the play going on below him and making suggestions to Head Coach McNamara on the bench end of the line.

The plan was tried out in the Michigan State game. It worked so well that McNamara finds it advisable to continue despite his unwillingness to pass up Downes' admitted talents for bringing back accurate scouting data.

The Boston head coach has also come to the conclusion that a line coach is of more value when he can see his charges under competitive conditions.

HELP WANTED

Previous to the Michigan game, Downes was forced to rely on second hand information about his linmen's game conduct.

The same was true of McNamara himself a year ago. Except for the Holy Cross game he hadn't seen a Boston College team play all year, despite the fact that he was backfield coach.

This means that the Eagles must secure the services of new scouts.

In all probability, Joe McKenney will lend a helping hand this Saturday. It is expected that McNamara's predecessor, one of the sharpest eyed scouts in the business, will take in the important Holy Cross-Colgate game at Fitton Field.

Whatever the Purple has either offensively or defensively will have to be used at that time. The information will naturally tend to great advantage for the Boston College finale.

Odds on the Purple-Colgate game favor the Red Raiders.

The Purple's showing against Manhattan on Saturday has caused a big shift in sentiment.

Dr. Eddie Anderson, head coach at Worcester, feels that making the Purple a shortender will react in his team's favor.

He points to the Boston College defeat by Fordham and its later surprising comeback, and to Manhattan's uprising against the Purple after having been badly trounced by Louisiana State as similar cases where the boys get their dander up and turned the tables.

Anderson contemplates using Walter Janiak, small but speedy ball carrier, in place of Joe Yablonsky in the backfield.

Tonight's Entries and Selections For Wonderland Dog Track

By Sam Coben

Jess Bingham's Tarras Speed looms as a sure thing at Wonderland Park tonight in the feature race.

The only contention in the race should be offered by Tim's Ace, with Jimmy Fox dangerous.

Court House and Dummy are both contenders but I'm sticking with the top one [illegible].

FIRST RACE—3-16THS MILE—FULL O' RUN—GOOD GOODS—IRISH MARK

3	Full O' Run	[illegible]	[illegible]	W. B. J. Kennels	Plenty speed in last
6	Good Goods	[illegible]	66	Sunny Side Kennels	Speedy schoolings
4	Irish Mark	[illegible]	[illegible]	B. E. Randle	Improving lately
7	Odd Boy	[illegible]	60	J. F. Thompson	Shows promise.
5	Cyclone River	8-1	54	Geo. Lippold, Jr.	Outside chance.
2	Silver Cutlet	10-1	56	N. G. Allen	Could surprise.
1	My Favorite	12-1	70	C. A. Butterfield	New, no line
8	Crosscut	15-1	70	Wm. Donovan	Good long shot.

FULL O' RUN [illegible] a fast start, but schoolings indicate he has enough to lead this group home. GOOD GOODS was a bang-up second last time out and may be the one. IRISH MARK ought to finish well up.

SECOND RACE—FUTURITY—NANCY KALE—MIDGET JUDY—ROYAL WAY

7	Nancy Kale	2-1	54	Clint Blair	May be the one
6	Midget Judy	5-2	52	B. E. Randle	This distance suits.
4	Royal Way	3-1	62	W. J. Dickinson	Last schooling fast
[illegible]	Wild Thought	[illegible]	63	Jess Williams	Is about do.
3	Duke Manor	8-1	[illegible]	Frank Athanasaw	Can better last
2	Young S[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	Mrs. Opal Warlis	New, speedy
5	Cedar Maid	[illegible]	[illegible]	Lloyd White	Has shown little
8	Wal Power	[illegible]	[illegible]	D. E. Marsh	Far back always

NANCY KALE has the edge in this one and should breeze in. MIDGET JUDY may be the one, as she is fast at this distance. ROYAL WAY reeled off a fast 3-16ths recently and seems right.

THIRD RACE—5-16THS MILE—SWEET DICTATOR—SPEEDY DENNY—PANSY WALKER

2	Sweet Dictator	2-1	55	Golden Bear Ken.	Won last, should repeat.
7	Speedy Denny	5-2	61	Gus Malea	The one to beat.
3	Pansy Walker	3-1	58	Copper City Ken	Won last, moved up.
5	Medaza	5-1	61	J. J. Keenan	May upset
4	Another Sisar	8-1	67	Patrick Conway	Likes this distance.
6	Why Shy	10-1	65	L. W. Randall	Far back in last.
1	Montana Tourist	12-1	64	Oscar Dahlberg	Small chance here.
8	Golden Fay	15-1	51	A. W. Wadley	Last two poor.

SWEET DICTATOR beat this type easily last time out and should repeat. SPEEDY DENNY can turn the trick if in form, since well placed. PANSY WALKER'S last was good. May upset.

FOURTH RACE—FUTURITY—SKELLIG'S MELODY—COLONEL PADDY—SERGEANT ROACH

7	Skellig's Melody	2-1	65	Hollywood Heights	Won last moved up.
5	Colonel Paddy	5-2	56	Freeman Ken.	The contender.
4	Sergeant Roach	3-1	59	H. A. Weigand	Second last out
3	June Time	5-1	64	Sid Manor	May take it all.
2	Happy Traffic	8-1	58	Ed Doyle	Could surprise.
1	Classy Life	10-1	57	R. K. Japour	Last two poor.
6	Skim-A-Long	12-1	65	Whitehead Ken.	Far back lately
8	Glenfield	15-1	42	D. Callaghan	Has shown little.

SKELLIG'S MELODY seems well placed here. Contention will come from COLONEL PADDY, which won in a lower class Tuesday night. SERGEANT ROACH will be up there for the rest of it.

FIFTH RACE—FUTURITY—CHIEF KATTY—ALARIC—JUST NONNY

8	Chief Katty	2-1	59	Mrs. M. Falling	Disregard last.
6	Alaric	5-2	61	Joe Lyttle	Can better last one.
2	Just Nonny	3-1	51	W. E. Forbes	Last sprint good.
5	Little Doggie	5-1	63	Copper City Ken.	May upset.
3	Mabel Todd	8-1	50	A. N. Chinn	Hasn't shown much.
4	Kelly Me	10-1	60	Chas. Holmes	Schoolings only fair.
7	Coming Down	12-1	59	D. Callaghan	Dangerous, may upset.
1	Junette	15-1	52	H. E. Alderson	Last two poor.

CHIEF KATTY has only to go back to Thursday's race to take all in this one. Contention will come from ALARIC, a real speedy sprinter and well placed here. JUST NONNY should get part of it.

SIXTH RACE—FUTURITY—DINTY DENNIS—LORD LISTER—JOHNNY

8	Dinty Dennis	2-1	60	Wm. Baker	Best of the lot
6	Lord Lister	5-2	61	Dr. B. A. Poorman	Can win this.
1	Johnny	3-1	[illegible]	Mrs. M. Falling	May surprise here.
[illegible]	Iron Man	5-1	69	S. B. Cox	Now or never.
2	Miss Riley	8-1	60	John Pesek	Fast schoolings.
5	Keen tuft	10-1	49	Addis Kennels	Second in last.
3	Laura's Son	12-1	57	L. F. Thompson	Far back lately.
4	July Fireside	15-1	61	Chas. Holmes	Has shown little.

DINTY DENNIS has everything in his favor tonight and should win. LORD LISTER has been threatening right along, and this may be the night. JOHNNY got a bad one out of his system the other night, but is due for a comeback here.

SEVENTH RACE—5-16THS MILE—TWINKLE LADDIE—BELLE DOONE—PRINCESS EUGENIE

6	Twinkle Laddie	2-1	57	W. B. J. Kennels	Won last, should repeat.
5	Belle Doone	5-2	50	Bud Sunday	May be the one.
4	Princess Eugenie	3-1	57	N. G. Allen	Should be in money.
3	Just Allie	5-1	58	A. Haberman	Outside chance
7	Al Dabner	8-1	62	Arch Degrer	In fast company.
8	Masked Traffic	10-1	72	Oscar Dahlberg	Last two poor
2	Matchless Officer	12-1	63	Wm. Baker	Seems tailed off
1	Nona Breeze	15-1	50	Ray Courtney	Slim chance here

TWINKLE LADDIE won a cheaper race but in good time and seems right at home here. BELLE DOONE had a bad night the last time but is better than that race indicates. She should be up there. PRINCESS EUGENIE can take it all with one of her good races.

EIGHTH RACE—5-16THS MILE—TARRAS SPEED—TIM'S ACE—JIMMY FOX

4	Tarras Speed	2-1	67	Jess Bingham	Won going away in last.
1	Tim's Ace	5-2	54	Whitehead Ken	The one to beat.
6	Jimmy Fox	3-1	60	J. D. Hall	Won last time out.
5	Dick Kollmore	5-1	71	J. F. Miles	Bang-up second in last.
8	Lena Breeze	8-1	62	Geo. Lippold, Jr.	Won last, moved up.
7	Court House	10-1	63	Oswald Bros. Ken.	Has shown little.
3	Dummy	12-1	63	Dennis Leahy	Good long shot.
2	Just Noodle	15-1	49	Roy Rutland	May be a surprise.

NINTH RACE—FUTURITY—CAREFUL DRESSER—CONNIE MACK—MATTIE

8	Careful Dresser	2-1	66	D. Callaghan	Always in the money.
5	Connie Mack	5-2	59	L. F. Thompson	Won last time out.
7	Mattie	3-1	59	Chas. Cross	Won before, can again.
2	Turle	5-1	52	Waco Kennels	Always close up.
6	Chink	8-1	53	H. E. Alderson	Last two poor.
1	Traffic Escort	10-1	70	Art Wilson	Outside chance.
4	Herman	12-1	57	Augusta Kennels	Disappointed last few.
3	Senator Siracusa	15-1	67	J. D. Hall	Hardly here.

TENTH RACE—5-16THS MILE—JEW BUG—AFRICAN DEMON—FREE CHANCE

3	Jew Bug	2-1	61	Chas. Holmes	Looks best here.
7	African Demon	5-2	71	W. R. Burnett	May be the one.
2	Free Chance	3-1	60	A. N. Chinn	Disregard last.
8	Danny Grey	5-1	63	Augusta Kennels	Can take it all.
5	Daft's Lady	8-1	60	John Pesek	Been away long.
1	Custodian	10-1	62	Roamer Kennels	May [illegible]
6	Rock Roll	12-1	77	Geo. E. Hackett	Derby candidate.
4	Pony Girl	15-1	62	J. E. Miles	May upset the dope.

KEADY PUTS LOWELL IN GRID SUN

Takes Him Only Year To Turn Trick

New Field Needed Badly

By Will Connell

A football wizard who has lifted Lowell from lowly grid rating high up the ladder of achievement in little more than one year is Tom Keady.

Green material, a squad without competitive sparkle, a waffle-surfaced field far from the school and lacking even a dressing shelter, and a treasury that was very much undernourished if not quite starving.

These were the remnants tossed Tailor Keady as he started to stitch a suit of holiday best for the threadbare child of Lowell's autumn play. September, 1934, was the date.

Tom wasn't expected to have the job completed in less than three years. He produced in less than one.

End of last season, the Lowell team had discovered it was just about as good as the teams it met. That mental change made all the difference in the world.

In the final game, with Lawrence, Lowell fought and lost only by a slim margin in a free-scoring affair.

Ray Riddick, a really great school wing, who's now prepping for Fordham in Delaware, led Lowell in that game. A defeat it was, but it marked the end of the dreary era in the school's football.

VANDALS

The game showed the home folk that they had something to cheer about, and this season the customers reported by the thousands for their Saturday show.

Things were much improved. Spring practice did it.

"I never did like to boost spring workoust," said Keady today.

"But it has become necessary to have spring work for school teams. Most of the boys come up without any fundamental knowledge and must get their groundwork before the brief fall stretch opens.

"This spring the squad learned enough, and I was able to get a sufficient line on the individual abilities to put together a fair team starting the season.

"I was unable to do this a year ago. I don't think anyone here has complained about the team's play this campaign."

The '35 machine edged Greenfield, Mass.; Concord, N. H., Watertown, tied Manchester Central by 13 to 13, and trailed Nashua, N. H., 9 to 8. This Saturday is an intracity affair with Keith Academy. Then come St. James, Rindge Tech, New Bedford Vocational and Lawrence.

The field situation at Lowell is a major handicap. Alumni Field is the old New England League park which was purchased a decade back after a city campaign raised pledges of $23,000.

The Alumni Association was given control, and it bought the field for some $13,000. Some of the money pledged was never contributed.

A dressing room with showers and lockers was built. It didn't last long, between lack of money for upkeep and wear and tear at the hands of mauraders who ripped lockers and lifted equipment.

Nothing better could have been expected, with the field protected only by a rickety fence and situated in a rather unsettled district.

GOOD TEAM

This forced the practice of dressing at the high school, traveling by bus more than two miles to the field, back to school late in the afternoon and home to a cold supper.

Naturally, the school spirit wore very thin under the conditions, and many an able youngster couldn't or wouldn't report for the team.

A year back a move was made to get the Alumni Association to deed the field over to the city, in which case government aid could have been enlisted to build a first class stadium.

According to latest reports the Association has done nothing toward giving the field to the city. Until it does, little can be done to help the boys and give them an even break with their competitors.

Donald R. McIntyre, efficient director of athletics in the high school, has been suggested as a manager for the field and its funds.

He has done great work at the school and would make a Grade A choice to pilot the school sports finances to bigger and better things.

There is a crying need for a more adequate field and accommodations. Government funds might be turned into Lowell for stadium construction. Whether or not the Lowell citizens can be aroused to force action in this matter remains to be seen.

This year's team itself needs no help from anyone. The line is fairly heavy, the backs fast, and only three of the present varsity are seniors. Next season Lowell should be ready to roll.

Henry "Heinie" Mazur, 162, quarterback; Phil Green, 165, left half; Rodney Redman, 135, right half; Leighton "Buddy" Kimball, 170, fullback. Neylon, Machado and Kimball are the [illegible] seniors.

The standouts: Saxonis; Machado, a fine running guard; Captain Reid in the line. The backs: Mazur, who can pass, kick and block, is a brilliant all around athlete, flashing also at basketball and baseball. He was outstanding as a member of the Lowell Junior American Legion team. A great back in another season.

Both Likely to Play Against Dartmouth

Dick Harlow's wisdom in training all his Harvard squads in the same system began to bear fruit today. For Harlow reached down into the junior varsity to select John A. Hoye, a husky senior, who has starred for the jayvees for the past two seasons.

Hoye has worked with the varsity at different times this season, filling in for injured backs who were absent from practice. Twice earlier in the week he took part in varsity scrimmages.

His work was so impressive that today he is ranked as a varsity back—and what is more, one who is liable to play an important part in the Dartmouth game on Saturday.

Hoye, a hard running back who can kick and pass as few of Harvard's backs can, plays either halfback or quarterback. He is listed as a ball carrier, but in both varsity scrimmages, called signals.

Harvard is badly in need of a field general, and perhaps Hoye is the answer to the [illegible]. He is [illegible] than the average back [illegible] and weighs 1[illegible] pounds. He packs [illegible].

Promoted along with Hoye was Bill Burton, 1934 letterman, who has been buried among the third team players. [illegible] Burton's comeback during the past week has been so sensational that he has been awarded the starting right tackle berth against the Indians.

In fact, Harlow was so pleased by Burton's steady effort that he publicly praised the former regular before the assembled squad at the conclusion of the mid-week practice session, an unusual honor which has been paid to [illegible] Harvard player since Harlow became the head coach at Cambridge.

"SOFT SHOULDERS"

Lowell Woman Tells of Close Escape from Death in Car

By FLOYD GIBBONS

HELLO, EVERYBODY:

Well, sir, those automobile stories I've been looking for are beginning to come in now.

Here's another from Mrs. George Miron Bickford of 53 Dunfey street, Lowell.

FLOYD GIBBONS

By golly, it's about time those auto yarns started coming, too, because there must be a couple hundred thousand of the folks in New England who have family buses to go adventuring in of a Sunday.

And show me the guy or the gal with a car who hasn't had some sort of wild experience in it!

Mrs. Bickford was taking a trip with her husband, who is an industrial engineer for a Boston firm and whose business takes him on quite a few jaunts about the country.

They were going out to Wisconsin on this one—had travelled as far as Pittsburgh, passed through the city and were making good time over the roads of East Liverpool.

The hill was a long one. The signs along the side of the road said, "Soft Shoulders," and that wasn't an advertisement for some kind of skin cream either.

The earth that banked the sides of the macadam and concrete highway was soft and squishy.

And it seems that motorists don't believe in signs much, out in Ohio, because in the shoulders on both sides, deep ruts had been worn by cars whose wheels had slipped off the hard surface and ploughed into the soft ground beside it.

The car Mrs. Bickford and her husband were in was the first of a long line, making their way up the hill. There was no traffic coming in the other direction, however, and the road ahead of them was clear.

It stayed that way until they got halfway to the top. Then another car came around a curve, heading in their direction.

Mrs. Bickford was the first to spy the car and it looked to her to be coming along at a pretty rapid clip. It was quite a distance away and she couldn't see it very clearly but it seemed as though the fellow was riding in the ditch —ploughing along with one wheel in the rut of the right-hand shoulder and the other on the hard concrete above. Then, as she watched it, the car swerved violently and got back on the road again.

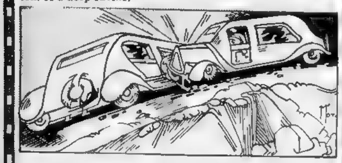
Mrs. Bickford's attention turned from the car then and she didn't see any more of it until a cry from her husband brought her eye back to the road.

That descending car was within a couple of hundred yards of them now and zig-zagging across the highway in a most alarming manner.

It looked to Mrs. Bickford as though the driver was either drunk or crazy. His car would swoop to one side of the road until it seemed that it must go into the ditch. Then, at the last moment, it would swing about and head for the other side.

She watched it spellbound as it came careening toward them. There wasn't a chance to avoid being hit by it for it seemed to be all over the road at once.

Mrs. Bickford screamed and went stiff with fright. Her husband, though, kept his head. There was no way of avoiding the oncoming runaway. To the left of them was a high bank and to the right, a river, down at the bottom of a deep ravine.



There was no time, either, to get out of the car but Mr. Bickford did the only thing he could. He spun the wheel and turned the car around sideways, so that the impact, when it came, would be as small as possible. Then they just sat tense in their seats and waited for the crash.

They didn't have long to wait. A second or two and then the maverick car was upon them. It slammed into the Bickford car on the left side—hit it right in the middle of the running board piled high with suitcases and luggage.

It was a light car and the cushioning effect of the luggage took up some of the force of the blow. But even so, the Bickford car, shaking from stem to stern, slid sideways half a dozen feet down the hill.

Mrs. Bickford screamed again, as the other car caromed off, reeled to the other side of the road and came to a stop. She could hardly believe that she was still alive but a hasty inspection of both her husband and herself revealed that there were no bones broken and in fact, not a scratch on either one of them.

Then a badly shaken young man, white-faced and trembling, emerged from the other car and came walking toward them.

The young fellow did his best to explain what had happened. He had gotten his front wheel in one of those roadside ruts, he said, and from the time he'd gotten out of it, the car had completely gone out of control.

He said he thought he'd broken a steering knuckle and wanted to know if the Bickfords would prefer charges. But Mr. Bickford was in no mood for preferring charges just then.

"HECK, NO," HE SAID. "WE'RE TOO DARNED GLAD TO BE ALIVE."

And that was the end of another roadside adventure.

All right now, how many more of you auto adventurers are going to send me gas-buggy yarns in the next week! Shoot them in and let's see what the score will be.

And every doggone one of you who sends in a yarn worth printing in this column will get a nice, crisp, ten-dollar bill for your trouble. Tomorrow I'll be back here again with a hum-dinger of a story, "Sawed in Two."

RADIO ADDRESS BY PRESIDENT TONIGHT

By N. F. T.

An appeal by air, not a political policy plea, to be voiced by the President, calls for clearing the coast-to-coast lanes this evening (WNAC-WAAB-WBZ-WEEI-WMEX) between 9:30 and 10 p. m. It's a Mobilization-for-Human-Needs message.

"N. F .T."

Thus another campaign of co-operation is launched in the interest of marshalling resources for providing aid among America's poverty-stricken people through the 1935-36 winter stretch. Gerard Swope, national chairman of the mobilization, is ready and waiting to talk from within the Masonic Temple in Detroit, with introduction of President Roosevelt his principal purpose. Microphones galore will be carrying the Chief Executive broadcast out of the White House in Washington.

An impressive half-hour of concert music gets under way (WBZ) as a Smith College presentation and due tonight through the 8:30 to 9 o'clock interim. This is a renewal of the annual series which the lassies of the big Northampton school stage by means of the New England ether waves. All of which bears the Faculty auspices, with Department of Music supervision.

* * *

Everett Marshall, versatile baritone star of such diverse vehicles as Metropolitan Opera productions and the Ziegfeld "Follies" will appear with William Daly and his orchestra as guest star of that weekly semi-classic program (WNAC) slated again at 8:30 this evening.

* * *

Something deserving of the descriptive term gala looms in a star-studded international variety show with such notables as Philip Merivale, Gladys Cooper, Lucienne Boyer, Vicente Escudero, Stepin Fetchit and Ferde Grofe, gathering to celebrate Rudy Vallee's sixth anniversary as a radio showman. All of these entertainers will be guests during the Vallee Hour's most auspicious airing of the year, with Rudy acting in his usual master of ceremonies role for the broadcast (WEEI) tonight at 8:00 p. m.

3 Die in Maine Crossing Crash

Bowdoinham, Me., Oct. 24—Three men were killed here today when their truck was struck at a grade crossing by a Maine Central railroad freight train.

The dead were Lauris D. Purington, 23; Herbert Heath, 53, and Lawrence J. Jenkins, 25, all of Bowdoinham.

ANOTHER TREE FOR JAYS

The seventeenth tree was added to Jays chart this week, commemorating the annual birthday of the institution—and the annual sale.

The latest tree indicates a business increase over the last fiscal period. Mr. Jay, proprietor of the Temple Place store, adopted the tree symbol some years ago as his particular method of letting the public know about "Jays' Birthday day Days."

During this period, with prices reduced, every department carries out the birthday idea.

The advertising of Jays also has been identified throughout the years by the writing of Jay's name in script. Another symbol has been Miss Silhouette, widely known by her appearance on Jays advertisements, stationery, and bags.

Jays also has been a leader in the developments of institutions of mercy such as the Blind Workers of Massachusetts and the Grenfell Industries of Labrador, to whom it extends the resources of its store during December for the display of their goods.

Julia Fay, Ex-Star, to Wed

Hollywood, Cal., Oct. 24 (AP)—Julia Fay, star of the silent screen days, and Anthony Merrill, author and scenario writer, will be married tonight in the Little Church of the Flowers.

NOW PLAYING AT THE PARAMOUNT & FENWAY THEATRES—

Having fun?

Solve "Movie Mixups" as it appears daily in the Boston Evening American, and meet your favorite screen stars as they appear at your favorite theaters, for real fun. Today's celebrities appear at the twin houses of entertainment, The Paramount and Fenway Theaters, where you will view all of today's "Movie Mixups" charaacters in "Shipmates Forever," and "Harmony Lane."

Unscramble the mixed up letters near each cartoon likeness of your Hollywood favorite and you will find that they spell their names. Answer the daily question pertaining to the career of one of the players and send your completed set of six clippings to: The Movie Mixups Editor, Boston Evening American, Boston, Mass.

Forty new 1936 Automatic Tom Thumb radios, with the new metal tube, complete with 5 tubes, inbuilt aerial, full dynamic speaker, choice of black or brown bakelite, and other modern features; $150 in cash and 300 guest theater ticket awards are to be given FREE by the Boston Evening American to persons solving "Movie Mixups" daily. Neatness, accuracy, originality in presentation (not too fancy), and promptness are deciding factors.

A special Grand Award of the 1936 Automatic Console radio, manufactured by the Automatic Radio Mfg. Co., of Boston, complete with nine all-metal tubes, all-wave, and containing "Vision Ray," radio's most modern invention, a mechanism which actually "sees" your station selection, will be distributed to the person having the most correct and complete number of "Movie Mixups" at the completion of this radio series. You need not be a weekly winner to share in this Grand Award. Just send in your "Movie Mixups" diligently, every week.

No "Movie Mixups" will be returned. Decisions of the judges shall be considered final. In case of ties, duplicate awards will be given.

JUNIOR BIRDMEN OF AMERICA

DEVOTED TO THE INTEREST OF THE YOUTH OF THE AMERICAS IN AVIATION

TODAY'S PILOTS OF MODELS—TOMORROW'S MODEL PILOTS!

Two more members have joined the Junior Birdmen Scale Model Contest in which $1000, $500 and $250 will be given the first, second and third place national winners, in addition to wing elimination prizes.

The new Boston wing contestants are: Charles L. Burgoyne, 50 Hartford street, Dorchester, and Stephen J. Sardella, 16 West Water street, Wakefield.

The contest ends during Easter week. In the meantime the contestants are building replicas of the Sikorsky S-39 amphibian, the official plane of the Junior Birdmen organization.

A contest manual, containing plan sheet, drawings, diagrams and step-by-step instructions, will be sent to each member upon receipt of 25 cents. The fee will be returned to the contestant when his plane is submitted for examination of judges.

To enter the contest simply send a quarter (well wrapped) to Junior Birdmen Model Plane Competition, 1834 Broadway, New York City. The manual contains an entry blank and it is necessary that this be filled out and returned so contestants will be on the mailing list for bulletins issued periodically in this competition.

* * *

Nearly 85 entries have been received for the big official wing indoor air races at South Armory on Saturday, November 30. The trophy and gold, silver and bronze medals, which will be awarded winners, are now being displayed in the Boy Shops' window of Kennedy's store, 32 Summer street.

A contest manual, containing entry blank, list of prizes, rules and specifications of models, will be sent free to any Junior Birdman upon request.

* * *

The wing commander has been asked to talk over Station WCOP in an aviation school of the air program at 10 o'clock Saturday morning. William B. Harty of the Harty Engineering Co. at Findlen has charge of the program.

Red Cross Picks 4 New Directors

Four new directors-at-large of Boston Metropolitan Chapter, American Red Cross, were announced today as a result of the annual meeting presided over by Joseph R. Hamlen, chapter chairman.

Frank C. Nichols, rollcall chairman, detailed plans for city-wide support of this year's rollcall, commencing Armistice Day and continuing to Thanksgiving Day.

The Rev. Robert P. Barry of the Catholic Charitable Bureau, Miss Betty Dumaine of Groton, Miss Rachael Warner of Boston and Mrs. Edward H. Warren of Concord are the new directors elected.

40 Lost in Sofia Flood

Sofia, Oct. 24 (AP)—An undetermined number of persons was reported dead today in disastrous floods in Macedonia. Forty men were swept away by torrents which struck a railroad working crew at Petries. Only four bodies were recovered.

Obituary

Funeral services will be held tomorrow at Mount Auburn cemetery chapel for Mrs. Jane A. Mifflin, widow of George H. Mifflin, publisher.

Mrs. Mifflin died Tuesday at her home, 85 Marlboro street, Back Bay, after an illness of several years. She was 83.

Many authors whose works were published by her husband's concern, Houghton Mifflin Company, were entertained lavishly by Mrs. Mifflin.

Among those who attended the receptions at the Mifflin home were Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, John Greenleaf Whittier, Kate Douglas Wiggin, Mary Johnston and Charles Dudley Warner.

Mrs. Mifflin was born in Salem, the daughter of the late Willard P. Phillips and Mary Hodges Boardman. She married Mr. Mifflin in 1871.

Her husband was president of the publishing house until his death in 1921. A son, George H. Mifflin, survives.

MICHAEL J. MULDOON

A solemn high requiem mass will be held Saturday morning in Our Lady of the Presentation Church, Oak square, Brighton, for Sergeant Michael J. Muldoon, retired Boston police officer.

Sergeant Muldoon succumbed at the age of 71 after a long illness at his home, 683 Washington street, Brighton.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Delia F. (Green) Muldoon; a daughter, Miss Rita M. Muldoon, two brothers and two sisters.

MRS. MARY McCARTHY

Funeral services will be held tomorrow morning with a solemn high mass of requiem at St. Joseph's church, West End, for Mrs. Mary McCarthy, 65, widow of Dennis J. McCarthy, first treasurer of the Hendricks Club.

Mrs. McCarthy died at her home, 15 Allen street, West End. She is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Margaret M. Creed of Dorchester, Mrs. Katherine I. Wedgert, Wellesley Hills, and Mrs. John Kenney, East Milton; and a son, Joseph McCarthy of Melrose.

MERCHANT E. PHILBRICK

Funeral services for Merchant E. Philbrick, retired partner of John M. Woods & Co., Cambridge, will be held at Mount Auburn Cemetery Chapel tomorrow at 2 p. m.

Mr. Philbrick, who died at the New England Baptist Hospital, lived in Kilsythe road, Brighton. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Blanche Emery Philbrick, and a sister, Mrs. Leroy S. Brown, of Lexington.

JOHN J. MOREY

Funeral services for John J. Morey of Mount Vernon street, Charlestown chief marshal of the Bunker Hill parade this year will be held Friday at St. Mary's Church, Charlestown.

Morey died at City Hospital yesterday. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Mary E. Morey, five sons and three brothers. He was a past senior vice-commander of Colonel Fred B. Bogan Camp U. S. W. V.

KIDNEY TROUBLE

Mr. Dudley Chrichlow, 11 Pine St., Cambridge, Mass., says: "I had suffered from backache, palpitation of the heart and kidney trouble for some time. I would have headaches, dizzy spells and lost weight. I had been treated by different doctors but I did not improve under their treatment; a friend told me of Dr. Walsh, under his treatment I soon felt like my normal self. I make this statement hoping that others who suffer as I did may know where to go for help."

Wallace Vs. Facts

Tariff Made Us Great

SECRETARY OF AGRICULTURE WALLACE in his recent radio broadcast defended his processing taxes and denounced the protective tariff.

This is good Wallachian logic, for the processing taxes, as well as the whole AAA program, are RUSSIAN, while the protective tariff is AMERICAN.

It is becoming more and more apparent to the thinking American that whatever is OUT OF MOSCOW is FAVORABLY regarded by this administration and whatever is TRADITIONALLY AMERICAN is looked on with DISFAVOR.

In Mr. Wallace's attack on the protective tariff he demanded that "the high tariff groups be persuaded to identify themselves more closely with the interests of the consumer."

JUST two hours before the delivery of his speech the Supreme Court announced that it would pass on the CONSTITUTIONALITY of the AAA, which carries the CONFISCATORY PROCESSING TAX with it.

BUT THE SUPREME COURT HAS NOT YET BEEN ASKED TO PASS ON THE CONSTITUTIONALITY OF THE PROTECTIVE TARIFF.

The protective tariff has made of this country the giant of the world.

IT HAS KEPT WAGES TO THE HIGHEST LEVEL EVER ATTAINED IN HISTORICAL MEMORY.

It has PROTECTED THE CONSUMER in the most vital way possible—that is, by MAKING WORK POSSIBLE FOR HIM.

NO depression has ever been traceable to our tariff policy.

On the other hand, the processing taxes not only skyrocket the price of everything that the consumer depends on for his very life, but tends, BECAUSE OF THE INCREASED COSTS LAID ON THE EMPLOYING CLASSES, to LAY-OFFS.

It was unfortunate for the glib commissar of agriculture that the day after his denunciation of the tariff on the ground that it raised prices that BREAD SHOULD HAVE GONE UP A CENT A LOAF.

THIS will force Mr. Wallace's consumer to shoulder an ADDED BURDEN OF $100,000,000 A YEAR.

This jump in the price of bread was caused not by the AMERICAN SYSTEM OF PROTECTION BUT BY THE RUSSIAN SYSTEM OF PLOUGHING UNDER AND THE BACK-BREAKING TAX BURDENS laid on anyone who processes bread.

There is no parallel between the tariff and the processing taxes in spite of Mr. Wallace's labored attempt to find an analogy —and for this reason:

The tariff KEEPS OUT the pauper-paid goods of Europe and the Orient and PROTECTS our industrial establishments against ruinous foreign competition, while the processing taxes will in time CLOSE HUNDREDS OF OUR FACTORIES and REDUCE TO PAUPERIZATION men and women getting the highest salaries of any factory workers on the globe.

The protective tariff has built up the HOME MARKET.

The AAA is destroying ALL MARKETS.

Police Efficiency

That Is Most Important

No written or oral examination can determine ALL the factors that go to make up a man's fitness for a particular position.

In the police department a man's actual service record, for example, may be more vital than the way he answers examiners' questions.

The late Stephen O'Meara achieved nationwide fame as police commissioner of Boston.

He did not believe civil service rating should bind him in making promotions.

Commissioner McSweeney has shown himself worthy of trust by those who want a high degree of police efficiency.

It is in no way detracting from merits possessed by civil service to urge that he be given as free a hand as possible in bettering "the force."

The New Capital

And "Tugwell Town"

There are 105,679 persons on the Federal payroll in Washington alone.

This rising flood of job-holders, nearly all of whom are just Farley political axle-grease, is now taking possession of the apartment houses in the capital.

To house this titanic bureaucracy, ever-growing, ever-sprouting, like the tentacles of an octopus, it may soon be necessary to dispossess all the MERE RESIDENTS in Washington.

"Tugwell Town" has also been established just outside the capital at a cost of $5,500,000 to house the jobless victims of the more abundant life.

Why not leave the national capital to the squanderers, visionaries and bureaucrats and rename it RAW DEAL TOWN?

The Treadmill

Getting Nowhere Quickly

Remember the old jingle which goes:

"I do a little work to get a little money
"To buy a little food to get a little strength
"To do a little work to get a little money---"

And so on forever?

That's what YOU are doing under the new dispensation.

Work and wages may have increased a little, but FOOD has increased an average of 33 per cent.

In some instances it has jumped 148 per cent.

The Brain Trusters have seen to that,

So, get back on the treadmill, brother.

But don't hope to reach the end of it.

Answering Appeal

Jewish Citizens Generous

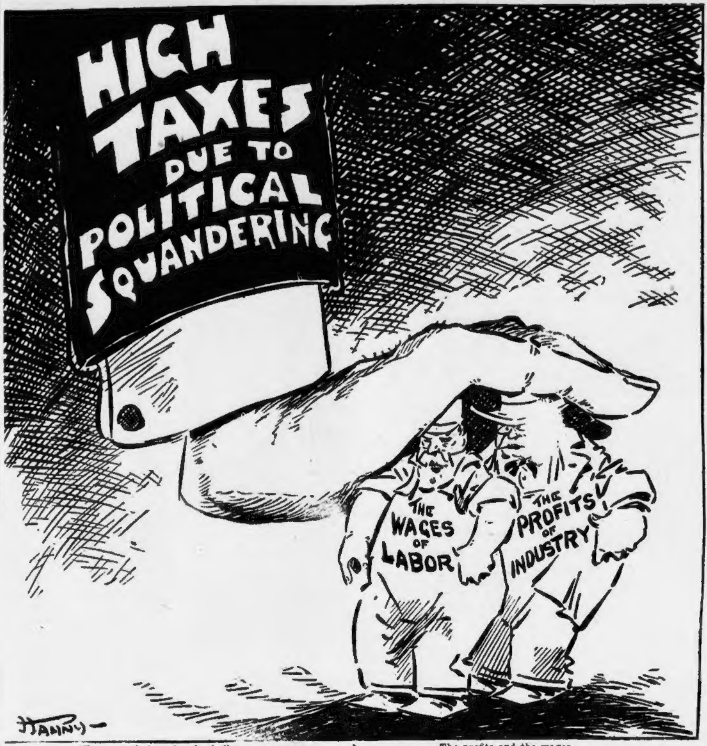
That Boston's Jewish citizens are generously answering the appeal for $554,000 needed to carry on their widespread philanthropies is evident.

The initial subscriptions at the opening of the fortnight's campaign totaled $75,000 over the mark set last year, amounting to $279,257.

This was a great start for a good cause.

Undoubtedly the campaign will go "over the top" and its funds devoted to the needy who always have our sympathy.

Pressing With a Heavy Hand



They eat their spinach gladly,
Their vitamins they love,
But they are hampered sadly
By pressure from above;
For little boys will never grow
When heavy taxes cramp them so.

The profits and the wages
Of industry and toil
Grow small while spending rages
And politicians spoil.
Unless the spenders ease their stunts
The victims will be hopless runts.

—George E. Phair.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

New York, Oct. 24—No one in years has provided more publicity for night clubs and cabarets than John Barrymore wandering among them this Fall. When he crossed thresholds press agents flew to the phone, camera boys arrived on the gallop and frothy cafe chat-writers on an aeolian breeze.

O. O. McIntyre

Heretofore members of the Royal Family have held somewhat aloof from those nocturnal cracklings that fuel the Broadway bonfire. Their appearance was confined to snaffling a light snack at the Algonquin or perhaps a drop in at a private party.

But the screen's great lover, in casting off traditional restraint, went the distance.

He allowed himself to be piloted to the front row tables and offered no protests over the photographic clamor. And was equally agreeable about rising to bow when celebrities were introduced.

He had come to town in advance of reputed marital holiday and entered into the spirit of the sudden freedom with abandon.

He even donned the customary paper cap and twirled the rattlers when that peak of hoop-la arrived. A Barrymore became one of the gang!

The frigidity of the Barrymores was strikingly illustrated at a private gathering I attended a number of years ago. Several celebrities were called upon for impromptu bits.

Tallulah Bankhead's time came and she, curtseying, asked Ethel Barrymore's permission to give an imitation of the great lady's "That's all there is!" lament.

It was accomplished with delicate exaggeration. Everybody joined the applause save Miss Barrymore.

Idiosyncrasies of dress are not always confined to the gentler sex. George Jean Nathan has his breast pocket installed on the right side. Roy Howard wears patent leather spats with evening attire. Bainbridge Colby affects low collars with full dress.

Paul Whiteman carries a cigarette case with a dangling tassle in his right hand trousers pocket. Irvin Cobb sports his wrist watch on the inside. Corey Ford wears a rattlesnake belt. Sinclair Lewis totes a monocle, but only uses it when clowning.

All of Michael Arlen's suspenders are white rubberized silk. George Gershwin has cuff links to match his neckties. Frank Sullivan goes for pencil-striped suits and Fred Astaire changes neckties several times a day.

Speaking of neckties, Schiaparelli sends me from Paris, what she calls her latest "cravat creation." It's a four-in-hand of milk white silk on which is printed in red a crazy quilt of newspaper headlines depicting sensational events from all parts of the world. As an oddity it's odd but a shade too hotsy-totsy for even a dontcarish necktiest. As a matter of fact, after years of falling for every sort of shade in ties from salmon pink to wet grass green I'm beginning to hanker for white-collared shirts and plain black fore-in-hands. I've had my fling.

Those with curbed color complexes will sympathize with King Alfonso of Spain. As ruler he had to slip off to Paris incognito to sport the giddy wearing apparel he loved. After he was booted off the throne, the Royalists warned him all hope of kinging it again depended upon a sedate deportment, especially in dress.

So Alfonso expresses his flair only among a few intimates. In privacy of his quarters: Wild red, yellow and green house pajamas and robes. In public: Costumes of ambrosial darkness.

Thingumabobs: Gelett Burgess always has several o's in his book titles for luck . . . Jed Harris trying for a comeback in the theater was worth five millions at 31 . . . Anna Gould has an 18-year-old French poodle . . .

Ray D. Lillibridge keeps wardrobe records on the date he wears every suit . . . Lindy the restaurant man, was once a waiter in Horcher's in Berlin . . . "Pee Wee" Byers, so long Barney Gallant's orchestra leader, is radio announcer in Detroit . . .

Grover Whalen rides to work in an open car, winter and summer . . . De Wolf Hopper was known around the Lambs as Hoppy . . . "Hap" Ward is running a cafe in Boston.

From London Graphic: "No American dessert is worth delaying the coffee." The fool never heard of floating island with its thick meringue on boiled chilled custard and polka-dotted with currant jelly.

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

"BEWARE OF TRANQUILLITY!"

Did you see the answer Mr. Hearst sent to Bruno Lessing? It's the medicine, I suspect, for what ails a lot of us.

Elsie Robinson

Mr. Lessing—knocking around Europe—fell into the dumps. Got to wondering what was the matter with our jittery world.

"Oh, for a tranquil life," sighed he. "Love and friendship and quiet study and thought and the enjoyment of trees and flowers—"

Sounds familiar, doesn't it? Spent a lot of time on that same wheeze yourself, haven't you? And you honestly believe you'd enjoy a life devoid of all risk and worry.

Well, maybe you would. Some do. Clams, f'rinstance. Barnacles, snails, mud turtles. But as a program for Humans, it's not so hot—according to Mr. Hearst.

THE TOPPLING TOP

"How long has it been since you spun a top?" he asks. "Do you remember how it hopped around when you first spun it—how it literally danced and sang in the full expenditure of the energy you had communicated to it? Then, after a while, it did not dance and sing so much. Finally, it settled into a 'tranquil,' sleepy hum—and, shortly after that, it toppled over.

"Beware of tranquillity. It proclaims the toppling over stage. It is the sleep which precedes dissolution . . . Life is action. Sport as well as work is contention. All nature strives and vies not to attain tranquillity, but a more effective degree of activity.

"Nothing that is alive and vigorous is tranquil . . . Whatever begins to be tranquil is promptly gobbled up by something which is not tranquil."

"Thank goodness," you may say complacently, "that doesn't apply to me. I'm always on the go."

A NEW WORLD

But are you? Your body may move in its accustomed round, but how about the thing that "spins the top"—how about your mind? Stop and make an honest check—if you dare.

How long since your mind moved at all? How long since you experimented with a new viewpoint, risked a new doubt, rebelled against an old prejudice?

Within the last four years a new world has come into being—a world utterly different from anything you have ever known! But how much thought have you given to the difference—to these endless, unique problems?

How often do you consider anything but yourself—your own good or bad luck? Come clean, now! Don't you really dodge new ideas, dread arguments—resent anything which disputes or belittles your opinion?

Mental tranquillity—after thirty, even after twenty, most of us begin to yearn for it as we yearn for a soft bed. It's delightful to sog down in our own unchallenged ignorance, sentimentality, intolerance. And it's easy to call our mental laziness "conservatism" and even kid ourselves that it is.

CAN'T FOOL WORLD

But we can't fool the World. A muscle that is never exercised will surely wither—and so will a mind. And a paralyzed mind is as obvious as a paralyzed body, and as great a nuisance. The world soon knows whether we're a Live Wire or a Dim Bulb—and treats us accordingly.

Is that, perhaps, the reason for the raw deals you've had lately? Is that why your husband and children are growing indifferent to you, Mary? Why they treat you as a Has Been down at the office, Bill?

Shoving you aside—seeking advice from and giving the choice chances to someone younger, without half your experience. You think angrily of your years of loyal, plodding service. How unfair they are! Self-pity chokes you!

But why should it? Why weep and rage because others treat you as a Dead One, when all the while you're turning yourself into one? Tranquillity is slow suicide. Safety is certain death. If you act like a Dear Departed you must expect to be treated as one.

Don't do it! Wake up and get going. Stop snivelling or grouching at the Warld As Is — and begin to be part of it. It's your only chance.

Otherwise you might as well order your own lilies, before the Other Fellow hangs 'em on you.

"Man, the Unknown"

Human Side of the News

By Edwin C. Hill

THE GLOBE TROTTER OF HEARST METROTONE NEWS

In his recently published book, "Man, the Unknown," Dr. Alexis Carrel advances a theory of history as a living technique — a scientific backward look which shall not be a mere chronicle of dates and battles, and a long cast into the future, carried forward by experiments relayed from one generation to another.

Edwin C. Hill

"Time - binding," as it involves an awareness of man's past on the planet, has not yet really found its way into the race's memory. As to history, our memories are actually short.

An individual as resistant to profiting from experience as is the race, as are the nations, would be locked up for the good of the community.

For every new folly we plunge into there is down in the archives of race experiense the tale of how somebody else tried it and came to grief.

AIRPLANE PROBLEM

Literature is full of the stories not only of wrong guesses by imperial adventures but of startling prophecies, such as those of the seemingly clairvoyant old Roger Bacon of the 14th century and the miraculously gifted Leonardo da Vinci.

The alert Christopher Morley digs one of them up and prints it in the Saturday Review of Literature.

In his "Rasselas," old Dr. Johnson was writing of Ras Selas, the prince of Abyssinia, writes Mr. Morley. But the nub of it is the passage on flying machines:

"Against an army sailing through the clouds neither walls nor mountains nor seas could afford any security. A flight of northern savages might hover in the wind and light at once, with irresistible violence, upon the capital of a fruitful region that was rolling under them. Even this valley, the retreat of princes, the abode of happiness, might be violated."

The dream of the artist in "Rasselas" didn't quite carry through to explosives being dropped out of airplanes.

Each nation rates itself as "good" and the others as actually or potentially "bad".

Therefore, the overdue answer to the artist's query is that the good will make bigger and better airplanes to fight off those of the bad.

INEXORABLE LOGIC

Heron may say to the spies of Cambyses, "Your king is not a just man," but at the same time he'll be unleashing a flock of airplanes.

It is depressing logic, but inexorable.

America, with all its will to peace, its remoteness from ancient dynastic quarrels and imperial destinies, finds no other answer to the arrival of airplanes before an era when "all men are virtuous."

In 1894 Pierre Raffray, a French journalist, exiled because of his political opinions, wrote the following:

"It is a mistake to believe that the era of feudalism ended with the beginning of capitalism. Ancient faiths and ancient dynasties propel themselves into the modern world. To perpetuate themselves they will rape science, and the fruits of invention will be found to be death and ruin.

"Dreadful will be the wars to come with the magnified destruction made possible by man's advance in the physical sciences, in his still rudimentary ethical state. The continent of North America may escape this devastation.

"Being self-sustaining, schooled in free institutions, it may have the wisdom and the virtue of avoiding the conflict and rebuilding civilization. No man can say."

After many years, events have fulfilled M. Raffray's vision, but how pertinent, how timely his warning!

By Whose Authority?

By JAMES T. WILLIAMS, JR.

HERE is a question to which the American Legion, the Veterans of Foreign Wars and patriotic societies in every State in the Union ought to demand an immediate answer:

By whose authority is the name of the National Education Association being used to raise money to spread the propaganda of sedition and treason among American youth in schools, colleges and universities?

Within the week this propaganda has been going out from the Federal City through the United States mail. It calls upon American citizens to unite with the National Education Association and other "participating organizations" to subscribe to a fund to be used for the following purposes:

To destroy the system of training with the Colors inaugurated by Abraham Lincoln while he was President and endorsed and maintained by every President and Congress since Lincoln was assassinated.

To incite American youth to turn a deaf ear to the call of the Flag, to despise the uniform of their country and refuse to train in peace or act in war for its defense.

To destroy the Reserve Officers Training Corps which continues the system of training with the Colors inaugurated by Lincoln.

To destroy the Citizens Military Training Camps inaugurated by Leonard Wood, endorsed by Theodore Roosevelt, attended by the sons of President Coolidge and supported by the President and Congress now in power.

To drive from the Civilian Conservation Camps all officers of the Regular Army and organized reserves to whose leadership is chiefly due the success which these agencies have attained.

To prevent the upbuilding of equality with the strongest which we are pledged by treaty to do.

To prevent the modernizing of the American Army with the weapons and equipment essential to enable it to perform its defense mission.

To turn the schools, colleges and universities of this country into cells for the spread of the un-American citizen not obligated by the Constitution to defend us against foes within or without the government of which the Constitution is the cornerstone.

IF THE responsible officials of the National Education Association have not permitted the use of its name to raise money for any of these purposes it ought not to be difficult to put a stop to it. It is against the law in every State in the Union to obtain money under false pretenses.

If the responsible officials of the National Education Association have given their permission to use its name to raise money to finance this intrigue, then the Association would seem to be badly in need of a new set of officials.

Too 'Busy' Friends

By Winifred Black

How nice they did look, these flapjack beds in the nice, neat, cozy hotel room.

No, that wasn't the name of them—not until we slept in them. Even the bell boy was enthusiastic about those beds.

"Just look at them," said the bell boy. "They are as soft as silk. When you're once in them, you never can bear to get up. Don't leave an early call, you might not want to answer it."

Maybe the bell boy was right. We never found out, my friend and I. We never got into the beds at all. We just lay on them all night long, she on her bed and I on mine.

And toward morning I found myself gripping the sides of the bed like one who sails a ship tossing in a storm and trying to hang onto safety by some hook or crook. You couldn't move a finger without bouncing.

"These beds are just like the flapjack pans the old miners used to have," I called to my friend across the room. "Don't you know how they used to stir up flapjack dough and make cakes of it, and when the cakes were the right brown, grab the griddle, give it a toss, and up into the air went the flapjacks, down again never missing a trick.

"The only thing I'm afraid of is that I'm not expert enough to land in the right spot when I come down."

They made me think of some people I know, did the flapjack beds. They look so nice and good-natured, and they are so brisk and willing and ready to help, and you're just crazy to see them when they come.

But oh, when they have been there a short half hour, what would you give for silence and peace! They talk and they talk and they talk. They gesticulate, they run their hands through their hair.

I wish somebody would make a picture of a flapjack bed of some poor, tired mortal clinging to the head board as a poor rider clings to the reigns of a plunging horse.

I'd buy about a dozen copies of the picture and send one to everyone of the vigorous, energetic, "do let me help" and "oh, can't you see that my way is the way to do it" people who never let you have one instant's rest when they are in yelling distance.

You don't know what I mean? Wait until your busy friend arrives and you'll know, be sure of that.

Isn't It So?

The old-fashioned girl who used to make ash receivers out of cigar bands now has a daughter who makes them out of the parlor rug.

A man is morally just if he respects his neighbor's own.

If you would be powerful, pretend to be powerful. It works.

He who decries an article wants to buy it cheap.

No method of getting money sounds silly when you are dead broke.
